great Southwest. But what would be far better, besides being easier done (if projected with the same energy and skill) would be the building up of an independent packing house either in the Northwest, with North western money and brains, or at some point to which the Northwest is directly tributary; which is frequently and inexpensively visited by Northwestern stockgrowers and shippers, and to which their stock is shipped.

The natural course of exportation cannot be diverted by subscribing for stock in institutions of those lines; and if such investments are going to pay, they could be made to pay better by subscribing in ventures to which the stockholders would have a better chance to contribute the raw products, thus putting the whole arrangement upon a co-operative basis.

There is no natural or business reason why concert of effort cannot build up a great independent packing institution in the Northwest with Northwestern capital and patronage. Further, location (geographical and transportation), and the fact that it is at once the center and outlet of the stockraising industries of the Northwest, make Pendleton a logical location for such an industry.

Is it possible to expend an equal sum of money more effectively in the promotion of the business interests of the city than in paving Main and Court streets? The importance of this finds very meagre appreciation among many who are really vitally interested. Its importance to the community at large and to the business interests especially, is really in the same proportion as the length of "Byers' lane" and the expense of making permanent and lasting improvements upon it is compared with the length of Main and Court streets put together. Paved streets would benefit Pendleton as much as paved streets benefit Portland—in proportion to the size of the towns and the amount of travel upon the streets, while the direct pecuniary benefit to the average inhabitant is practically the same.

The expectation now is that the extension of the Pendleton sewer system will be completed by November 1, according to contract. From that date forward, the city will have in operation a system that will effectively drain a city of 20,000 inhabitants. For probably 10 years to come the sewerage of this city will require practically no attention except to build an occasional lateral as the growth of the town demands. With this system completed and in operation, and as perfect water works as any city in the state holds, backed by a great abundance of the purest water, the city has two great and prospective inducements to hold to present locations here.

Next Wednesday at the courthouse all interested may hear a detailed and authoritative statement of both sides of the railroad taxation question. Don't neglect this and other opportunities to post up on this issue, which has been a live and acrid one in all the states for the past 30 years. The whole subject will, in some shape or other, go to a referendum vote in the comparatively near future, and if there is a taxpayer who can attend this meeting, but does not, because of carelessness, forgetfulness or neglect, he is a chump. If there is a taxpayer who could have attended "but just didn't think of it when the time came," he ought to be disfranchised.

NAMES OF FABRICS.
 The names of fabrics are in many cases derived from the place where they were first manufactured; in others, the name is bestowed in honor of the place where it first became known to commerce, or from materials composing its texture. Thus the name of muslin is derived from Mosul in Asia.
 Cambric comes from Cambrai, gazette from Gaza, balise from Balis; dimity from Damietta, and jeans from Jean.
 The name damask is an abbreviation of Damascus; stin is a corruption of Zaytown, in China.
 Velvet is the Italian "velluto," woolly, and is traceable further back to the Latin vellus, a hide or goat's hair. Serge comes from Xerges, the Spanish for a certain sort of blanket. Bandana is derived from an Indian word signifying to bind or tie.
 Alpaca is the name of a species of llama from whose wool the genuine fabric is woven.
 Calico is named for Calicut, a town in India, where it was first printed. Blanket bears the name of Thomas Blanket, a famous English clothier, who added the trademark of two lions into England in the fourteenth century.

WHEATGROWERS' UNION.
 A plan to raise the price of wheat throughout the world is on foot, according to the London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. This correspondent says that the Daily Mail, a newspaper of London, is authority for a statement from Warsaw to the effect that an American association, stated to number 28,000 farmers, has asked the Russian ministers of finance and agriculture for their assistance in raising the current price of agricultural products, especially wheat.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST NEWS.
 A mastodon tooth was found Sunday last in Tide Creek, near St. Helens, Or.
 The Minnie Healy copper mine is in litigation at Helena, Mont. It is valued at $100,000.
 The new transcontinental freight rates will go into effect October 12. All points on the Pacific coast are affected.
 Twelve arrests have been made of men suspected of robbing the Hotel Rhin at Tacoma. All have been released for lack of evidence.
 So many children were drowned in the Hepper flood that the teaching force in the public schools at that place has been reduced by one.
 Fifty gravel cars arrived Tuesday at La Grande, which will be used in graveling the entire O. R. & N. road from that place to Huntington.
 The Fortune Mining Company, of Spokane, has bought the Red Lion group of mines in the Greenhorn district, Grant county, paying therefor $20,000.
 The Mormon conference at Boise has closed. It was largely attended.

