The cords which bind us are spun out of our own brains. The politicians are as good as the people. We enjoy all the freedom we desire. The mind is the seat of all slavery. The revolution must begin in the soul. The world is a mirror in which is reflected the soul of the composite man. If there is war in the world it is because there is hate in the heart. If there is wretchedness without, it is because there is greed within. Ignorance and selfishness are the prime ministers of evil. Paradise is reserved for those who learn the lesson of wisdom and love.

IRRIGATION IS COMING.

John T. Whistler, chief engineer in the reclamation service for Oregon said a great deal in a few words in a brief interview in the East Oregonian, yesterday.

He said that nothing is certain about the government plans for irrigating Oregon, which means that every stake set, every line surveyed, every cross section made, every estimate of water and rainfall and snow fall now being gathered by his crews at work on the Echo reservation, must be cast up and balanced in the exacting scales of a committee of government experts, before even the remotest possibility of irrigating the Echo tract can be determined.

People should not be misled by reports from Washington, giving estimates of money set aside for irrigation in Oregon.

It is true, Oregon has paid $2,850,000 into the reclamation fund and F. H. Newell has said that over $2,000,000 are available for work in Oregon, but that does not mean that this amount will be applied to Oregon.

Far from it. The Oregon projects may be found wanting. The balances may tip the wrong way when the natural surroundings of the projects are finally summarized by the engineers.

One thing is certain, Oregon must get right before she gets government irrigation. No matter if the Echo and Malheur projects possess the necessary features for government work, until Oregon's crude irrigation laws are changed for the better, not a shovelful of dirt will be thrown on her government irrigation projects.

In the first place the surveys being made by Mr. Whistler must be completed and the figures and estimates made by him sent to Washington.

These estimates are then passed upon by a committee that never saw the land from which the estimates are to be made, perhaps, but that committee will put the facts in Whistler's report together and if his figures prove by absolutely mathematical calculation, that a certain tract of land at Echo or in the Malheur desert can be reclaimed within a certain reasonable cost, and that the sources and supply of water are certain enough and great enough to furnish a perpetual system of irrigation for that land, then, if Oregon's laws are right, government irrigation will have started toward Oregon.

SAVES MONEY FOR THE PEOPLE

The East Oregonian takes pleasure in giving the exact facts connected with the action of County Clerk Chamberlain, in giving the contract for printing the election ballots to this paper.

In the first place, the election ballots are to be let by the county clerk, by special contract, and are not part of the county printing. Cotton & Bellinger's Code, in section 2568, says:

"The county clerk of each county which will shorten the distance around the globe by 10,000 miles. This man has had no pull. He has climbed successively from one position to another until he finally became general manager of the Illinois Central railroad and now at the invitation of the president, accepts the highest professional position in the gift of the United States. This simple story gives new courage to every humble young man whose purpose is high and whose character is clean. Conscience and clean count for more than technical education. Had this man been a degraded sycophant, with great egotism and little human sympathy, would the president of the United States have selected him for this exalted task, even though his professional qualifications may have been high? Don't think that great egotism is broad education. To the clean, kindly, conscientious man the doorways to success are wide open.

"Once a vagabond, always a vagabond," is not a true saying. J. F. Stratton, the Colorado mining millionaire, was kicked out of his home in Wichita, Kan., by his wife, in 1890, because of his drunkenness and idleness. He was in the gutter. His wife took in washing to keep the family. Finally the Salvation Army picked Stratton up and put him on the street, wobbly, so to speak. He drifted out to Colorado Springs and someone suggested that he go prospecting. Being a Kansas carpenter, he didn't know gold quartz from blue mass, but someone grubstaked him and he went prospecting. It was a novel, new, clean, untempted life for Stratton, anyway, and he enjoyed it. Whether he found a mine or not, Ford was on his side. His Midas touch uncovered the Independence mine at Victor and yesterday at Colorado Springs the estate was settled up three years after his death and the Wichita drunkard left $600,000 to the good. From the gutter to the bank account was a short and gold-lined path for Stratton. Yet, even his six millions didn't obliterate the groveling instincts of the man, and his debauches were the talk of the camps. Money is something; but it isn't all.

William Lloyd, candidate for county commissioner from Milton, is making many votes and friends by his unassuming, quiet campaign. His portion of Umatilla county has great interests to be guarded and as Mr. Gilliland, the hold-over commissioner, resides in the opposite side of the county, Mr. Lloyd's neighbors, irrespective of politics, are cheerfully supporting him. On thing that is helping Mr. Lloyd in the campaign is the fact that the nomination came to him unthought. His friends gave him the nomination as a tribute to his ability and the principles of business economy which he practices in his private business and which will be his guide in office.

