The father of the James boys lived in Kentucky and was a Methodist preacher—said to be as effective an exhorter at a camp meeting as his sons afterwards proved to be on a battle field. Frank was born in Scott county Kentucky, in 1841 his parents removed to Clay county Missouri, soon afterwards where Jesse was born in 1845. In 1849 their father was one of the many adventurers who went to feel the field. A REMARKABLE FAMILY

A correspondent of the Lossburg (Va.) Mirror, gives the following interesting description of the maternal proclivities of a hin:

My neighbor J-has a pet cat, that gave birth, a few days since, to her henship decided to attack, and as the sequel proved, possess herself of this ready made household. Soas cat and kittens, ignorant of the approaching storm, were quietly sleeping side by side, the hen, with plumage raised, made a determined and furious attack upon the innocent mother of the kittens, and finally drove the cat out, and then, with apparent satisfaction, took the vacated place by the side of the sightless sleepers, who nestled closely to the self-imposed defender, while she in her peculiar dialect, was trying to reconcile them to the change of protec tors. About three times a day the lawful mother cat makes her appearance to furnish the food her young require, when a fight always ensues, but the cat with noble courage, and true maternal feelings for her children, would run the gauntlet of war, lie down in the box long enough to suckle her pets, while the hen constantly and vigorously, bit and pecked her, sometimes drawing blood. Then as soon as the hunger of her little ones was satisfied, she would yield her place through overpowering force, to the intruding hen, who, up to the time of this writing, is in possession of the box and kittens. A northern poultry journal recently stated that a brown leghorn rooster had laid an egg, but this is far from home. All doubts of the truth of the above incident can be put to rest, by calling on neghbor J ---, who takes pleasure in showing this novel sight.

LESSON IN DEBT PAYING.

[Crawfordsville Journal. ?

A pretty good thing on debt paying was got off by a minstrel company in this city recently. One dollar is made to pay the debt of six dollars in the foilowing manner: End man No. 1 owes the middle man $2, but savs he can pay him but $1, and crossing the stage hands him a dollar. The middle man owes end man No. 2, $2, but as the dollar he has just received from end man No. 1 is all that he has, he hands him adollar. End man No. 2 owes end man No. 1 $2, and hands the dolin debts have been paid, and end man No. 1 has $1 back. Then, as he owes pays his dues to the thinself by pass-who in turn squares himself by passpays his dues to the end man No. 2, ing it back to end man No. 1.