INDEPENDENT PACKING.
 The scheme to induce Oregon, Washington and Idaho people to invest in the proposed independent packing house at Kansas City, is a very meritorious one—from the standpoint of Kansas City and the

THE OLD SANTA FE TRAIL.
 It wound through strange scarred hills, down canyons lone
 Where wild things screamed with Its milestones were the bones of pioneers.
 Bronzed, hardy men, often with a third moustache,
 Lashed on their beasts of burden to ward the sea;
 An epic quest it was of elder years,
 For fabled gardens of for good, red gold.
 The trail men stove in iron days of old.
 Today the steam god thunders
 through the vast,
 While dominant Saxons from the
 hurdling trains
 Smile at the aloof, Mexican Indian,
 Who offer wares, keen-colored, like their past.
 Dread dramas of immitigable plains
 Rebuke the softness of the modern man.
 No menace, now, the desert's mood
 of sand;
 Still westward lies a green and golden land.
 For, at the magic touch of water,
 blooms
 The wilderness, and where of yore
 the yoke
 Tortured the tollers into dateless
 toms.
 Lo! brightsome fruits to feast a mighty folk.
 —Richard Burton in The Century.

"PAP" DIDN'T LIKE IT.
 George Ade had been for a visit to the old home, at Lafayette, Ind., and returned to Chicago reeking with the steeper stories. One of them relates to a "street fair" recently held in that place. Many of the freaks of the fair displayed boarded with the keepers of a cheap hotel, who consequently was at liberty to visit without charge, any of the exhibits. One morning after the fair had been running a few days, a country boy appeared at the hotel and told the proprietor that he had his "pap" brought a load of hay to town for the animals in Hoston's show, but the load upset.
 "Had yer breakfast?" inquired the landlord.
 "Nope. My started yore sun-up."
 "The man insisted that the hay take breakfast then. The boy did so and protested that he was afraid 'pap' wouldn't like it. After breakfast the man said:
 "Ever see Lulu, the wild girl?"
 "Nope. Hain't been 't town since last fall."
 "Better come and see her. Won't cost a cent."
 "But 'pap' won't like it."
 "Oh, never mind, it won't take long."
 After they had visited Lulu they visited the two-headed boy, the skeleton man, the switchback railway, the animal show, each time the boy warning the man that "pap" wouldn't like it, but each time being overruled by his generous guide. At last, toward sundown, the boy positively talked at going in to see the girl with the elephant feet, on the score that he was sure "pap" wouldn't like it.
 "Well, by the way, where is your 'pap'?" asked the man.
 "He's under the load of hay."—New York Times.

GENERAL NEWS.
 Police officers have been placed on the housetops in New York, with field glasses, to lookout for daylight burglars.
 Steamer Park Bluff was capsized in a fierce storm Sunday evening on the Mississippi, and Engineer Ferguson was drowned.
 Sir Thomas Lipton is suffering from appendicitis and physicians gave out yesterday that an operation would not be necessary.
 Two negro desperadoes, who were passing counterfeit money at Memphis, Tenn., were taken into custody by 15 policemen yesterday.
 The Italian Young Men's Christian Association, at Stamford, Conn., which has raised by the police, was found to contain a saloon running at full blast.
 The Mississippi river is rising rapidly from recent rains and farmers are preparing to escape the flood. This makes the third overflow of the river this season.
 The Cape Colony supreme court has decided that the insurance on the lives of the Boer soldiers who were killed while fighting against the English can be collected.
 While on her way to school, Laura West, a 5-year-old girl of Brooklyn, was accidentally shot and killed by a watchman who was chasing some boys. The man has been placed under arrest.
 A large block of stone coping fell from the top of the 20-story Flatiron building in New York yesterday, and a man standing a block away had his leg broken from a piece of the flying rock.
 All the missing men who were supposed to have been caught in the cave in the Wabash railroad tunnel at Pittsburg Saturday, have been accounted for by one. The men refuse to return to work.
 The second meeting of the Order of Carnation has just been held in New York. The order was formed at the death of President McKinley, and its object is to get young men to take part in political affairs.
 Mrs. Alyn, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who sailed from England August 12, with a fortune of several thousand dollars, has not been heard from since she landed in New York. It is believed she was robbed and murdered.

