

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE REDUCED!

The subscription price to the EAST OREGONIAN has been reduced to THREE DOLLARS a year when paid in advance. This step has been taken after much thought on the subject; and it is hoped that the conclusion arrived at will work to the advantage of both patron and publisher.

The Grand Lodge of Good Templars for this State will meet in annual session at Albany on the 12th day of June at the Good Templar Hall.

The Dalles Tribune says there is at present a great scarcity of vacant dwelling houses in that city. In fact there are not any vacant except some old rat-traps on Main street; at least none that we can hear of; and there are several families crowded in with others who are ready to move into any dwelling house as soon as vacated. This is hard on some families, but it augurs well for the growth and prosperity of Dalles City.

ON THE WING.

BAKER CITY, May 26, 1877. If I had written a more bold and extended hand for last week, a few errors in my communication would probably not have occurred. For instance, instead of "improved" pencil, read "inspired" pencil; then the sentence would have been what was intended by me writer. Instead of "Karter," read "Kastner;" then "Louis" would have been better pleased.

Since I last wrote, an invitation from Dan Patterson was extended to me to take a ride to Union and La Grande on the stage beer wagon, which was accepted in due form. To say that your correspondent was duly "shook up" in the most approved manner, conveys but a slight idea of the true state of affairs during that journey. However, it was beneficial to his "ghostship" (that's me), and satisfaction at the good effects is the result.

It was the intention of the writer to try and obtain a few subscribers in this place, but hard times would prevent a successful effort in behalf of anything but a cheap paper, say such as the Ogden Freeman, and the EAST OREGONIAN, you know, is not such a paper, hence the effort alluded to will here be postponed to a more propitious period—when money is plenty and people are good natured.

The splendid breeze of Saturday last (during my absence of course) tempts the writer to yémáin longer away from home and business than he needs to. However, as soon as possible he will return, and assume once more his duties. He must stop a few days in Grand Ronde valley and visit some old friends that insist on his doing so.

We are not much in the habit of "puffing;" we seldom tell a lie in the local column when at home; but to speak honestly of enterprises and compliment those who are doing their best to please the public is not puffing, nor is it wrong, but on the other hand is commendable; hence we must not omit to mention the hotels in this upper country. La Grande boasts of a good hotel, kept by Mr. Dickey, a new house, clean and comfortable. Union certainly can brag of its excellent Centennial Hotel, kept by Dan Moore, assisted by Columbus Goodspeed. It is very large, the largest east of the Cascades; newly furnished; the finest beds and as good cooking as can be found anywhere in the country. Baker City contains three hotels. The large brick hotel, kept by Joseph Manasada, is a credit to the town and the proprietor. Mrs. Irland gives perfect satisfaction in the old Western. Your humble servant "stops" at the Railroad House, kept by Joseph Lechner, formerly of the Baker City Brewery. Joe is a good landlord, and sees to it that not a guest leaves his dining room hungry.

This country is full of mining excitement. A day or two since a Grand Ronder, in prospecting in "Rowan" gulch (I think the orthography of the word is correct), struck a rich placer mine, which on the bedrock yielded $40 to the pan. This information is undoubtedly correct. At Auburn, the Graham brothers have also struck rich mines, directly under the town of Auburn, which pay largely.

I called upon my old friend "Shep," of the Bedrock Democrat, and found him as energetic and good natured as ever. News, paper quarrels seldom rupture personal friendships, and in the case of Shep, and myself that rule holds good. I could write more, but for the present must cease from fatigue. Yours, BELL.

RETROSPECTION.

But a few short years have passed since all the country lying east of the Cascade mountains in the State of Oregon was embraced in the county of Wasco. In reality it was an unexplored region, with the exception of a few miles on each side of the old emigrant wagon road that entered Oregon at the mouth of Boise river. The immigrant, when he crossed the Snake river at this point, was worn out with travel and watching, and was but little qualified to judge of the great natural advantages the country possessed; and these immigrants continued on their way to the Web-foot country proper, settled, and were happy in the belief that this country was good for nothing but for roving tribes of Indians. When Wasco county was created, nearly all the settlers in the big "Wallamet" or "Willamette" would have sold all their interests in the new county for a mere song. At last the adventurous trader, next the miner, and then the farmer and stock-raiser put in an appearance, and what was heretofore considered a sage brush country teemed with growing grain fields, and stock of all kinds, Summer and Winter, upon the range. Mines of untold wealth have been unearthed, thriving villages have sprung up—the leading one of which is Pendleton—a hardy and virtuous population have settled all around, with plenty of space left for one thousand times as many more—and no fear of pauperism, that Country has been set off from old mother Wasco, till she ranks less than some of her daughters in population. The counties of Umatilla, Union and Baker can today, if all their good wheat land was under cultivation, supply the world with wheat. Grant and Baker countries have furnished more of the precious metals than all the State besides. But we want an outlet for these productions, a railroad to Portland, or locks at the Cascades and Dalles. We need and we want here in time, but we want them in the shortest time! We have shown our Web-foot friends that we have a good country, and now we want their help to develop it. Don't ask that all appropriations that Congress in its wisdom and justice gives to Oregon, for improvements, shall be expended on the coast or Willamette valley Give us our due, an opening through the Cascades, and we will show you that the old Wasco landmarks are worth more to the tolling millions than all Oregon besides.

