In a lumbering attic room, Where for want of light and air, Years had died within the gloom, Leaving dead dust everywhere, Everywhere, Hung the portrait of a lady O With a face so fair.

Time had long since dull'd the paint; Time, which all our arts disguise, And the features now were faint, All except the wondrous eves.

Wondrous eyes Ever looking, looking, looking, With such sad surprise!

As man loveth, man had loved Her whose features faded there; As man mourneth, man had mourned, Weeping in his dark despair Bitter tears;

When she left him broken-hearted, To his death of years.

Then for months the picture bent All its eyes upon his face. Following him wher'er he went, Till another filled the place In its stead-Till the features of the living

Did ontface the dead.

There for years it hang above In that attic, dim and ghast, Fading with the fading love-

Sad reminder of the past; Save the eyes, Ever looking, ever looking,

With such sad surprise. Oft the distant laughter's sound Enter'd through the cobweb'd door. And the cry of children found

 Dusty echoes from the floor To those eyes, Ever looking, ever looking, With such sad surprise.

Once there moved upon the stair Olden love steps mounting low, Drove him to the depth below, For those eyes

Thro' his soul seem'd looking, looking. All their said surprise.

From that day the door was nailed Of that memory hadinted room; And the portrait hung and paled . On the dead dust and the gloom, Save the eyes,

Ever looking, ever looking, With such sad surprise!

Upwards of half a million copies of Mr. Emerson's music books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no ther author of the same class of books, and which cannot fail to insure for this new vol ume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been con-tributed by Mr. L. H. Southard, whose name is a sufficient guarantee of the excellence. The marked features of the collection are: Originality, Brilliancy and variety, and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no glee book before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to musical societies, and conventions, conservatories, clubs and amateur singers.
