

BECOMING A MOTHER

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Book containing valuable information free. MOTHER'S FRIEND The Bradford Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

"A commonplace life we say and we sigh; But why should we sigh as we say?"

The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky
Makes up the commonplace day.
The moon and the stars are commonplace things.
And the flowers that bloom and the birds that sing are commonplace things.
But dark were the world and sad our lot
If the flowers should fall and the sun shine not.
And God who studies each separate soul
Out of commonplace lives makes His beautiful whole.

TRIBUNE DEFENDS PHELPS.

The Tribune of Tuesday morning, May 17, declares substantially that although Mr. Phelps was the author of the tax law, known as the Phelps bill, and gave it his name and claimed the glory of its passage, Walter M. Pierce was to blame for the whole muddle that caused the extra session; and then the Tribune, dodging behind the shield of innuendo, says: "Senator Pierce knows why the defect in the tax law was added to the Phelps bill. He was the author of the senate bill that was withdrawn in favor of Phelps' house bill, and he knows all about it. He knows that the defect was made by a senate amendment. Was he not the author of it? Was it not held in the senate until the day before the last day and hurried pell-mell through the clamor for favorite bills of the last days of the house?"

Were not the claims of greatness on account of this bill heralded to the world by Phelps himself sufficient, the official records of the legislature prove the utter dishonesty of this effort to shift the responsibility from the shoulders of Phelps to Pierce.

The act referred to was House Bill No. 197. It was introduced in the house on January 19 by Phelps, of Morrow and on the same day referred to the house committee on assessment and taxation, of which Phelps himself was chairman.

The house journal shows that it remained with that committee, several amendments being made, until it passed the house on February 18, at about 8 o'clock in the evening. It reached the senate on January 19. On the same day it was handed over to the senate committee on assessment and taxation, and was reported on the 20th by R. A. Booth, chairman of that committee, and republican senator from Lane county, with two or three minor amendments.

It then passed the senate and went back to the house, where on motion of Mr. Phelps himself, (House Journal, p. 121) the senate amendments were concurred in, and the bill became an act, that was heralded to the people of the state as the Phelps bill. Later it was referred to by the Athena Press as the rattle-dazzle tax bill that cost the state an extra session of the legislature at an expense of about $70,000.

The name of Senator Pierce does not occur anywhere in connection with the Phelps house bill that became a law and was found defective.

Phelps, as chairman of the house committee on assessment and taxation, and Booth as chairman of the senate committee on assessment and taxation, are wholly responsible for its defects.

There is one feature of the coming irrigation law which the East Oregonian believes should be clearly defined. That is the provision for winter irrigation, in districts where the summer flow of streams is owned by old ditch owners but where the streams furnish an abundance of water for irrigation from November to May. An injunction, rendered by Judge Ellis in the circuit court of this county, in the Hudson Bay and Freewater ditch case, which permitted the use of flood waters on territory not covered by the summer flow of the Little Walla Walla river has reclaimed at least 6,000 acres of rich land, which was idle and unused before. While the summer flow of the stream will not permit of the constant irrigation of this new tract, the court injunction, which entitled these new settlers to use water from November to May, is a magnificent and beneficial order and this very principle should be ingrained into the irrigation law of the state. The lands and the streams must be rated as graded, and where the summer flow will not permit of any extension over new territory, the law should say how long and to what extent the flood waters of each stream shall be utilized. It is now an established fact that too much water is being used in irrigation in Eastern Oregon. It is also an established fact that winter irrigation will reclaim much of the idle lands of this section, and the irrigation commission must make this one of the leading features of the coming law.

The Spokesman-Review, a staunch republican paper, the leading organ of the party in Eastern Washington, has belittled the republican ticket and will support the state ticket of the democrats. The Review will take enough republicans with it into the democratic camp, this fall, to overthrow the railroad ring, which is the cause of the split in the ranks in that state. The stand of the Review is commendable. It refuses to submit to the lash. It chooses to exercise its own mind and voice in the interest of the people and its action is a standing example to independent papers all over the West. The day of the narrow partisan paper, which will swallow the whole program of the bosses is past. A newspaper that will not take a stand for the people, instead of any faction or party, deserves little respect. The people are greater than any party. The interests of the state are greater than the interests of any individual office seeker.

Frankly speaking, F. B. Holbrook, democratic candidate for joint representative between Umatilla and Morrow counties, has no claim on the democrats of Umatilla nor Morrow county, for the reason that he is owner and editor of a republican paper at Irigoin, which is engaged in fighting the democratic ticket in Morrow county. He cannot blame Umatilla county democrats for electing Dr. Cole, when he is helping elect the Morrow county republican ticket. After all, independence in politics is best and Mr. Holbrook emphasizes this statement by his fearless stand for the republican ticket in Morrow county. Morrow county sent the representative to the last session of the legislature. She has only about one-half the interest in the government irrigation project that Umatilla county has and Dr. Cole, as representative, will serve the interests of Morrow county much better than F. B. Holbrook could do, whose interests are wholly concentrated at Irigoin, whose ideas of a state irrigation law would naturally be influenced by the needs of his special tract of land and its surroundings, and whose position as a promoter for a private enterprise would cause the government to decline all of his recommendations and suggestions.

