

LAW AND EQUITY OF IRRIGATION

steps looking towards the construction of reservoirs in our own state and other western states. It must be remembered that for the next few years at least its entire attention and all money available for that purpose will be used in the construction of reservoirs on a large scale; too large for individual, corporate and district entities. Then, the irrigation districts can construct the smaller reservoirs, or, say, from a few thousand to a few hundred thousand dollars capital. All will have to bear the proportionate share of the cost, and every man's land will stand its proportionate share of the tax. In this way no money will go to water speculators, and all will receive water at actual cost.

The national laws should be amended so that if within one of these districts there are a few farms here and there upon which final proof has been made, or government land which has not been entered, any bonds given by such district may become a lien upon that land, and the government patented lands. The government has a law so far as applies to land taken up under any of its reservoir sites and which are not yet turned upon its supply from reservoirs and dams constructed by the government, but it has no law applicable to lands which may be public lands and within the boundaries of an irrigation district not depending upon the government for the water supply.

Will Economize Water.
To illustrate the advantages which the irrigation district may have over the present conditions let us take one valley, for example, of say fifteen farmers. Let us assume that those fifteen farmers own in the aggregate twenty-four hundred acres, to properly irrigate the twenty-four hundred acres, if the water is properly distributed, it is safe to say that the entire acreage could properly be irrigated by a constant flow of sixteen hundred inches of water. In fact, I think twelve hundred inches would do it. In considering this it should be remembered that the larger the body of water the larger the proportionate number of acres that can be irrigated with that body of water. One inch might not irrigate one acre, but ten inches will easily irrigate ten acres, while one hundred inches will easily irrigate one hundred and fifty acres and so on in proportion.

Under district ownership we are safe in assuming that sixteen hundred inches would irrigate the twenty-four hundred acres, and that the pro rata and under charge of competent water superintendents, who would see that no man was using it when not needed, and that when being used it was wasted.

Present System No System at All.
Now let us suppose that the stream flowing through this valley carries sixteen hundred inches of water. Under the present system the man who first settles upon the stream settles at its mouth. As strange as it may appear it will be found on investigation that in many of the valleys were settled first, and as the country would settle upon the source of the stream, the man who first settled settled at the mouth of the river, took up one hundred and sixty acres and appropriated three hundred inches of water. The man who next took up one hundred and sixty acres and appropriated three hundred inches of water. The man who next took up one hundred and sixty acres and appropriated three hundred inches of water. The man who next took up one hundred and sixty acres and appropriated three hundred inches of water.

The Irrepressible Conflict.
Here we have six farmers owning 840 acres of land with the entire stream appropriated. The remaining district. The district, by condemnation proceedings, if found necessary, will become the entire proper regulations and under water superintendents and ditch bosses it will be found that the lower settlers on the stream can be supplied by giving the water part of the time in place of all the time; that every man can receive his pro rata and every farm be properly irrigated. Under the present system will have fifteen prosperous homes in place of six. The productivity of the valley will be increased tenfold and the first six appropriators not damaged at all, but on the other hand, in many respects, will be benefited.

I will venture to say that there are more in this convention who live in a neighborhood where crops are raised by irrigation but can recall instances where a man has been decreed by the courts to be the owner of a water right of a certain amount who does not need the amount of water decreed him by the court, yet prevents others from using it. How many may recall others who use more water than they need and even injure their crops unknowingly, and who do so for the purpose of trying to hold the entire amount of their appropriation and prevent some neighbor, against whom he may have a pre-

WILL BE GOVERNED BY HIS CONSTITUENTS.

Has Sent Letters of Inquiry to All Parts of the County—He Says Amend the Law and Adjourn—Replicates Favor the Special Session.

Dr. C. J. Smith was seen this morning in regard to his position on the special session of the legislature, and stated that he had at this time no opinion, but was waiting to hear from the county.

In order to find out the condition of the county and the desires of the people Senator Smith has mailed over 25 letters, sending them to all of the principal school districts of the county, and one to the mayor of each town; also one to the county judge, asking them what is the condition of their finances, and what would be the result of no session. As yet he has received but few answers, but all of them are in favor of a special session, saying that the schools and cities would be embarrassed by not having a tax levy.

While Governor Chamberlain was in the city he and Dr. Smith talked the plan over, and the governor thought that it was a good way to determine the sentiment of the people, and expressing a desire to see the letters received. Until all, or the majority of the letters have been answered Dr. Smith will make no statement as to his opinion in regard to the special session.

He would wish to settle the tax question, and if possible, to adjourn, not tacking it up at this time to attempt any other legislation.

PENDLETON RETAIL MARKETS
Quotations on Staples Furnished by Local Merchants and Revised Daily.

Wheat is quoted at the mill at 64 to 65 cents, with little doing. The reported heavy buy, in fact, has extended over a period of some weeks and the amount purchased at any one time is about 5,000 bushels. There is a big movement. Altogether, during the past month or six weeks the mills have purchased something like 100,000 bushels. The market for wheat is dull. The holiday trade is expected to be heavy this year, owing to the fact that the crop is better than the interior, on account of the excellent conditions of the roads. So far this fall, the movement of flour, feed, and other supplies sent to the interior has been very active. The importance of this city as a wholesale trading point, for the merchants in the Grant and Southern Umatilla county towns, is becoming more and more recognized and vastly more merchandise has been into that country this fall than ever before.

