The East Oregonian.

FRIDAY.....JUNE 10, 1881

SEVERAL of our subscribers along the Umatilla river have ordered their paper stopped. As the line of the Umatilla & Pendleton R. R. passes over the land of these several parties, we presume they take this step as the easiest means of expressing their resentment for not having received larger compensations for the right of way through their farms—Mr. Turner being a member of the right of way committee. Now as for the matter of a few subscribers more or less, we would not devote as much space as the above to the matter, nor have we ever shirked responsibility in order to avoid censure, but we do like to be fully understood in order that we may receive justice.

When at the request of Mr. Thielson, a number of the citizens met him at the Villard Hotel last fall, he proposed to them to locate a depot within half a mile of Pendleton, if the latter would enter into bonds to the amount of $10,000 to pay for the right of way from Umatilla to the line of the Indian reservation. The proposition was accepted and Messrs. LaDow, Rothchild and Turner were appointed a committee to have a satisfactory bond executed, and to devise ways and means to meet the obligations as they should become due. They succeeded in getting satisfactory signatures to the bonds, and the citizens of the town (with a few notable exceptions) responded liberally to their solicitations for subscriptions.

About a month since Mr. A. S. Watt, an employee of the O. R. & N. Co., in accordance with instructions of Mr. Thielson, commenced negotiations for the right of way. Entirely disinterested himself, as the awards he was making were not to be paid by the company, in whose employ he was and is, but by the citizens of Pendleton. We cannot see why the citizens of Pendleton, or the committee representing them should be held responsible if the offers and awards of Mr. Watt were not large enough, but the committee would have been to blame and no doubt would have been severely censured, if they had so far overstepped their authority as to pay out of the funds of the subscribers more than said subscribers had obligated themselves to pay, which was to be the amount agreed upon between the land owners and the O. R. & N. Co. What matters it to the settlers along the river whether the money is to be paid out of the pockets of the people of Pendleton or the coffers of the O. R. & N. Co Do any of them think that if the O. R. & N. Co. would have to draw on their own resources they would have been more liberal?

The people of Pendleton have voluntarily taken a burden on themselves full as heavy as that thrust upon the settlers along the line and we do not believe that any candid man, fully understanding the situation, will hold them responsible for any hardships consequent on the building of the road.

We should state in this connection that Mr. Watt, being called away by urgent business elsehere before he had completed his work, appointed Mr. J. A Guyer in his stead, but in nearly all instances Mr. Guyer only carried out instructions and estimates of Mr. Watt.

UNDER the head of "Geography and such" in our last issue we referred to the reservation in our midst, and to the obstacles presented in floating ties and lumber down the river and through the reservation. In that article we laid the blame to some extent on Mr. Fay, the Indian agent. We have since been informed that Mr. Fay is only obeying orders, and that the blame rests entirely with those above him in the department. We, therefore, cannot censure Mr. Fay any more than we can censure the soldier who carries out the orders of his superior officer.

Nevertheless the retention of the land within the reservation as a reservation and the consequences flowing from so doing are a serious and crying evil and one not understood by those in power. If the people here will bear with us we propose to dwell upon this subject in season and out of season until Congress and the Department shall take notice of our well founded complaints and give us relief. We shall probably ask the people to assist us in so doing by giving their aid in some manner hereafter to be suggested. We want unanimity of action and energy in the matter and we do not despair; but that in some idle moment when senators and representatives will need a little rest from the grave and arduous duties of electing a door-keeper and of going into hysterics over the resignation of a pouter-pigeon senator who hops from his perch expecting the nation to lift him up again. We will make ourselves heard. At any rate we will endeavor by some means to put this matter in such a light that those in power can see on which side is the right and whether or not any argument of justice or policy can be found why a handful of Indians should be allowed to hold twenty miles square in the very heart of our best land in our growing country—a tract which we have to cross to go from one place to another and which is the key to this whole section of the state. On one side of the line which separates it from the possessions of the American settler "the wilderness has been made to blossom as the rose," whilst on the other it is in its primeval nakedness and neglect. We want to ascertain whether or not 400,0000 or 500,000 acres of land of the fine quality this land is, will remain forever in the possession of a very small number of idle and irreclaimable vagabonds whilst hundreds of men with strong arms and stout hearts are willing to begin the battle of life by breaking up the sod, making themselves homes, surrounding those homes gradually with comforts, and adding in every way to the wealth, progress and character of the country.