While the editor of the Tribune never wrote the unjust attack upon the O. R. & N. company and Judge Hartman, which appeared this morning, he is responsible and should be called upon by the company to explain how the people of Nolin were robbed of their land, as the paper asserts, and also if this company is in the habit of wantonly appropriating the right of way, even to the extent of enlisting county officials in the practice. This attack upon Judge Hartman falls upon the O. R. & N. officials whom the Tribune accuses of highway robbery, in conjunction with Hartman. The company will read with some surprise this attack upon their business practices in the frantic effort to injure Judge Hartman with the people of Umatilla county. The trouble with the Tribune is that Judge Hartman refused to sanction its graft upon the taxpayers and every attack it makes upon him only strengthens him with the taxpayers, because of its mercenary and selfish motives in abusing him. Even Mr. Walker and Mr. Gilliland are angry with him when they came to the $16 printing bill, and only allowed the Tribune $400 of that amount. Do the people wish any further explanation of the Tribune's attack on Judge Hartman?

Pendleton has arranged a farmers' institute for this city on May 26, that the addresses of the able experts who will speak on that occasion may be of benefit to the farming community. It is to be a strictly educational meeting. The addresses will be on practical farm subjects. Dairying, creameries, diversified crops, soil preservation and other kindred subjects will be discussed by speakers who have spent a lifetime in studying these matters. The state of Oregon furnishes free information to its farmers through the agricultural colleges. The people are entitled to this information. East Oregon receives too little of such information. The people should take advantage of this opportunity to enjoy the educational addresses from state teachers. This is one of the best counties in the state and yet it has less of the agricultural college than many less important counties, because of the location of these institutions in the Willamette valley. It is the aim of the state to distribute knowledge free to every locality. This is one of the occasions for such distribution of knowledge and the people of Umatilla county should avail themselves of it.

Baker county politics hinges on the repeal of the Eddy corporation tax law. That law is particularly obnoxious to the mining companies looking for get-rich-quick spots in Oregon. They say it prevents development, when the facts are it only prevents wild cat schemes. The people are satisfied with the Eddy law. It taxes the transient corporations in proportion to the privileges they enjoy from the state. The people of Baker county do not desire the repeal of the law. It is the mining promoters alone, who desire it. Not one bona fide corporation in Oregon has objected to the law.

There is no doubt about the sentiment of the Inland Empire on the portage road question. Without a second's hesitation, the delegation from the Columbia river counties in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, at the Dalles open river meeting yesterday, pledged their counties to raise, by popular subscription any deficiency in the state appropriation for the construction of the portage road. The people are willing to be taxed by the legislature in a state appropriation and they are more than willing to raise popular subscriptions for the completion of the road. When this kind of sentiment is given expression there is something underneath it. When people say they will put up money for public improvements of this kind, when they unhesitatingly propose private funds for such beneficial purposes, there is something underneath that spirit that is irresistible. The portage commission cannot hold back the tide of popular sentiment in favor of the construction of the portage at the earliest date. The people have spoken. The open river association is public sentiment crystallized and nothing will prevent the construction of that road. Join the association. It is the Inland Empire brigade and has come to stay.

The county court will meet in special session on Wednesday, June 8, the city council will meet on that evening in regular session, and the regular meeting of the Pendleton Commercial Association is on Tuesday, June 7. The East Oregonian suggests that the Commercial Association call a special meeting of the association for Wednesday evening, June 8, following the meeting of the city council, and to this meeting invite the members of the county court, and the members of the city council to consider the matter of constructing a quarter of a mile of model crushed rock country road, in the east end of this city near the hospital, on the main road leading to the reservation. These three bodies of business men should get together and agree upon the joint construction of such a piece of road. It is not a matter of helping any man or any portion of the county, but it is a question of demonstrating the feasibility of such a road, and for the purpose of advertising to the world that this progressive city and county have such a model piece of road to show to visitors. The cost would not be prohibitive, as the rocks lie at the very door of the city.

The government engineers would not hesitate to consult with and advise with the legislative delegation of Umatilla and Morrow counties, if composed of William Blakeley, W. D. Chamberlain and Dr. W. G. Cole, in relation to the needs of this state in irrigation laws. These men are personally interested in the promotion of large irrigation projects, which come in direct opposition to the plans of the government. The government could not consult with nor interest itself in these counties if Mr. Holbrook, who is the chief promoter of a private irrigation project were a member of the legislature, because of his promotion of a large private irrigation concern. It is not a matter of politics, it is simply a question of placing this county in shape to receive the most favorable consideration from the government, for without government irrigation, the county will remain in its present unrelaxed condition. With government irrigation, there is no limit to its growth and development. Umatilla county can choose between these conditions.

THE CONQUEROR.

Tyre and Sidon crumbled below—Sands above their temples blow; Fleets of gliding galleys sleep in Time's dark engulfing deep—Monarchs, princes, slaves and drones Mingle "neath forgotten thrones—Fashions, hates, ambitions, rage, Blotted from their tragic stage. Yet the king that ruled and reigned—Cursed, despised, sainted, stained, He, whose throbbing pulse was life; Who struck fire from every strife; Whose hot breath and waking word Life's divinest yearning stirred, He who made earth best and worst, Heaven blessed, or hell accursed; He who lived when Tyre was young; Reigned her vassal queens among—Lilith yet, he ruled her yet! Worlds may perish, men forget, Yet above earth's buried shrines—Over kings' forgotten lines—Hilithly o'er the crumbled marts, Tyre and Sidon's broken hearts—YOUTH upon his bright bow set—Love, the Conqueror, reigneth yet!
