THE CROSS OF LIGHT.

0

Last evening I saw an angel Hisgreat white pinions wave, And he passed through a quiet churchyar And he stopped at an infant's grave.

And taking a ray of sunshine Out of his pinions bright, He laid it among the violets, And it formed a cross of light.

This morning I went to the churchyard All through the soft Spring air : The angel had flown to Heaven. But the sunshine still was there ! a the state of the second second POLITICAL.

-The standing complaint made by Southern unreconstructed rebels, and their no less guilty friends in the eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, and for North, is that they are deprived of free speech. While we are constantly reading in Democratic papers this false charge, men in the Democratic ranks are haranguing crowds from public places and inciting them to riot and bloodshed. Let us, for instance, quote from the speech of B. H. Hill, delivered at Atlanta, July 22d, at a Seymour and Blair ratification meeting. Hill is one of the men who claims that there is no freedom of speech now, yet among other things river, twenty-six thousand dollars. equally as vile we find the following:

This style is quite 2 reminder of days before the war, when no man dared express in the Scuthern States his opinion if it differed from the spirit of the above. This man Hill, and Wise, and Vance, and other fire eaters, encouraged by Northern Democrats, are pretty well demonstrating the fact that there is too much free speech allowed rebels. If measures should be taken to put a stop to these incendiary speeches, the Democrats would say a great outrage had been committed. And now, as men are allowed, and talk treason in the South, Democrats say the Governments of those States are ineffect. ual and mere farces. Just after the war traitors were very quiet, and seemed ready to accept any terms offered them, but Andrew Johnson's wholesale pardoning revived the old arrogance and fanned anew the flame of rebellion. But for all this we may thank Northern Democrats, for had it not been for their opposition to the work of reconstruction, the South would have cheerfully acquiesced in all features of the measure.

-It has at last disclosed what the Democrats mean by our soldiers. A stiff Democratic paper, in apologizing for the selection of such a man as Blair, says he was first nominated by our soldiers. He was nominated by General Preston, of the rebel cormy. The nomination was seconded by Wade Hampton, of the rebel army. General Fort Pillow Forrest, of the rebel army, urged it in a speech. And these are true Democratic soldiers.
