Where father tilled, now strangers till Our father's house is not; A stranger's home stands on the hill Where stood our humble cot.

The old red barn is torn away-A new one stands there now -What fun we've had in that old bay! What frolies in the mow!

The old well-sweep has disappeared,

Postead there is a pump; The farm how changed! The land we clear Is now without a stump. And those "back acres" where we mowed

(Back-ackers true they were.) A boy upon a mower rode, And cut while I was there. The ratiling reaper rapid run

Where erst beneath the broiling sun Our cradles oft we swung. Those reapers, George, have truly hung

The waving grain among,

Our cradles "in the shade;" The only eradle now-days swung Is where the baby's laid.

Our mother's grave, dear George, I sought, There wept-I know not why ; I full the changes years have wrought On all-on you and I.

May God long bless the noble soul Who owns the "old farm" now ! He's spared our dwid-that hallowed knoll Is sacred from the plow !

Notice to our Readers. A general invitation is extended to all the readers of The Weekly Enteredise, to send to the Editor of this paper information on subjects connected with farming, gardening, and rural economy.

-The great difficulty in setting out trees and getting them to live is the drouth in the summer time. In order to prevent the drouth from infuring them, take long manure or straw and lay around the roots, and pile stones or wood or boards on it. This will keep the ground moist and the trees will all live. Wood is good without the straw but better with it. Try it and see.

○ The rust in wheat is a subject of discussion in San Francisco, Mr. W. Raymond, a scientific gentleman, says that the rust in wheat is a vegetable parasite which spends one portion of its existence on the wheat plant, and after that is ruined, is carried by the winds to the barberry bushes, where it completes its circle of life, generates an immense swarm of germs and dies. Those germs are carried by the winds to the wheat on fields of the next year, and the same course is repeated. Without the bushes the rust fungus could never amultiply. If this theory is proved to

-- In some localities farmers find it difficult to rear fowls on account of the depret lations of skunks. In some of the agricultural papers it has been asserted and confirmed by testimouy O that if this animal is caught in a box trap to low that it cannot lift its tail, othere will be no offensive emission from its so at bag; for it is asserted there is a connection between the muscles of the tail and those by which the musky fluid is ejected which prevents the latter event unless the former can be raised erect. Caught in a box-trap very little higher than the animal stands, he may be drowned without endangering the trapper with the animal's perfume. -A correspondent of the Field, gives the following recipe for harness blacking, which he has used for several years and is perfectly convinced of its excellence; Beeswax (shred fine), eight ounces, turpentine sufficient to cover it; let them stand till the wax is dissolved (three or four days); ivory black, four ounces; olive oil (I use neats' foot oil), two ounces; Prussian blue, two ounces. Rub the ivory black and Prussian blue well together to a fine powder in a mortar, then add the oil, and gradually the other ingredients, and thoroughly mix them. If it gets hard by keeping, soften with turpentine. I use one brush-one end for blacking, the other for polishing.

-" The prospects for an excellent crop of wheat in this county were never better"-is a favorite item with the California papers. Here in Oregon we never have anything to the contrary. There is always an excellent crop of cereals to reward the industry of the husbandman.
