been a few unimportant transactions during the week, but not enough to no change for almost six weeks has been recorded for prices paid for wheat. Exporters have discounted the fact that wheat would be difficult to secure, and stocked up early and are not over-anxious to buy at prices away above the market value. European advices are not very encourag ing, and the export trade is paying more attention to loading vessels than to buying grain. There is hardly an exporter in the trade that has ot wheat for a number of ships and some have very heavy stocks to carry them through the balance of the sea son. About 1,000,000 bushels of wheat have gone on ships this month from both northern ports and if the balance of the month keeps up as lively as the fore part, January will have quite a record as an export month Quotations range from 71c to 72c for
