

CHRONIC SORES

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1921
Some years ago while at work, I fell over a truck and severely injured both of my thighs. My blood became poisoned as a result, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were healed up the result would be fatal. Under the discouraging report I left off their treatment and reported to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took me only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated, nor have the sores ever broken out again. Some 12 years have elapsed since what I have described occurred. Having been so signally benefited by its use I can heartily recommend it as the one great blood purifier.

JOHN W. PUNDS,
Care Schmulback Brewing Co.
Chronic sores start often from a pimple, scratch, bruise or boil, and while salves, washes and powders are beneficial, the unhealthy matter in the blood must be driven out or the sore will continue to eat and spread. S. S. S. reaches these old sores through the blood, removes all impurities and poisons, cleans up the entire system and strengthens the circulation. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic combined. Contains no mineral whatever but is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you have an old sore, write us and our physician will advise without any charge. Book on disease of the blood free.

JESSE MOORE'S HERD OF CATTLE

IS A THOROUGH BELIEVER IN THE SHORTHORN.
Has a Herd of 740 Head Nearly All of Which Are Either Full-blood or High Grades—Has Fought This Breed to Be Most Satisfactory for All Purposes—Believes in Early Dehorning and Has Found That It Pays.

Jesse Moore, who has raised and fattened calves in Umatilla county for the past 20 years, is a strong partisan of the Shorthorn, defending its claims against those of any other breed for all purposes. He admits the superiority of the Jersey to the Shorthorn as a milk producer, but claims that the Shorthorn has no equal as beef, either in the full blood, or the grades of any other breed whatsoever. Twenty years' experience has taught him that the Shorthorn will outweigh from 75 to 800 pounds the Hereford of the same degree of grading, the same amount of exposure and exactly the same amount and quality of feed and water. The above applies in exactly the same terms to the full bloods when a comparison is made.

He claims further, that the Shorthorn is the best rustler, keeping fat on less food, and gaining flesh faster on the same food. Mr. Moore says that his 20 years' experience with the two breeds, managed under the same conditions exactly, has also shown him that the Shorthorn is the most tenacious of its family traits—that it will hold all the characteristics of the breed longer under the same influences of crossing and in-breeding; that influences that will leave as their result a perfectly distinct Shorthorn type will practically run the Hereford out, and will at least make a mongrel of it. He declares that he has well defined Shorthorns on his place that are the result of in-breeding and crossing that would (and has for him) leave the Hereford influences almost obliterated. As Mr. Moore expresses it, "You couldn't tell what it was."

740 Head of Shorthorns
The result of all this is that all of Mr. Moore's 740 head of cattle are either full blooded Shorthorns or high grades. Some of his cattle are registered, and Shorthorn in technical sense, thoroughbred. Others are from three-fourths to seven-eighths Shorthorn, and he claims that his herd is a daily demonstration that all men and witnesses of his claims that the Shorthorn is the best all-purpose kind in the world. Mr. Moore states that some of his cattle growing neighbors have become converted to the Shorthorn, although they discredited the breed in the beginning. Mr. Moore has in the past bought

THE GREATEST EPOCH OF MARRIAGE
The first is the most crucial time. If for the first time the greatest event in your married lives is about to occur, how expectant, how wrought up it you find yourselves. You try to overlook, but in vain, that element of uncertainty and danger that you have been led to expect from the experience of those mothers and fathers who have struggled through this ordeal in ignorance of "Mother's Friend."

many thoroughbred, registered Shorthorn bulls in the East, but now raises his own bulls for the most part, only getting an Eastern animal occasionally for the stimulus it gives the herd's strongest characteristics to inject entirely new blood into it. A procedure not only sanctioned, but vigorously advocated by all breeders of all kinds of domestic stock.

Feeding 140 Head.
Of Mr. Moore's 740 head of cattle, he is full feeding 140 head for the spring market. The remainder are bred and young animals held either for sale, or increase, or to fatten next year. Mr. Moore has from 800 to 1000 tons of alfalfa in stack, and proposes the next spring he will be able to show 740 head of as fine cattle as ever were driven into the show pens of any stock exhibit. All of Mr. Moore's cattle are dehorned—he will not have upon his farm an animal that is not dehorned, and the process is effected as soon as the horns are out far enough to take off. In every respect, the disposition of the animal, and almost entirely does away with fighting and squabbling, and is a great saver of feed in the lot, and promoter of the faster weight the animal doing the most good. He has his own dehorning apparatus. It was erected at a cost of approximately $25 upon the Asa Thompson place, and is used by several firms of Butter creek cattle men in common. Mr. Moore says, "I only take a very small bunch of cattle to repay every year the expense of putting up a good dehorning plant."

