To Start Shearing Machines. N. H. Cottrell left this morning for Veiser and other Idaho points. He bes to look after the sheep shearing

Charles Conningham explains why GOVERNOR'S DESK, he invariably does his shearing several weeks in advance of the other sheen men. In the first place experthe Most Important Measures on lenced shearers will not agree to shear his sheep for the same price per the Last Day-List of Eleventh head they shear other sheep because they have considerably heavier fleeces Following Bills are now in the and they cannot afford to. On this the shearing done very much earlier than the other sheep men because at the usual shearing time he cannot get shearers to do the work without pay ing them double what they get else where. So he engages the shearers a few weeks out of season and by paying them more than the usual price, gets the work done. His moral is, keep your sheep bred up to the top notch for excellence and get very much heavier fleeces even though it costs somewhat more to get the shearing done. He has finished shearing 5,000 head and has suspended operations a short time in order to get his sheds in the best shape for sheltering the shorn sheep and the next quota to be sheared. He is afraid to go ahead and shear as fast as possible on account of the possibility of bad weather, and he is determined to run no risks of the shorn garret until captured by the Indians sheep being exposed to storms. He will begin in a fe wdays the shearing of 10,000 head.
