A Thrilling Incident.

Mrs. Ingalls, a Baptist Missionary in Burmah, among the Buddhist Priests.

We were pleasantly entertained this morning by Mrs. Ingalls,a missionary from Burmah, who came to our office accompanied by President Sears, of Brown University, and while here related many interesting experiences of her missionary labors, and made frequent reference to the valuable aid afforded her by the Pain Killer, which is she says, frequently called by the natives the "God-Medicine," and some imes worshiped by them. One instance she relates as follows:

"One stormy day I was sent for to visit had been severely wounded, the messenger saying that he was killed. I told him it was no use then for me to go, as my medicine could not raise the dead. But he persisted: saying the God medicine would not surely fail to do him some good. My native preachers, who better understood the extravagance of their language, urged me strongly to go, feeling that God had in this way opened a door to the gospel, in answer to our many prayers. But I still hesitated, fearing for the reputation of my medicine, which had become a powerful aid in giving me access to the natives. At length I vielded, and taking in my hand a bottle of the Pain Killer the charm that had opened this door, I followed my guide through the monastery, into the inner, or most sacred place, where lay the wounded man upon the ground, a ghast-ly object, covered with blood, and apparently

"I knew something of the dangers that surrounded me, and notwithstanding my trust in Him who said, 'I will never leave or forsake von.' I could not wholly divest myself of fear. Standing beside the dving man, I said to the monks or priests who had followed me in, or were there before me, that my medicine could not raise the dead, nor ing back the departed spirit; and, should fail to restore their friend, they ought no condemn the medicine, Still, I would do i in my power for the wounded man; but to begin with, I must have some bandages. But bey would not let me go, The God-man must be saved, and I might, or this puriole, use the sacred cloth. I speedily laid 'profane' hand on it, and conerted it into bandages, with which, satura-I in Pain Killer, I bound up the wounds of
