Fifteen Hundred People at the Gates of St. Peter's at 6 This Morning.

VISITORS BEING ADMITTED ONLY DURING STATED HOURS.

With the Pope's Death His Relatives Lost Their Influence-Number of People Viewing the Remains Much Smaller Than Was Expected -

Rome, July 23.—At 6 this morning into the streets in their night clothes. liquors into the reservation, of the doors of St. Peter's were thrown No serious damage is reported. open. From then until 3 this afternoon a constant crowd took a last look at the remains of Pope Leo. At 3 the doors were again closed, only the specially invited being admitted between 4 and 5 this evening. This lection of fine fleeces for exhibit at march and target practice in the program will be carried out tomorrow and Saturday as well. dred were crowding against the barriers when 6 o'clock struck. Three companies of Italian grenadiers debouched from the vatican portico, where they had been waiting. One entered the portico while the other two formed in lines as a barricade to the cathedral doors. Inside the cathedral 50 carbiniers, aided by gendarmes, kept the crowd moving. It was a typical Roman crowd, chattering gaily and with few signs of mourning.

The open range on which they were went to roam along the Snake river in northern Walla Walla county, and temporarily imprisoned in fields fenced with barbed wire, the greater part of a band of 500 horses owned by Lou Matthews are reported suffering and dying of thirst.

Antagonisims Forgotten. boys and men raced up the steps at top speed. All were decorus inside, however. The catafalque was so placed that the pontiff's feet were inside that the pontiff's feet were side the railing. Some expressed taken and some scattered around the RIGHT OF WAY OWNED disappointment because they were building. unable to pay homage by assing the feet. The pontiff is fully robed. A noble guardsman is at each corner of the catafalque with the Palaing dividing them from the bluecoated Italian troops. All antagonism between the church and state is temporarily forgotten in mutual honor to the dead. Five more companies of troops and an ambulance corps are added outside, but the latter are not needed. The crowd is 10 times greater than at the Eastine guard on each side. The Swiss guards are in the rear, only a rail-

Crowds Not Large. The crowd is, however, far below that expected. At 12:30 the heat became so great it commenced to dwin- ed 16,000 troops. Great crowds and dle. Two officers were mulate upon the subject. no longer necessary and the people unhorsed and kicked by their mounts passed in and out as they pleased. but neither were seriously hurt, Some comment was caused because the crowd was so much smaller that attended after the death of Pius IX.

The difference is accounted for by the authorities by the fact that political feeling died out, the intense heat and the absence of tourists.

Snubbing Leo's Nephews. Manchester, Eng., July 23.-The Guardian's Rome correspondent has learned privately that the pope's nephews have been quickly made to feel the difference in their position now that their illustrious relative is dead. One nephew gave his card giving country friends permission to view the remains, but the officials informed the bearers they must bring more influential introduction. The officials of the Vatican show a marked desire to make the nephews consirous they are now of no importance
