RAIN IN THE HEART.

"Into each life some rain must fall."

If this were all—oh! if this were all,

That into each life some rain must fall,

There were fainter sobs in the poet's rhyme,

There were fewer wrecks on the shore of time.

But tempests of woe pass over the soul,

Since winds of anguish we cannot control,

And shock after shock we're called to bear,

Till the lips are white with the heart's despair.

The shores of time with wrecks are strewn,

Unto the ear comes ever a moan—

Weeks of hopes that set sail in glee,

Weeks of love, sinking silently.

Many are hid from the human eye,

Only God knows how deep they lie;

Only God heard when arose the cry,

"Help me to bear—oh! help me to die."

"Into each life some rain must fall,"

If this were all—oh! if this were all;

Yet there's a refuge from storm and blast,

Gloria Patria—we'll reach it at last.

Be strong, be strong, to my heart I cry,

The pearl in the wounded shell doth lie;

Days of sunshine are given to all,

Though "into each life some rain must fall!"

—Woman, it is asserted, does not always succeed in acquiring a perfect knowledge of the handicraft she commences to learn, because she is conscious that at some future time she may be diverted from her trade to take charge of a household of her own. The different aims of the male and female artisan are graphically described in Harper's Bazaar, by a woman engraver, who had endeavored to instruct females in the higher branches of his art. The engraver says: "When a young man comes to me and begins his work, he feels that it is his life business. He is to earn his future out of the little blocks before him. Wife, family, home, happiness, are all to be carved by his hand, and he settles steadily and earnestly to his labor, determined to master it, and with every incentive spurring him on. He cannot marry until he knows his trade. It is exactly the other way with the girl.

She may be as poor as the youth, and as wholly dependent upon her labor for a living. But she feels that she will probably be married by-and-by,

and then she must give up wood engraving. She goes on listlessly; she has no ambition to excel; she does not feel that her happiness depends upon it. She will marry, and then her husband's wages will support her.

She will not say so, but she thinks so, and it spoils her work."

A WONDERFUL DOME.—The dome of the Capitol at Washington is the most ambitious structure in America.

It is a hundred and eight feet high from the Washington Monument at Baltimore, sixty-eight feet higher than that at Bunker Hill, and twenty three feet higher than the Trinity Church spire of New York. It is a vast hollow sphere of iron, weighing 8,200,000 pounds. How much is that?

More than four thousand tons, or about the weight of seventy thousand full grown people; or about equal to a thousand laden coal cars, which, holding four tons apiece, would reach two miles and a half.

Directly over your head is a figure in bronze, "America," weighing 14,985 pounds. The pressure of the iron dome upon its piers and pillars is 13,477 pounds to the square foot.

St. Peter's presses nearly 20,000 pounds more to the square foot, and St. Genevieve, at Paris, 66,000 pounds more. It would require to crush the supports of our dome a pressure of 775,280 pounds to the square foot. The cost was about $1,100,000. The new wings cost about $6,500,000. The architect has a plan for rebuilding the old central part of the Capitol and enlarging the Park, which will cost $3,200,000.

—Stop grumbling! Get up two hours earlier in the morning, and begin to do something out of your regular profession. Mind your own business, and with all your might let other people's alone. Live within your means. Give away or sell your dog. Smoke your cigar through an air stove. Eat with moderation and go to bed early. Talk less of your own peculiar gifts and virtues, and more of those of your friends and neighbors. Be cheerful. Fulfill your promises. Pay your debts. Be yourself all you would see in others. Be a good man and stop grumbling.

The New York Herald says: "So