Mr. Lucas states that the machinery for the new and remodelled Preston-Parson mills is being installed and will be ready for operation in a very short time. The company will keep "open house" when the establishment is ready to operate, and will serve coffee and hot biscuits to all comers.

Showman Dies Suddenly.
F. E. Jackson, advance agent for the Weddeman show, which played a two nights' engagement at the Frazer last week, dropped dead in a La Grande saloon last night. He had been suffering from gall stone and had one severe attack in the evening. He recovered from the first but while yet in the saloon, was suddenly stricken a second time and died within a few minutes.

Juniper Farm Sold.
B. V. Steele has sold his Juniper farm for $4875 to Tom Thompson. Mr. Steele has owned the place two years and had two good crops off it and sells it at an advance of $775. This year he harvested 5000 bushels of excellent wheat from 200 acres. Mr. Steele has no intention of leaving the county.

The Edwards Residence.
Tom Edwards and wife of Upper Butter Creek, are in town buying linings and other finishing material for their new residence, which is said to be one of the largest and most modern farm residences in the county. It will be ready for occupancy in about three weeks.

Bartholomew Buys Sheep.

COAL IN UMATILLA

JOSEPH McLAUGHLIN OF GURDANE, THE DISCOVERER.
East Oregonian Printed Story of the Find a Year Ago—Development on the Mine Has Been Checked by a Cave-In in the Tunnel—Coal Was Found in Fragmentary Particles on the Surface and an Immense Body Was Struck at Depth of 40 Feet—Work Will Be Resumed This Winter.
A year ago this month, the East Oregonian printed the first story of the discovery of coal in Umatilla, in the vicinity of Gurdane, Joseph McLaughlin, the pioneer sawmill man of the Upper Butter creek, discovered croppings on his land three and a half miles south of Gurdane and 45 miles from Pendleton, on one fork of Butter creek, and immediately began tunneling beneath the croppings in hopes of intersecting the vein at a depth of 50 feet or so beneath the surface. The first visible croppings were found near a little spring on the brow of a hill, with every evidence of a large deposit of good coal in the hill. Instead of opening up the hillside where the croppings were found, McLaughlin thought from the dip of the apparent ledge, that he could get under it and make the mining easier by beginning down the hill about 50 feet. The tunnel was opened, and work pushed on it all last winter, the tunnel being timbered as it was dug. When in the hillside about 40 feet, the vein of coal was struck. It was of the highest grade coal, in a body about seven feet in depth, dipping to the northwest at an angle of about 40 degrees. The tunnel was run into the hill, beside the vein, which, when first discovered appeared to set on edge, until a depth of 65 feet was reached, when the water and soft clay mud began oozing in the tunnel so rapidly that the dirt could not be removed. The entire back end of the tunnel was choked by the caving mud, until a hole eight feet across actually caved out and opened up a shaft to the surface, about 40 feet in length. The tunnel was completely choked up until it was impossible to work at the ledge until the coal was cleaned. The cave-in made an excellent air shaft, which was needed, as the air in the tunnel was very bad. Mr. McLaughlin has been working with his stock and farm during the summer and has not had time to open it up, but this winter will open the tunnel, curb the shaft that has caved in from the surface and will begin mining on the vein in a systematic manner. The quality of the coal is the best and croppings are found on the surface of the same hill a half, and three-quarters of a mile away. D. F. Burrows, five miles south of the McLaughlin claim, has a fine coal prospecting on the surface at different places. Extending from Heppner to the Upper John Day, the same coal indications are found in many places, proving that a large bed of coal underlies that district at some depth. Where the first croppings were found by Mr. McLaughlin, the little vein looked to be a vein of coal only about 18 inches apart, and each coal vein being about two feet in thickness. All the surface croppings indicate a fragmentary vein, which would be called a "blow-out" in a quartz mine.

SWAIGER'S BUNDLES LOST.
North Fork Man Killed by Train Had Bought Four Pairs of Shoes.
One of the pathetic phases of the tragic story of the horrible death of Seymour Swaiger, under the wheels of a train near Bingham Springs Saturday, is the fact that while in the city Friday evening, before starting on his fatal trip home, he bought four pairs of shoes for his children, proving that a large bed of coal underlies that district at some depth. Where the first croppings were found by Mr. McLaughlin, the little vein looked to be a vein of coal only about 18 inches apart, and each coal vein being about two feet in thickness. All the surface croppings indicate a fragmentary vein, which would be called a "blow-out" in a quartz mine.

