The Steppes and Oases of Central Asia.

The steppes are the bottoms of ancient seas which once rolled over a large portion of the continent of Asia, and which, when swept by storms, rise in tumultuous waves, not of water, but of sand...

A Mammoth Sugar Plantation.

A Honolulu paper printed early in May contains the following: "The Kroll estate, on the island of Kauai, which comprises some 27,000 acres of rich sugar and pasture lands, well wooded and watered, together with 5,000 head of choice cattle, boiling-down works, and valuable permanent improvements, was recently purchased by his majesty, Kalakaua, Capt. James McKee, and G. W. Macfarlane, in the proportion of one-fourth, five-eighths, and one-eighth respectively, for the purpose of converting the same into a first-class sugar estate, for which the property is admirably adapted, having, perhaps, more natural advantages (in the way of abundant supply of water, rich soil, flat, clear and unbroken land, woods, etc.) than any other plantation property on the islands..."

Business Prostration in Germany.

There is much distress in this city among the working classes. In the manufacturing faubourg of Oranienburg about one-half of the operatives in the factories and foundries are out of employment. Unfortunately, also, there is a rise in breadstuffs and provisions generally, while, owing to the heavy monetary taxation, there is little prospect of rents. In Northern Germany the shipping interests are suffering from the stoppage of the Black Sea trade, in which there was a profitable field of occupation in the carrying trade. Berlin, up to the war with France, was one of the principal banking centers of the Continent. The immense indemnity levied on France stimulated speculation to fever heat. No one remembers the speculation which was not to be undertaken. Private buildings in entire blocks were put up as well as public edifices of all kinds, and railroads were built in all directions. The satirical journal here once offered a reward for any new invention for the application of capital, giving as a reason that all known expedients had been exhausted. Over-production and over-speculation preceded their natural effects. A leading banking institution failed; next followed a manufacturing establishment, and then the crash became general. To-day Berlin is covered with the wrecks of speculative credulity. Many of the millionaires of a few years ago are in a state verging on absolute poverty. The prostration is so general that few have escaped unscathed. The Government's military reserve funds are a specialty, devoted to war purposes and the protection of the empire against invasion. They cannot be touched for other uses. Could they be drawn on at the present time, they would obviate the necessity of imposing new burdens on the people. -Berlin Correspondence of the Philadelphia Press.