INCREASE IN VALUE

HISTORY OF ONE QUARTER SECTION NEAR FREEWATER

Land Upon Which a Loan of $350 Was Made—The Refused Now Worth More Than Eight Thousand Dollars—All Due to Irrigation and Rational Farming.

W. T. Shaw, of Freewater, while in the city attending the irrigation convention, related a story about irrigation in Umatilla county which is worth repeating every time one thinks of it.

Six years ago he bought a quarter section of gravel land in Hudson Bay district, and was to pay $650 for it, in the raw state. It was necessary for him to borrow $350 on the land, in order to make the payment, and he searched in vain for a bank in the county that would take a mortgage on a quarter section for the $350, and he was forced to get the money on other security.

He immediately began the reclamation of the land by slow degrees, and he seeded one half of it to alfalfa at this time, beside planting an orchard and otherwise improving it.

He had a fine on the time he was refused a loan of $350 on the 100 acres, he was offered $250 per acre for the entire tract, as a result of putting alfalfa on the land, and making it productive.

Mr. Shaw would not take this price for his land, as he fully expects for the alfalfa in the price of irrigated land in that portion of the county and really does not care to sell at any price, as the climate, soil and surroundings are congenial and the possibilities are great.

Other settlers in that district have experienced the same change in the value of land, and if the ditch companies now operating and seeking opportunities to divert the flood water from the river to the land, and in their undertakings, much more of this same character of land will be gradually reclaimed and brought to a high state of cultivation in that vicinity.

UNFORTUNATE LAD HAD DOUBLE PNEUMONIA.
Was Picked Up Sick and Friendless Two Weeks Ago, and Is Not Yet Known Whether He Was Under Influence of Liquor or Drugs.

West Preston, who was found on Main street several days ago, in a dazed condition, due presumably to opium, died last night at the county poor farm.

On the day in question the boy was arrested by marshal, but on the request of W. H. Hawley was allowed to go, and was taken into the store and put to sleep in the back room. At the time it was thought that he was either under the influence of opium or of liquor, but as no liquor could be smelled on his breath, it was thought to be a bad case of opium, and as soon as he had slept a while he would be all right.

In the evening the boy was taken to the Wheeler lodging house and put to bed; but during the middle of the night he got up and went out into the street in a semi-dazed condition and was found there by the marshal. He was taken back to the house and the county physician called, when it was found that he had double pneumonia.

SHERIFF FROM WEST VIRGINIA.

On His Way to Take a Timber Claim Near Baker City.

James Hart, of New Marlville, W. Va., was a guest at the Hotel Pendleton last night on his way to the interior of the state. Mr. Hart is a sheriff from the northern part of that state, and is here, so he says, to take up a timber claim near Baker City.

Mr. Hart is a quiet man and has little to say concerning himself or his work, but is an interesting talker concerning the state and the people from where he comes. When he said that he is here after a timber claim there was an innocent expression on his face that would lead one to think there was a man on the claim that was of more interest to the sheriff than the timber. He left on the early train for his destination.

HELD TO FEDERAL JURY.
James Luke, Indian, is in jail, but expects to give bail.

James Luke, an Indian from the reservation, was arrested yesterday, charged with stealing a horse from Alvin Barnhart, another Indian of the reservation. He brought the horse to this city where he sold it to William Reed. He was examined yesterday before Commissioner John Hatley and held for the federal grand jury, which meets in Portland next June.

The man was sent to the county jail and expects to furnish the $200 necessary to regain his freedom in a few days.

FRUIT EXHIBIT REMOVED.
Oregon Products in the Judd Building Were the Center of Attraction During Irrigation Meeting.

The committee in charge of the fruit exhibit which was placed in the Judd building in the office recently vacated by F. B. Clifton, was removed this afternoon.

The specimens of Oregon fruit, vegetables and grain seen there during the sessions of the irrigation convention were admired by every visitor to the city.

The corn from Athena, the apples, pears, potatoes and second-crop strawberries from the Milton and Freewater districts, and the fruit of different habits, honey sugar beet and other products from Malheur county were all convincing evidences of the richness of Oregon soil, and under the regenerating touch of water.

IRRIGATED APPLES.
W. T. Shaw Brings a Wonderful Product of One Wetting From the Hudson Bay District.

W. T. Shaw, one of the pioneer irrigators of the Hudson Bay district, in Umatilla county, brought to the irrigation convention one of the most attractive specimens of irrigated products on exhibition.

The specimen consisted of a limb of two apples, 12 in number, all clustered at the tip of a small limb not larger than the tip of a pipette. The apples were crowded so closely together that they formed a solid cluster.

They were all large size, perfect, free from worms or blemishes, and were the principal attraction in the fruit exhibit. They were grown on gravel soil with just one wetting during the season, and were pictures of thrift.

CATARH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation of some of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headache, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown pale, my nose was always stopped up, my breath was offensive, my eyes were watering, and I could not begin to realize what a serious condition I was in. I had never seen the medicine I was cured by.

SSS
It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the diseased blood, and the inflamed membrane are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and a reliable remedy for Catarh in all stages. Write if in need of medical advice; this will cost you nothing.
