FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1903.

If I to someone can reveal a nobler view of life and work; if I can reach some spirit true; with but one word if that word mean his betterment, though without recognition, I shall die content.

If I can serve the cause of truth and liberty, if I can help some poor man to make men free, if I can lift some burden from the toiling poor, although unknown and friendless, I will ask no more.

—J. A. Edgerton in Wishire's Magazine.

Miss Ware is not the only be-smirched angel in the land office service in Oregon. She was probably the most original schemer in the business in the state, but her operations were limited. There are others coming to the front as fast as the iron hand of investigation can tear away the veil. This will be a busy year in the federal courts of Oregon.

Somebody connected with the Alaskan boundary convention made an awkward blunder in giving out the news of the American victory last Saturday. It will be in order now for the commission to take up the boundary between facts and imagination, in relation to its actions, and ascertain where that shall be fixed, so the anxious reporters may not get mixed again.

Pendleton can take a valuable lesson from Ogden in the way of accommodating her guests during the irrigation meeting. The homes of Ogden were thrown open to the visitors, the residents promising the local committees that they would not charge above a stated price for the accommodations. After the hotels were filled the local reception committees, each of which were assigned to a state delegation, took the delegates to the residences, which had placed a list of rooms at the disposal of the committees, and the delegates were placed in good quarters, with the least possible friction or confusion. Everything was satisfactory, and Ogden in this way accommodated 1200 visitors, where she had made preparations for but 500. The residents of Pendleton should make a list of the accommodations that can furnish the prices they will charge for the same, and hand the list to the hotel accommodation committee, consisting of Leon Cohen, J. V. Tallman and C. E. Roosevelt, so they can get their work organized, and be prepared to provide for the visitors. The convention will probably attract 400 people to the city, including visitors and delegates.

The East Oregonian takes this method of warning its readers and the citizens of Umatilla county, in general, of the presence in the county of an outfit representing some photograph enlarging institution. The practices of these grafters are so well known that it seems useless to repeat them, yet, for fear that someone may be taken in by them, this word of warning is sounded. This outfit is preparing to travel through the southern and western portion of Umatilla county, by team, and will soon be in evidence in the country districts around Echo, Pilot Rock, Ridge, Alba and Ukiah, and the people should steer clear of them. Their methods are questionable, and you will be "trailed" if you deal with them. Don't allow them to take any hard cash out of Umatilla county this season. If you want work in this line, patronize some of your home institutions on which you can depend, and which in return, patronize other home institutions, and keep the money in circulation in the country. Beware of the picture enlarging outfit, and when you are solicited by them, just shut the door and say that you read their history in the East Oregonian.

The Canadian commissioners to the Alaskan boundary convention became infuriated at the prospect of surrendering to the United States that portion of the Alaskan coast, which has been in dispute since the territory was first sold to this country, and walked out, without signing the treaty with the other members of the commission. The English members, recognizing the justice of the American contention, signed the agreement and settled the affair in a broad and liberal manner. The United States had made no claim for territory, not purchased from Russia. She had not juggled with boundary lines, nor quibbled over the meaning of plain geographical terms, and the commission has dealt justly and honestly with this country, even though the decision delivers to the United States some of the choicest territory on the Canadian coast. This government paid hard cash for that territory, and has been jockeyed out of the use of it, and spent millions of dollars in trying to gain rightful pos-usual disaster for Oregon, to our very doors. Compared to the Atlantic coast, the shipping of the Pacific coast has been most fortunate. Happily, a very insignificant proportion of the lives involved in coast traffic has been sacrificed to the sea on the Oregon coast. Its perilous reefs are by-words with sailors, too.

The government is going to probe the land frauds to the bottom. Yes, but care will be taken that they will not be probed deep enough to hurt anybody's political chances. It all hinges on that point. Can somebody without a reputation at stake, be plucked? Can some clerk or understrapper be roasted without scorching the whiskers of the real criminal in the next pew? It may be a close shave, but it won't hurt anybody big.

It is no wonder that laws are violated and information against criminals is lacking when occasion demands, where but one-fourth of the legal voters of city register and qualify to take part in a municipal election in which a mayor and five councilmen are to be chosen. Can you blame criminals for taking advantage of such lethargy? The community must back the law or it is of no force.

