The SPECTATOR

May 3, 1847.

The Peculiar Government in Oregon.

In the course of one of our previous numbers, we referred to the peculiar government then existing in Oregon, in allusion to the appointment of a Governor and Council by the Legislature of the State, and the concurrence of the people in the selection of the Governor. We now have abundant evidence that the people of Oregon have chosen for Governor one of their own number, in preference to those who had been appointed to that office by the Legislature.

The people of Oregon have chosen for Governor an individual who is possessed of talent, energy, and wisdom; and who is known to be thoroughly acquainted with the condition of the country, and the wants and wishes of the people. He is a man of character, and one who is respected by all classes of the community.

The election of Governor is a matter of great importance to the people of Oregon, and one which will have a decided influence on the future prosperity of the State.

The people of Oregon are to be congratulated on the choice they have made. They have selected a man who is capable of discharge the duties of the office, and who is known to be fitted for the position.

We are gratified to find that the people of Oregon have elected a Governor who is known to be a man of integrity, and who is respected by all classes of the community.
