Where is "The West."

We published on Saturday a telegraphic dispatch, from Kansas, which is immediately on the Western frontier of this State. The dispatch in question is the first from that point, the line of telegraph having just been between this place and that. West of Kansas, and separated from it only, by the Kansas river, lies the Indian territory, inhabited by friendly tribes. The "lightning courier," has therefore reached the verge of civilization on our western frontier East of the Rocky Mountains. This event may well give rise to profound reflection. We ow a continuous wire stretching from the Indian territory on the west, to our exas on the northeast. From Kansas to Portland, in Maine, intelligence may be conveyed in a few hours. telegraphic wonders have ceased to ex-Marvelous as arc , . achievements, we now soarcely speculate upon its results. But the particular fact which we set out to record, is, that within the limits of the States this side of the Rocky Mountains, we have now no "West," in the sense in which that phrase was understood a few years ago. We have not passed the years ago. We have not passed the idlan of life; and yet within our recollection all the territory West of the Ohio was comparatively a wilderness inhabited by a few squatters, with now and then a small village, consisting of a tavern, a black-smith shop, a "grocery," and perhaps a retail store or two. This town is handsomely located upon the lower branch of the Willamette river, just far enough above its junction with the Columbia to render it an excellent harbor, and has the advantage of be-ing accessible from all sides, either by land or wa-ter; it is also the lowest point upon the river that has a wagon road leading from it to the Willamstie valley.

alley. Two mountain strains tun, one on each side of the town, afferding water power-unfleient to manu-facture 50,000 feet of lumber per day—upon one of which three saw mile are now underweigh.

Although the town has been laid out but a few months, it has already made much progress in point of improvement and commerce, and has fair, soon, to become the most important one in the terions, to become the most important ritory.

To those desirous of taking up land claims, we would state that we are surrounded by as santiful and fertile a section of country as Crugon can beast of, including the Scapposce plains, Sauvies Island, the rich and extensive Prairies lately e plored upon the Catlaposcie or Levis river, and the flue land in the immediate vicinity of the town.