Pendleton has produced some of the greatest horses ever seen on an American track, yet when her horsemen wish to enjoy a race meet, they must go away from home. Before another year passes, an agricultural and racing association should be formed here, and the surrounding country invited to help celebrate. Where are the business men and horsemen of Umatilla county at, anyway?

Taking a tip from the morning paper's bold gambling story yesterday morning, the gamblers stood on the sidewalks until midnight last night, so the police force and district attorney could walk down the streets and see for themselves that they were not in the games. It was an awful chilly night for such an experience, but the gamblers were equal to the occasion.

The president is very anxious to have the Panama canal treaty discussed and further negotiations opened with Colombia, at the extra session of congress. That presidential railroad excursion around the circle this summer fixed the isthmian canal question. No canal will be built during Roosevelt's term.

No wonder the wood trust advises the people to burn coal. There is more profit in $3 coal than there is in $7 wood. It reminds one of the remark made by a French empress, when told that the poor had no bread to eat. "Bless their souls," said she, "why don't they eat cake?"

A DANGEROUS MAN.

The Milwaukee Sentinel has the following to say in regard to Governor La Follette, of that state: "And this is the record he is making from day to day. The governor of Wisconsin, chosen by the people to wisely and impartially execute the laws, is going about the state, talking to men of doing business through governmental machinery. It is one colossal exhibition of waste, extravagance and incompetence."—Chicago Chronicle.

MANGLED MOTTER TONGUE.

The telephone girl is progressive. For years and years in repeating a number which had a zero included, she would always say "ought." For instance, if a subscriber who had "twenty-four thirty," the telephone girl would repeat, "Twenty-four three ought." When some subscriber who had "two-four-three-eight," she would say, "Two-four-three-eight, that is a splendid victory, 'ought,' and tell the subscriber to "look in the dictionary."

ANARCHISM IN HIGH PLACES.

The secretary of the treasury has been visiting the law agents by permitting banks in certain cases to substitute other than the United States bonds as security for public deposits. This financial bill, which was passed in the session, which failed of passage, provided for this substitution of other bonds and also for the depositing of customs revenue in national banks equal to international revenue. But the secretary on his own authority has enacted one provision of the bill, and by assuming the power to deposit any national revenue which may have accumulated in the treasury he has made the other provision of the bill unnecessary or all practical purposes.

THE LOST GALLEON.

Her decks are drowned in sea-wrack, her guns are sunk in sand, where she lies in the still water, hard by the shore.

There are dead in her gilded cabins, there are white bones in her hold, with her offers rotting plank from plank, brimming o'er with gold.

Broad o'er the beam they built her, that they might load her deep, they sowed a goodly harvest for, fierce salt seas to reap.

They freighted her with merchandise, with gold they weighted her well, ere they steered full slowly to her bourne their castled citadel.

God rest their souls where they lie low, where she swirled down of yore.

With shrieking and shrieking, a slave, a stone's throw from the shore!

Nor all their piled-up ingots, nor all their gold, could save—

Under the cliff towering, the Don and the chained slave.

Far o'er the gray-green waters goes sound of gold and water.

White caps are on the breakers and, but she lies lost and moldered, with so far as is concerned, there is no sign that he is scared and Secretary Shaw, of President Roosevelt's cabinet, has taken the Ohio stump with a mouthful of well cooked statistics. It is now evident that Hanna now realizes that he is no match for Johnson in a political contest. From the freedom with which he uses poker terms, however, it would appear that he might make a better showing in the great American game.—Louis Post Public.

SCARED AT TOM JOHNSON.

That Tom Johnson has frightened the republican leaders to the point of desperation is plain enough; and if the intensity of their fears is evidence of the drift of things, Ohio, it is not far from making headway against their enormous majority there. Senator Hanna's billingsgate vocabulary has been called into play, always a sign that he is scared, and Secretary Shaw, of President Roosevelt's cabinet, has taken the Ohio stump with a mouthful of well cooked statistics. It is now evident that Hanna now realizes that he is no match for Johnson in a political contest. From the freedom with which he uses poker terms, however, it would appear that he might make a better showing in the great American game.—Louis Post Public.