Wheat on the Wasco county hills is now four or five feet high, and will yield about 25 bushels to the acre.

Picnics are all the rage in the valley.

LEGISLATION NEEDED.

A gentleman living here, who owns cattle on Willow creek, received a letter the other day, stating that a young man living over there had destroyed the ear-marks from some of his cattle, by cutting the ear off close to the head, and also cut the dew-lap from the neck, and sold what was left to one of the Portland drovers.

Is there not something radically wrong in our laws punishing persons who are guilty of cattle stealing? Out of a dozen cases tried in the Circuit Court in this county, all go scot free. Would it not be well to have the law so amended, that in the stealing of animals the penalty should be fine or imprisonment, according to the discretion of the court? Jurors hesitate about sending a man to the penitentiary for stealing anything of small value, when they would willingly convict in many instances where the punishment would be by fine. Surely some kind of legislation is needed in the premises, or cattle owners will eventually form themselves into vigilance committees, defy all laws themselves, and require the life of a man for the loss of a steer. Is not a sure conviction under the law preferable to a great penalty under which no conviction can be had?

Milton Items. MILTON, May 29, 1877. It is raining today. The Walls Walls river is on another "bender."

Dr. Johnson returned home last week and there was great excitement and heart fluttering among the ladies thereat.

Some dishonest person sold a roll of butter in Milton, which had a coating of about half an inch of fresh butter on the outside, while the inside was rotten. We hope the party who perpetrated this mean fraud will see this time.

We have two stores, three blacksmith shops, one boot and shoe shop, one harness shop, one meat market, one flouring mill and one whiskey mill in Milton.

John McLaughlin is in town today. Camp-meeting will begin at Milton on the 8th of June.

John Miller expects to start before noon to get machinery for enlarging his grist mill.

Our regular correspondent at Weston sends the following: The District Conference of the M. E. Church, South, commenced at Weston today (6th), Rev. R. C. Oglesby presiding.

John Fletcher has bought the interest of Mr. Paul in the butcher business, and is now a full partner with S. A. Johns.

Lucian Everts, of Pendleton, was in town this week. Also, Maj. Cornoyer, of the Indian agency.

Fine creek was higher during the past week than ever before known—so say the old settlers. Good time for overshoes and umbrellas.

From the Capital.

SALEM, OR., May 25, 1877. EDITOR EAST OREGONIAN.—We are sad, melancholy and almost angry to-night. Cause: Been making calculations on a grand time on next Sunday (May 27th); expected to go down to Aurora to the picnic, take half noon, get some ginger bread and have a regular old Missouri time; here working like blazes all the week to earn my spending money; had seven bits already and expected to earn two more to-morrow, and that would have taken me to the picnic and back and paid for the gin bread (Sall pays her own way). But my hopes of such a time are "blasted"—to-night they went up here that the picnic was indefinitely postponed; and now I don't s'pose I'll be well in a week before she comes off. Well, that's just all as far as my luck.

THE OTHER DAY we were going down State street, we noticed the auctioneer ringing his "gong" and a crowd gathering. Inquire as to reports? (3) should be, we soon ascertained that the goods to be sold consisted of a lady's wardrobe. The lady was the wife of a man lately deceased, and the goods were being sold to pay for the coffin the man was buried in. Persons dealing with undertakers will find it to their advantage to "pay as they go."

STATE GRANGE. The State Grange is in session and has been for four days. Nearly every precinct in Oregon and Washington Territory is represented. There are lots of them, and the pleasant crowd we have seen for many a day. They are all stopping at the Cascades; and for some cause, (can't imagine what it is) there is a complaint around town of a scarcity of potatoes, beans, corned beef, cabbage, etc. Yesterday the whole pile of them chartered hacks and had a ride out to the penitentiary, where they were kindly shown the rounds of the building by Supt. Birch. The Salem band showed their appreciation of the presence of the grangers, by giving them a hearty serenade last night.

THE WEATHER. The weather has been just as the farmers wish, so far this season. While they were putting in crops the rain ceased, and after they finished some rain fell. Then a month of warm sunshine, making the wheat grow exceedingly fast until the soil began to dry a little, and then we had a nice warm shower, which happened yesterday and to-day, making grain shoot up and all vegetation look beautiful.

THE OREGON PIONEERS. Will give a grand picnic and ball on the 17th and 18th of June. Special pains have been taken for this occasion, and it is expected that it will be the event of the season. Arrangements have been made with the O. S. N. and O. C. R. R. Companies, so that persons at a distance wishing to attend the picnic can travel over their routes at half fare. Hon. Elwood Evans, of Olympia, will deliver the annual address.

CAPITAL NOTES. Joseph Hoyt, a highly respected citizen of Salem, died of consumption last week. Mr. Draper, who has been prostrate with that fell destroyer, consumption, for many months, died last week.

Mike Rauh, the gentleman who went from here to California some three months ago for his health, returned yesterday very little improved. R. E. POSTER.

Some incendiary attempted to set fire to the Cliff House, at Oregon City, a few days ago, by saturating the wash room with coal oil and applying a match while the fire department was engaged on the burning slaughter house in the other end of town. Fortunately the design was discovered in time to prevent any damage.
