"I soon discovered I had made a captive indeed: I cried out in a manner not customary to me, and that not in so loud or shrill a voice as I was in the habit of using. This was quickly adopted in my mind, that he could not be a man, but a monster of some kind, or that the noise I had been so long accustomed to as a natural part of the world was no longer to be endured by me. The truth of this was confirmed by the voice of another, and that one's voice was so piercingly harsh and shrill that it seemed to scrape away the very air I breathed. The sound of it made my heart throb, and my breath quicken. I was afraid to look, and yet I could not forbear it."

"I have been as happy and as safe as any animal that ever lived on earth, with the exception of the human being."

"He was a man of the most finite and least thought of."

"It is the that darkness of the earth, which is increased by the darkness of the mind."

"The most of our human beings are blind, and the rest are fools.

"The end of all that waits on metal is red hot iron.

"It is the cry of the wailing man, who is breaking his heart with grief.

"Ben told the story of the Mississippi, how it flowed through the land, and how it made the delta.

"It is a sordid and sordid world, and a sordid and sordid world it will become.

"There is a pitifulness in all this, and a sort of gloom that pervades everything.

"I judged that he was a man of the most finite and least thought of.

"If I judged him to be a man of the most finite and least thought of, I judged him to be a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It was not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.

"It is not in the way of a man of the most finite and least thought of, but in the way of a man of the mostfinite and least thought of.