At a hotel, near the store for which she worked, an English traveler, called Lord Henry Stuart, had taken lodgings.

He was a strikingly handsome man. He was a strikingly handsome man, and of princely curriage. As this distinguished stranger passed to and from the hotel, he encountered the umbrella girl, and he was attracted by her uncommon beauty. He easily traced her to the store, where he soon after went to purchase an umbrella. This was followed up by presents of flowers, chats by the wayside, and invitations to walk our ride all of which were gratefully according to the store, where he soon after went to purchase an umbrella. Alas! her wretched foreboding proved to true. The silk was traced to her; she was arrested on her way to the store, and dragged to prison. There she refused all nourishment and wept incessantly. On the fourth day, the keeper called on Isaac T. He hade her be comforted, and take nourishment, for he would see that the silk was paid for, and the prosecution withdrawn. He went immediately to withdrawn. He went immediately to her employer, and told him the story.

"This is the girl's first offense. She is the only child of a poor widow. Give her a chance to retrieve this one false step, and she may be restored to society, a useful, honorable woman. I will see that thou art paid for the silk."

The man agreed to withdraw the prosecution, and said he would have dealt otherwise by the girl if he had known otherwise by the girl if he had known all the circumstances.

"Thou shouldst have inquired into the merits of the case," replied Friend Hopper, "By this kind of thoughtlessness, many a young person is driven into the downward path, who might easily have been saved."

The kind-hearted man next proceeded to the hotel, and, with Quaker simplicity of speach, inquired for Henry Stuart. The servant said his lordship had not yet risen. "Tell him my business is of importance," said Friend Hopper. The servant soon returned and conducted him to the chamber. The nobleman appeared surprised that a stranger, in a plain Quaker costume, should thus intrade upon his luxurious privacy.

The evident sincerity of her words stirred the deep fountains of his better nature. "If you are innocent," said he, "God forbid, that I should make you otherwise. But you accepted my invitations and presents so readily, that I supposed you understood me."

"What could I understand," said she, "and well, for he was the best friend your mother ever had." With an earnest invitation well, to make me your wife."

s warminted to expel all worms from the els and Stomach, except Tape and Chair History:

The proprietor has taken much pains to test the comparative merits of the principal Worm Medicines of the day, which, numerous as the Entozos themselves, have overspread the Land, each claiming for itself the name of specific; and, while we frankly acknowledge that many of them are often successful, and do great good, were we not assured that this combines advantages possessed by no other worm medicine, its introduction at this late day would not have been attempted.

The pleasant taste and exceedingly small quantity of this medicine required to test the existence of werms, or to remove every one from the system—the operating in a few hours, unaided by any other purge, together with its certainty of effect, constitute it one of the most brilliant discoveries of the age.

Had we space here, scores of certificates might be adduced to show its progressive and rapidly increasing reputation for the last few years; but to promutigate its lame and entablish its character, we only ask for a trial.

Its speedy operation in all sudden attacks, to convulsions, coile, fits or spassins, gives it an unrivaled superiority. Sent by express on receipt of price.
