The city has many attractions, But think of the vices and sins; When once in the vortex of fashion. How soon the downward course begins.

You talk of the mines of Australia-They're wealthy in gold, without doubt But ah! there is gold on the farm, boys, If only you'll shovel it out. The mercantile life is a hazard-

The goods are first high, and then low Better risk the old farm a while longer-Don't be in a hurry to go.

The great busy Vest has inducements, And so has the busiest mart : But wealth is not made in a'day, boys-

Don't be in a harry to start ! The bankers and brokers are wealthy-They take in their thousands or so: Ah! think of the fruads and deceptions-Don't be in a hurry to go.

The farm is the safest and surest-The orchards are loaded to-day : You're free as the air of the mountains, And monarch of all you survey, Better stay on the farm a while longer, Though profits should come rather slow; Remember you've nothing to risk, boys-Don't be in a hurry to go!

OFATTENING CHICKENS .- A constant readet of the Exterprise, gives the following directions for fattening for market or for the table, such chickens as it may not be desirous to keep on account of any fault of form or color : "Recollect, that any bird, however faulty as to color or shape, or however deformed, will do perfect eating. A little extra feeding while young will cause these pariahs to contribute to the support of their more highly favored fellows. But unless for home consumption, it will be useless to kill them if they fare with the others in the yard. Putting them up will not only fatten them, but it is wonderful to those unaccustomed to it, to observe their growth in a short time. Amateurs, who are family men, know something of the appelites of long, lean boys, the monstrous consumption of food, which all seems devoted to the growth of arms and legs. It is the result of exercise. It is equally true of chickens; and it is hopeless to attempt to fatten them while at liberty. They must be put in a proper coop; and this, like most other poultry appurtenances, need not be expensive. To fatten twelve fowls, ocoop may be three feet long, eighteen inches high, and eighteen inches deep, made entirely of bars. No bottom. Discretion must be used according to the size of the chickens put up. They do not want room; indeed the closer they are the better-provided they can all ctand up at the same time. Care must be taken to put up such as have been accustomed to be together, or they will fight. If one is quarrelsome it is better to remove it at once; as, like other bad exam-chicken should not be put up. "A coop, such as we have described, should be put in any out-house where it is sheltered from draught, and at night should | A Collection of Glees, Quartetts, Chobe covered with sacks. Fowls will not fatten if they are cold. The bars of the casp may be an inch and a half apart, and the food and water must be put outside. The latter must be clean, cool and fresh.

"The food should be ground oats; and may either be put in a trough, or on a flat board running along the front of the coop. It may be mixed with either water or milk; the latter is better. It should be well slaked, forming a pulp as loose as can be, provided it does not run off the board. They must be well fed two or three times per day—the first time as soon after daybreak as may be possible or convenient, and then at intervals of three hours. tions, conservatories, clubs and amateur sing-Each meal should be as much and no more than they can eat up clean. When they have done feeding, the board should be wiped, and some gravel may be spread.

It causes them to feed and thrive. "After a fortnight of this treatment you will have good fat fowls. If, however, there are but four or six to be fatted, they must not have as much room as though there were twelve. Nothing is easier than to allot them the proper space; as it is only necessary to have two or three pieces of wood to pass between the bars, and to form a partition. This may also serve when fowls are up at different degrees of tatness. This requires attention, or fowls will not keep fat and healthy. As soon as the fowl is sufficiently fatted it must be killed; otherwise it will still get fat, but it will lose flesh. If fowls are intended for the market, of course they are, or may be, all fatted at once; but if for home consumption, it is better to put them up at such intervals as will suit the time when they will be required for table. When the PLEASE REMEMBER! time arrives for killing, whether they are meant for market or otherwise, they should be fasted without food or water for twelve or fifteen hours. This enables them to be kept for some time after being killed, even tained at the Enter-

"There is more trouble than expense in fattening a fowl; and if these directions are carried out, the drafts of the yard will furnish many good meals, or pay for food. It is only necessary to make one more remark. These instructions follow our entreaties to amateurs and breeders to dispose of faulty birds before they have become costly by consumption of food. All I. GRADON. the foregoing will be thrown away if practiced on old fowls; nothing will make them tender. Therefore, put them up while they are young if you want to eat tender. juicy fowls, and still more if you want to sell at a good price. They are worth far more now than they will be after you have a kept them three months longer." 4+++

-Apple worms may be caught in large numbers by the simple process of winding hay ropes around the trunks of the trees, just before the worms begin to leave the fruit. The grubs will hide in the ropes for the purpose of spinning their cocoons. and may be found by unwinding the coils of rope. -A farmer named Samuel Robinson residing near Melbourn, in Derbyshire, England, recently took the prize at Bir-Faias, for six cabbages, the aggregate weight of which was 433 pounds; being an average of 721 pounds to the cabbage.

-In Montgomery county, New York farmers sow two and one-half bushels of oats to the acre. And the cast of oats throughout the State of New York won't vary much from that; fifty bushels per user would be considered a good yield
