OREGON MUST TAKE INTEREST IN LIVESTOCK CONVENTION.

ouglas Belts, President of Oregon Woolgrowers' Association, Urges All Stockmen to Attend Meeting of National Association in January-It is Oregon's Opportunity.

Douglas Belts, president of the regon Woolgrowers' association, was in the city yesterday evening, from his home on Birch Creek, and reports the weather very favorable for feeding.

Mr. Belts says stock are in good condition to begin the winter, and the stockmen are very glad to see ern Washington and Idaho wool must it usually presages open weather, later in the winter or an early spring.

Speaking of -e coming meeting of the National Livestock Association in Portland, Mr. Belts said he expect ed to go and take part in the deliber-ations of that body, and hoped to see a good attendance from this coun-ty and all Eastern Oregon as matters of vital importance to every stockman in the state would be considered at that meeting.

He especially hoped that all kinu of livestock would be fully represented at that meeting and expressed the wish to see cowmen from Eastern Oregon, as well as sheepmen, lending their assistance to the great work ahead of this organization.

At the meeting of this association the Bast, the southern and southwestern cattlemen predominate, but the delegates from tals state have been principally sheepmen. He bedeves the movement to organize and operate an Independent Packing Company, by the stockmen of the United States will be a great success, for the reason that it is being liberally supported from all parts of liberally supported from all parts of

The truth o. the matter about the Independent Packing Company, is that the stock could have been obtained in Kansas and Texas alone, without calling upon another state, but the promoters would not concentrate the business in this manner, but wish to see every state represented among the stockholders.

Mr. Belts thinks that Oregon stockdustry in the West, who will take part in the deliberations of that body. It will consider the questions that most vitally conserve stockwar. and Oregon stockmen will be able to hear these questions discussed by moving spirits, and able men, and will receive great benefit from the meeting.

Both parties to the contract are ull-blooded Indians and have been married according to the Indian rites for some time, but there is a law for some time, but there is a invsuit involving the ownership of over thought to be easier and cheaper to have the couple married according to law than to appoint a guardian for the girl, hence the ceremony.

Sheep on the foothills in the Birch Creek country are being fed now, and the frozen ground make it excellent feeding weather, as stock eat up all the feed thrown out, and none is wasted as in "soft" or muddy weather.

Speaking of the coming meeting of wool handled at Spokane justifies the industry at that point.