The record made by J. E. Cherry as principal of the Adams public schools, proves him to be an able, industrious, broad-gauge man, with especially high qualifications to handle the county's affairs as county clerk. He is well known all over Umatilla county, having resided in the county for 14 years and he has been active in public work all of that time.

MEN AS MACHINES.

Possibly some of my readers may not be aware that the human body forms an example of a machine which yields a very large return of energy in comparison with what is spent upon it in the way of fuel—that is to say, food.

Physicians calculate the work done by the body in foot tons. A foot ton of work being represented by the energy required to raise one ton weight one foot high. A working man in his day's labor will develop power, I suppose, equal to about 5000 foot tons, this amount representing both the innate work of his frame involved in the acts of living, and in his external muscular labor as a hewer of wood and a drawer of water.

A man's heart, in 24 hours, shows a return equal to 120 foot tons; that is, supposing we could concentrate all the work of the organ in that period into one big lift, it would be capable of raising 120 tons' weight one foot high. Our breathing muscles, in 24 hours, develop energy equal to about 21 foot tons, and when we add in the actual work of the muscles, makes about 3000 foot tons, or there by, as the daily expenditure of energy.

All this power, moreover, is developed on about eight and one-half pounds of food per day, the supply including food, water, and oxygen. No machine of man's invention approaches near to his own body, therefore, as an economical energy producer.—London Chronicle.

ORIGIN OF OREGON NAMES.

Dennis H. Stovall of Grants Pass, contributes the following to last Saturday's Portland Telegram:

"Oregon leads 'em all when it comes to names," declared the old timer, and, as no one took exception to his statement, he continued:

"Down in California the names are all set by the Spaniards, who seem to have a little more poetry in their make-up than the average American. They have San Jose, Los Angeles, Santa Catalina, Santa Monica, and all such names as that, which will make you go to sleep at 'em over an over a few times.

"But up here in Oregon the miner, the woodcutter and the trapper set the names. We have Whiskey Creek, Soap Creek, Lousy Creek, Squaw Creek, Muddy, Dusty, Tar Flat and Skunk Hollow. Not much poetry about them names, is there, but they are American, all right, and each place come by its name honestly.

"There is one mountain down in Southern Oregon that a fellow wore out an eight-dollar pair o' boots climbing 'em over so it went by the name of Eight Dollar mountain after that.

"The Washington folks who horse-river down there 'Trashty,' which meant wicked waters, the French called it La Riviere Rouge, because there is a lot of red mud in the water. The Chinamen, who are 'twisted the French 'Rouge' an' made it 'Rogue,' which name just fits it to a T.

"The name of the old town Corvallis is a sort of French jingle which means 'Heart of the Valley,' an' which is very pretty, but the English went on one better by namin' streams in the same neighborhood Muddy Creek, Soap Creek and Lobster Creek.

"But speakin' of streams, down in the southern end of Webfoot there have a lone creek, which was at one time known as the Salmon River, who followed the white miners like a lot o' leeches, tried to say Grouse

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

The other day I asked a dear little girl, five years old, that was the meaning of the word "success."

And without an instant's hesitation she answered:

"I mean to succeed—I thought everybody knew that."

"To succeed, I, what?" I ventured.

"Why, in what you want to do, of course."

I kissed the little girl once on the forehead and twice on her dimpled chin, and let it go at that.

MERCURY

A POOR CRUTCH.

Experience is a dear teacher, as those who pin their faith to Mercury find out sooner or later. This powerful poison combined with Potash, is the treatment generally prescribed for Contagious Blood Poison, but failure and disappointment is the invariable result. These minerals drive in the sores and eruptions, and apparently the disease is gone and the patient believes the cure permanent, but soon learns better when the old symptoms return almost as soon as the treatment is left off. You must either keep the system saturated with mercury or endure the tortures of sore mouth, ulcerated throat and the mortification that one naturally feels when the body is covered with disgusting sores, rashes, copper-colored blotches and other aggravating symptoms of this vile disease.

Mercury and Potash are poor crutches, and their use eventually breaks down the constitution, ruins the digestion and cause the bones to decay. S. S. S., a guaranteed purely vegetable remedy, is the only antidote for Contagious Blood Poison. It destroys every atom of the deadly virus, overcomes the bad effects of the mercury and cleanses the blood and system so thoroughly that never after are any signs of the disease seen. Nor is the taint ever transmitted to others.

We will send free our book on Contagious Blood Poison, which is interesting and contains full directions for treating yourself at home. Medical advice or any special information desired given without charge.
