

in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore during January, February and March to their friends in Ireland, amounted to little short of $1,000,000.

The American Peace Society have offered a premium of $500 for the best essay on the Mexican war.

THE MISSION IN CHINA.—The affair of the French Mission in China has been settled.—And the French Consulate at Canton is suppressed. A French Charge d'affaires is appointed to the Celestial Empire, M. Fourth Rouen has been nominated to the post; he is to reside at Canton, where the Viceroy resides, the legal representative of the Emperor of China towards the Europeans. If foreign agents are admitted into Peking, the French representative is to take the title of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Chinese court. An interpreter, a secretary and a chancellor, are to be attached to the Mission. M. Lefevre de Biocourt, French Consul at Canton, has been appointed Consul General at Manila. M. Fabre, Consular agent at Manila, has been appointed Consul at Santiago, in the Island of Cuba, and M. de Montigny has been appointed Consular agent at Shanghai.

The following is the account given in the Boletim do Governo, of the attack on the Cochinchinese by the French vessels of war:

"To-day the French Frigate La Gloire, commanded by Captain Lapierre, Commodore on the Chinese station, anchored on the roads. They came from Cochinchina, where provoked by the authorities, and having found among the papers of the master of a boat visited by the barge of the frigate, an order by the Governor to attack the frigate and the corvette Victorieuse, when the Commodore should go on shore to hold a conference with an envoy from the king, where he was to be assassinated together with those who accompanied him. The Commodore attacked and destroyed five Cochinchinese vessels which were prepared to fight the French. It appears that in less than half an hour, three of the vessels were on fire, and two lowered their flags. The corvette only lost one seaman, and had one wounded, although she had sustained a brisk fire from the vessels and the fort, an honor which she owed to the circumstance of her drawing less water than the frigate, whose Captain pays many eulogiums to the Captain and crew of the Victorieuse. The object of the mission was to solicit the King for the same toleration that has been granted by the Emperor of China to the Catholic religion.

In Russia the police have forbidden all trade or manufacture of cotton powder. The ostensible reason is its dangerous character. In Prussia the artillery committee have condemned the new invention on nearly the same ground upon which it was rejected in England. In France, on the other hand, constant experiments are being made to apply this new article to warlike weapons. The progress made in the manufacture is already a sufficient answer to the principal objections brought against the original invention; and it is quite probable that it may yet be shown that the English and Prussian committees have been altogether too hasty in their condemnation.

The schoolmaster of Gen. Taylor, the hero of the late brilliant victories over a greatly superior force of the Mexican army, resides in the town of Preston, near Norwich, Connecticut. The news of Gen. Taylor's bravery enkindles in the old gentleman's bosom a degree of patriotism which causes him to enter into the subject of our difficulties with Mexico, with all the ardor of youth, and to look with patriotic interest for whatever may relate to the glory and fame of one, who when a lad, was placed under his care and instruction. His name is Elisha Burns, and he speaks of Zachary as being a smart boy, who gave promise of usefulness, and relates with much satisfaction various incidents and anecdotes connected with the family.

The celebrated painting of the "Departure of the Israelites" was nearly destroyed by fire, in New Orleans recently. It was valued at $10,000 and insured but for a small portion of that sum.

The total value of exports from Boston and Charleston to foreign ports during the year 1846 was $9,247,924. The loss exported during the year was valued at $96,811; domestic at $1,500,000, and bread-stuff at $1,069,401.

When General Taylor was a young man, says the Louisville Journal, he and an elder brother, William, long since dead, swam from the Kentucky shore across the Ohio river to the Indiana shore, and back again, without resting. The feat was performed in the month of March, when the river was swollen and chill. It greatly surpassed the famous one of swimming the Hellespont, which is about a mile across, and of delightful temperature. The Taylors were not accompanied by a boat, as Byron was when he swam the Hellespont, which makes all the difference in the world. One winter, when Gen. Taylor was stationed at Prairie du Chien, he used to walk every morning from his lodgings to the barracks without a great coat, when the thermometer was forty degrees below zero.

Gen. Taylor—Ampudia has at least discovered that he was a Tailor who understood well how to take his measures, and that the officers and army under his command had shown to the Mexicans and to the world that they perfectly understand the art of making breaches.

A fond girl in order to prevent her lover from going to the war, threw a basin of hot water on his foot the day before his company (the Cincinnati Grays) was to march. But he bound up his walker, and marched with the rest, the poor girl declaring that she "meant it all in kindness."

An old man, who had been dreadfully hen-pecked all his life, was visited on his death-bed by a clergyman. The old man appeared very indifferent, and the parson tried to arouse him by talking of the King of Terrors. "Hout, tout, m'n, I'm not scar't. The King of Terrors! I've been living six and thirty years with the Queen of them, and the King canna be muckle waur."

Two Yankees took lodgings for about ten days, at a tavern in Lancaster county, and fared sumptuously, drinking two or three bottles of wine daily. The last day a dispute arose about the speed of their horses; they at last agreed to enter on the "profitable contest." The landlord was appointed judge, each being the rider of his own horse. When they were mounted, the judge, like those at the Olympic games, gave the words one, two, three and "go." Off they went, and have never been seen or heard of since, leaving the landlord fully compensated by having had the honor to be their judge.

THE COQUETTE.—No woman is a coquette by nature. She is made so only by circumstances and self-protection. This may be affirmed, and would doubtless be proved by the history of every coquette, who has practised thoughtlessly, or even with pretty maliciousness, her arts of deception.

We have always pitied the mistaken girl who endeavored to trifle with right thought and pure feelings. In her conduct we have read the history of one who was familiar with that grief which cankereth; who knew of the loneliness which is added to desolation—who had poured out the gushing streams of life's earliest and best affections upon one who was unworthy—and was now proud of her sorrow, and almost vindictive in her retaliation upon the world. Let it not be supposed that one like this is the heartless thing she seems: there lives one green spot in her memory, watered though it may be by tears, and kept verdant with the dews of grief, where thought represses oft, and where affection retires to weep over violated pledges, and broken mementoes of faithlessness.

TERRIBLE RUMOR.—It is rumored that the ladies are about adopting gun cotton, for "bustles." Several bachelors have been alarmed, and daily expect to be blown up. Shake a bustle, and a coal of fire, at a refractory husband, and he immediately "comes down." The "lords of creation" are done. Henceforth we commence a new era in the history of the world.

A rooster was flogged recently in Connecticut for crowing on Sunday.

Says Jack to Sam, "let's go and ship on board, the Mexicans to whip."
Says Sam, "but first I want to know if 'tis to Vera Cruz we go;
They say the castle's very strong,
The fight will be both hard and long.
Says Jack, "that is, for glory's sake,
The very cruise I wish to take."

Douglas Jerrold says, "that as old mother Eve created the necessity of wearing that useful garment called a shirt, by the sons of Adam, therefore, it is but just for her daughters to wear them."