Consciousness of a Priest.
Rev. John H. Cox of Wake, Ark., writes: "For 12 years I suffered from yellow jaundice. I consulted a number of physicians and tried all sorts of medicines, but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and fell that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for 12 years." If you desire a reliable medicine for liver and kidney trouble, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by Tallman & Co. Only $6c.

Peebler Was Discharged.
George D. Peebler, who was summoned to Portland on a bench warrant charging him with contempt of the United States court, was discharged and has returned home. When his hearing came in answer to the warrant, it transpired that his neglect to answer the summons of the court in the first instance was due to the summons being delayed in transit, it being sent by mail and not delivered by a personal representative of the court.

Heavy Horses Are Scarce.
L. A. Vogel, the horseman, claims that there is a great scarcity of heavy horses, compared with the demand, which is continuous and unsatisfied. O. H. Hoicomb, the Seattle buyer, was here a week trying in vain to get heavy horses to suit him, and only found one team. This team he bought of L. W. McAdam, paying therefor $300, and they were not the grade nor weight of horse that he most wanted.

Special Land Agent Here.
J. H. Alexander, special agent for the La Grande office, is in Pendleton. "There is a great deal of business in this department of the government land office," said Mr. Alexander. A great many filings and protests have been received daily. The exact nature of Mr. Alexander's visit to Pendleton is not known. He has been absent from La Grande for more than a week.

Balcum-Stout.
Walter E. Stout and Miss Jessie Balcum, both of Pilot Rock, were married last night by Rev. W. L. Van Noy, at his home in this place. They will reside in Pendleton in the west end.

Golden Rule Store.
By mistake of the factory the Golden Rule Store has about three times as many golf gloves as were ordered. Rather than return them it has been decided by a big reduction in price to close them out. You ought to see the 50c values they are offering for 25c, and the 75c values which go for 45c.

MARKET REVIEWED

The price changes in the provision market can be seen below. The most important feature is the advance in the price of flour from 14.25 per barrel to 14.50, and to 14.75 per sack from $1.15. The advance is made by all dealers, upon a notification made this morning by both the Pendleton mill and is supposed to reflect the universal advance in the price of wheat in all the wheat producing districts of North America. Other changes in the price of produce and provisions on the local market are insignificant. Tomatoes are cheaper by 50 cents per box. Lemons are 10 cents cheaper by the dozen. The egg market affords some information of interest, as now is the packed egg season, and until late in the winter, or at least until midwinter, about 25 cases of packed eggs will be used to one of fresh. The dealers pay 35 cents in trade for fresh eggs now, and sell them for 25 cents cash. Packed eggs retail at 29 cents per dozen. Blue Point oysters (canned) have advanced five cents on the can and are now retail at 40 cents. The cheaper grades of canned oysters have not changed in price. Late pears are retailing at 12.50 per box. Beets—very nice for the winter, 12.50 per box. Beans—can be purchased at 3 for 19 cents. Cranberries, bananas, lettuce and celery are all in the market and can be bought at the prices that prevail for such goods at this time. In each case the quality is really very fine.

Cattle Are Depressed.
James Markham, of Gurdane, is in town today. Mr. Markham states that conditions in that country are simply superb for livestock, but that putting in a couple more weeks in those of the sheep outlook. He and all the rest of the cattle men are dissatisfied with present prices, and hardly consider that it is an advantage to have cattle which are already ready for the markets. On account of the great abundance of feed, the cattlemen would be better satisfied to have a winter with a water and soft clay mud began oozing in the tunnel so rapidly that the dirt could not be removed. The entire back end of the tunnel was choked by the caving mud, until a hole eight feet across actually caved out and opened up a shaft to the surface, about 40 feet in length. The tunnel was completely choked up until it was impossible to work at the ledge until the coal was cleaned. Roy Salisbury About Cured.
Roy Salisbury, of Upper Butter creek, who has been suffering with a severe case of St. Vitus dance, will return home in a few days completely cured. That entire country has been taking treatment under Thomas Nye, a hypnotist, in this city for the past few weeks and has almost entirely recovered from the effects of the disease. Mr. Nye has cured by the simple means of suggestion, or mind control, and by causing him to concentrate his thoughts and by that indicate a fragmentary vein, which would be called a "blow-out" in a quartz mine.

It is understood the government has decided to abandon the project and the conference has been called for the purpose of devising means to prevent such action. "I do not know just what action will be taken," said Mr. Borie this afternoon. "It was requested to appoint delegates to the conference, and I have complied."