DOLL MANUFACTURE.

The state department at Washington has received a report from Consul General Hughes at Coburg, Germany, which report tends to show the marked falling off in the doll trade of the world.

The Washington correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle says: "According to Consul Hughes, who reviews the situation under the caption, 'The Doll Trade of Thuringia, the trade with the United States for the year ending June 30, 1903, amounted to $1,840,012 out of a total export of $3,552,607, but Thuringia's trade with the other nations slumped badly. England did a very poor doll business for years which seemed to be hard to tell. Canada did somewhat better in the cheap class of dolls, but this trade might be much improved.

Australia and other British colonies have not ordered anything like the same amount of goods as in previous years.

Austria-Hungary may be said to have practically stopped buying in Thuringia, Switzerland, Netherlands and Belgium each are doing only a small business in low grade goods.

Argentine Republic has done a small business for years which seems to remain about the same; the same may be said for Brazil. Cuba's trade has not picked up since the war. The Central American trade has never been large, and is late in falling off entirely. The slump is traceable in various nations of the world.

French competition is supposed to be increasing in some cases for the falling off of Thuringia's trade.

THE LEAD PENCIL.

The lead pencil, as generally used today, is not made from lead, but from graphite. It derives its name from the fact that prior to the time when pencils were made from graphite metallic lead was employed for the purpose. Graphite was first used in pencils in 1795, when the discovery in 1565 of the famous Cumberland mines in England. This graphite was of remarkable purity and could be cut into thin sheets by treatment by cutting it into thin slabs and increasing them in width.

For two centuries England enjoyed practically a monopoly of the lead pencil industry, however, the lead pencil industry had found its way into Germany.

In 1781 Caspar Faber, in the village of Stein, near the ancient city of Nuremberg, Bavaria, started in a modest way in the manufacture of lead pencils. Nuremberg, however, remained the center of the lead pencil industry for more than a century. For five generations Faber's descendants made lead pencils.

It is stated that the recent failures of national banks were not reflected in the slightest degree in Mexican financial circles, contrary to the general expectation this side of the line. The same general fact was true during the July disturbances in Wall Street. Mexican securities suffered very little.

The first faint glimmer of the dawn of the day of a European confederation is seen in the movement which is rapidly gaining ground to submit all international disputes to the governments to arbitration. France and England are the first to actually make a treaty to that end.

Miss Cora Ramsey, of Grant's Pass, has used the city marshal for $10,000 damages for searching her for a sum of money, which she was accused of stealing.

CANCEROUS ULCERS
ROOTED IN THE BLOOD.

After the age of 45 or 50, when the vital powers are naturally weaker, it is noticed that a hurt of any kind heals slowly and often a very insignificant scratch or bruise becomes a bad ulcer or pain or inconvenience, and it is not until it has become a cancerous growth, that the sufferer realizes the extent of the trouble. A small pimple came on my jaw, but gave me no trouble, and I should have forgotten it, but it had it not begun to inflame and itch; it soon became a cancerous growth, and it was not until it had become a cancerous growth, that the sufferer realizes the extent of the trouble. A small pimple came on my jaw, but gave me no trouble, and I should have forgotten it, but it had it not begun to inflame and itch; it soon became a cancerous growth, and it was not until it had become a cancerous growth, that the sufferer realizes the extent of the trouble.

Whenever a sore or ulcer is slow in healing then you may be sure something is radically wrong with your blood. Some old-timer or poison that has been slumbering there for years, is beginning to assert itself, and breaks out and becomes a bad ulcer and perhaps the beginning of Cancer. These old sores are rooted in the blood, and while washes, soaps, salves, etc., keep the surface clean, they are not healing. A blood medicine to purify and strengthen the general system is what is needed, and S. S. S. is just such a remedy. No poison is so powerful and no germ so deadly as the germ of cancer, and this great vegetable blood remedy cannot touch it, and ulcers of every kind quickly yield to its wonderful curative properties. If you have an old sore or ulcer, write us all about it, and our advice or any information you may desire will be given by our physicians without charge.