RELIQUARY MASSACRE.
 Old Daggr Found Under Ground Near Whitman Monument.
 A relic, which if it had tongue could probably tell the story of the massacre of the missionary, Marcus Whitman and his party, was found in an underground cavity near the Whitman monument yesterday by Thomas M. Heninger, says the Walla Walla Union. Mr. Heninger, in company with E. S. Waterman, was digging on a ranch when he struck something hard. The object was unearthed and proved to be a rusted and bent dagger of old pattern. It was found three feet underground.
 The wooden handle crumbled to pieces when Heninger picked it up, and although the two men examined it closely no date or mark of identity could be found owing to its rusty condition. The blade was still very sharp, in spite of its condition, giving ample evidence of the manner in which men carried their arms when the weapon was used. Because it was found so close to the monument and was evidently an old style dagger, those who are best acquainted with the situation feel reasonably sure it is one of the weapons carried by the troops against the Indians at the battle of Old Pattern. It was found by the reaper of a field which helped murder the missionaries.
 Mr. Heninger was offered $250 for the relic yesterday but refused, saying he intended to present it to President S. B. L. Penrose, of Whitman College.

NERVOUS WOMEN.
 Women who are almost distracted at the slightest noise, who are easily frightened and unable to sleep, should commence taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at once. Hundreds of women suffering from Female Complaints have voluntarily testified to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters without relief, until they got Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets, which I used only a short time and am now perfectly well. Thank you for the speedy recovery. I am gratefully yours, Francis I. Gannor, Vancouver, Wash. Send to W. H. Hooper & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., for a free trial package. (Not like them!) P. W. I have been suffering for eight months and tried many remedies without relief, until I got Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets, which I used only a short time and am now perfectly well. FEWER CHINESE.
 Decrease in Number at Astoria Very Marked.
 Astoria, Sept. 15.—There are, according to the statement of a prominent Chinese resident here, but 300 Chinamen now in the city. This number includes those Celestials who recently returned from the Alaskan campaign. The Chinese population of Portland is between 3,000 and 4,000. Fifteen years ago Astoria's Chinese population was as large as Portland's. The Chinese population was 700. The closing down of several local canneries had the effect of driving the Chinese elsewhere.
 The statement is made that the number of deaths among the Chinese in Astoria and Portland is greater than the number of Chinese coming into this country. Every outgoing steamer takes a returning Chinese contingent and the population is rapidly diminishing. It is predicted that a Chinese will be a rarity 15 years hence in the Oregon cities.

MALARIA Germ Infected Air.
 Malaria is not confined exclusively to the swamps and marshy regions of the country, but wherever there is bad air this insidious foe to health is found. Poisonous vapors and gases from sewers, and the musty air of damp cellars are laden with the germs of this miserable disease, which are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood and transmitted to every part of the body. Then you begin to feel out of sorts without ever suspecting the cause. No energy or appetite, dull headaches, sleepy and tired and completely fagged out from the slightest exertion, are some of the deplorable effects of this enfeebling malady. As the disease progresses and the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, boils and abscesses and dark or yellow spots appear upon the skin. When the poison is left to ferment and the microbes and germs to multiply in the blood, liver and kidney troubles and other serious complications often arise. As Malaria begins and develops in the blood, the treatment to be effective must begin there too. S. S. S. destroys the germs and poisons and purifies the polluted blood, and under its tonic effect the debilitated constitution rapidly recovers and the system is soon clear of all signs of this depressing disease. S. S. S. is a guaranteed purely vegetable remedy, mild, pleasant and harmless. Write us if you want medical advice or any special information about your case. This will cost you nothing.
