

THE TILLER OF THE SOIL.

A hardy, sunburnt man is he—
 A hardy, sunburnt man—
 No sturdier man you'll ever see,
 Thought all the world you scan.
 In summer's heat, in winter's cold,
 You'll find him at his toil—
 Oh, far above the knights of old,
 Is the Tiller of the Soil.

He trudges out at break of day,
 And takes his way along;
 And as he turns the yielding clay,
 He sings a joyful song.
 He is no dull unhappy wight,
 Bound in misfortune's coil;
 The smile is bright, the heart is light,
 Of the Tiller of the soil.

And when the orb of day has crown'd
 With gold the western sky,
 Before his dwelling he is found,
 With cheerful faces by—
 With little laughing duplicates,
 Caresses will not spoil;
 Oh, joy at every side awaits
 The Tiller of the Soil.

A hardy, sunburnt man is he;
 A hardy, sunburnt man;
 But who can boast a hand so free,
 As he, the Tiller, can?
 Nor summer's heat, nor winter's cold,
 The pow'r has him to foil—
 Oh, far above the knights of old,
 Is the Tiller of the Soil.

THE WASHINGTONIAN TEMPERANCE SOCIETY having met on the 22d inst., the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The chairman of the standing committee reported, that in accordance with their request, Aaron E. Wait, Esq., had consented to address the Society at its present session—and also that the committee, in behalf of the society, had procured the publication of 1000 extra copies of the Hon. C. Lancaster's address, in addition to its appearance in the last regular number of the "Spectator." For the publication of these extras, the committee had contracted to pay eighteen dollars in cash; and that the treasury, only containing a little more than eleven dollars, was overdrawn nearly seven dollars, which would be taken up at the next meeting. The chairman of the committee further stated that the Rev. William Roberts might be expected to address the society at its next meeting.

All further business was now postponed, that Mr. Wait might proceed with his remarks. The speaker concluded his address at half-past nine o'clock—after which the society adjourned to meet next Monday evening.