OUTRAGE.

A farmer residing in Greasewood precinct went to the mountains at the head of Wild Horse, cut and loaded about thirty poles for fencing. Just as he was about hitching up his team a couple of renegade Indians appeared on the scene and ordered him to throw off his load, which he refused to do, so the Indian mounted the wagon and threw them off, and the farmer went home—cursing.

What is to be done? Have the whites when they go to the mountains after wood and rails, got to go in an armed body? Or are a few worthless Indians wrapped in their blankets, to be suffered to depopulate this county? Farmers have been invited here to settle a section of country twenty miles wide by eighty long—good grain country—but not a stick of timber growing upon a foot of it; and must the settlers succumb to a few worthless Indians, let their farms go unfenced and do without fire wood. This state of affairs is becoming unbearable, and if these things are permitted by the agent and the Indian department, why, blood will be spilled and let those who are high in authority bear the blame when the rub comes. If the law will not protect white citizens we think there is enough of the spirit of 1776 left for citizens to help themselves.

THE hugest job that the late lamented legislature put up on the people, says the Jacksonville Times, was the insane asylum that is now being commenced at Salem. The tax-payers, already groaning under a heavy burden, will be still more sorely pressed, all because some speculators wanted more "mud" and thought the citizens of the State ought to furnish it. Our population and means are insufficient, and the exigencies do not warrant the expenditure of so vast a sum of money now, especially when the insane are being well cared for at reasonable cost. We hope the commissioners will not "crowd the mourners," but will give them an opportunity to breathe between calls for funds.

ARCHBISHOP CROKE, of Dublin, has taken up the gauntlet dropped by Gladstone. He arraigns the whole English government for its treatment of Ireland and the Irish, whom he styles "the most religious people in the world." He admonishes his people to resist the laws—in a passive manner. Not to come to an open collision, &c., &c. Notwithstanding his admonition, fearful riots are reported in different places—in one of which 29 men were wounded and one policeman killed. The two conflicting elements won't mingle. Trouble is in the near future.

THROUGH TO SPOKAN.—T. B. Harris, chief engineer of the Spokan division of the Northern Pacific railway, has arrived in Portland. The road will be completed to Spokan Falls next week, and on Friday the locomotive will enter the town. The work has been pushed with vigor, two miles being frequently covered by track layers in a single day.

As Henry Huges and Henry Moore were engaged in cleaning a well at the latter's residence near Kerbyville, the rope of the windlass broke and the bucket of dirt and rock that was being hauled up fell several feet onto the head of the former, bruising him severely. How he escaped instantaneous death is a mystery, as a pickhandle in the shaft was snapped in twain by the load. Mr. Huges is slowly recovering.

Jefferson Davis, by the advice of his friend, Judah P. Benjamin, who is now practicing law in London, will take up his residence temporarily in Canada, so as to be on British soil when his book, "The Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government," is published in London. That will enable him to secure a British copyright. The book will soon appear.

It is said that one-fortieth of the population of Sweden will emigrate to America during the present year—that, in fact, transportation has been secured for that number of people, upward of 100,000. The Swedes are a hardy, industrious and frugal people, and make valuable citizens. They will nearly all settle in northwestern states and territories and engage in agricultural pursuits. The census returns show that there are 400,000 Swedes in the United States already; and Bancroft, the historian, estimates that the descendents of Swedes number 6,000,000 or more. They acquire the English language with greater facility than any other branch of the Teutonic race.—Oregonian.
