

WOMEN HAVE MORE RIGHTS THAN MEN.

On the morning of the 21st inst., as the editor of this paper was wending his way to the Capitol on important Legislative business...

FANNY FERN.

This genial and ready writer, whose beautiful ideas have enriched the pages of the New York Ledger for the past sixteen years...

The pomp and circumstance which accompanied the burial rites of her illustrious cotemporary, Wm. H. Seward...

£30 A YEAR.

We call the attention of those interested in immigration scheme to the English correspondence in this week's issue.

An annual salary of "thirty pounds" for a governess with the accomplishments required by Mrs. D'Arcy...

WOMAN COMMISSIONER.

Mrs. Dr. Sawtelle, whose indefatigable exertions in behalf of immigration have made her famous in the East...

WOMEN'S CAMPAIGN MEETINGS.

In the far East, as in Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, California and Oregon, the women's campaign meetings are the most enthusiastic...

MRS. DUNIWAY ON THE BRAIN.

Our mercurial and visionary friend of the Salem Mercury has become so completely psychologized by Mrs. Duniway...

THE DEER.

A deer once saw himself pictured in a clear brook. "Truly," said he, "I surpass all animals in gracefulness and majesty."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. W., England: Our State Legislature has recently organized an immigration scheme, and will have a fund to aid those desiring to cast their lot among us...

Lizzie, Jacksonville: Your subscribers are not both for this year, and you are not entitled to the premium.

Mrs. C. M. C., Olympia, pays to No. 36, Vol. 2.

E. M. C., Seattle: Subscription received and placed to your credit.

G. B. R., Oakland: Four new subscribers received.

Sara: The pictures are perfectly splendid. Thanks.

THE HOME.

The Ladies of the Relief Society are happy to announce to the public that the Home, which has recently been finished through the generosity of the citizens of Portland...

The ladies would take this opportunity to express their most grateful thanks to the following gentlemen who have so nobly assisted them in this good work...

With feelings cheered and grateful for these donations, the ladies would here say, that as cold weather is approaching, and the inmates are increasing...

ENGLISH CORRESPONDENCE.

LEIGH COOPER, Torquay, Devon, England, September 17, 1892.

Mrs. A. J. Duniway - Madam - Having learned of a friend lately returned from Oregon, I venture to enclose you a letter which I received from a lady who required a governess...

Women of cultivated taste sometimes set themselves up for models in dress, and every other woman who fails to conform to their standard is condemned as having horrid taste...

Sometimes a woman will sacrifice her eyes to a "blue of promise" which she wears in the kindness of his hair, buys his saffron-faced wife a bright blue, lilac, or green dress...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her, she would also remind them of that "blue of promise"...

LETTER FROM NEW YORK.

Never has a larger or more select audience greeted public speakers in Salem than that which crowded the spacious Theatre last night.

Our noble Susan B. Anthony has been here for some time past laboring hard to obtain entire recognition for us as co-workers with the Republicans here...

There was some disappointment that Mrs. Stanton was unable to come. Her eloquent voice is always missed. But we had plenty of good speakers to fill the time until after ten o'clock and keep the audience constantly interested.

Our Chairman, Mr. Luther R. Marsh, a scion of one of the best families here, was formerly in partnership with Daniel Webster, and is a man of much weight in the community.

Mrs. Hooker made many capital hits, as you will see from her speech, and produced a most happy impression by her dignified and elegant appearance.

Mrs. Gage was full of information, as she always is, bringing together a very curious collection of facts, proving what service women have rendered to the country.

After my own remarks, which came next, I received the honor of a re-call, the audience quite insisting that I should speak longer.

Miss Brown was witty, piquant and telling, as she always is, causing quite a laugh by saying that the deepest chain she knew of was the one which "stretched broad and deep between the humble cot at Chappaqua and the White House."

Miss Anthony closed in one of the best speeches I ever heard her make, full of good hits at the politicians by contrasting what they had said of the woman movement formerly with their utterances to-day.

Altogether, we feel very proud of our success. Many gentlemen who were present said that there was more enthusiasm in the audience than at any meeting which had been held heretofore.

Women of cultivated taste sometimes set themselves up for models in dress, and every other woman who fails to conform to their standard is condemned as having horrid taste.

Sometimes a woman will sacrifice her eyes to a "blue of promise" which she wears in the kindness of his hair, buys his saffron-faced wife a bright blue, lilac, or green dress...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Republican Rally at Salem.

Never has a larger or more select audience greeted public speakers in Salem than that which crowded the spacious Theatre last night.

Our noble Susan B. Anthony has been here for some time past laboring hard to obtain entire recognition for us as co-workers with the Republicans here...

There was some disappointment that Mrs. Stanton was unable to come. Her eloquent voice is always missed. But we had plenty of good speakers to fill the time until after ten o'clock and keep the audience constantly interested.

Our Chairman, Mr. Luther R. Marsh, a scion of one of the best families here, was formerly in partnership with Daniel Webster, and is a man of much weight in the community.

Mrs. Hooker made many capital hits, as you will see from her speech, and produced a most happy impression by her dignified and elegant appearance.

Mrs. Gage was full of information, as she always is, bringing together a very curious collection of facts, proving what service women have rendered to the country.

After my own remarks, which came next, I received the honor of a re-call, the audience quite insisting that I should speak longer.

Miss Brown was witty, piquant and telling, as she always is, causing quite a laugh by saying that the deepest chain she knew of was the one which "stretched broad and deep between the humble cot at Chappaqua and the White House."

Miss Anthony closed in one of the best speeches I ever heard her make, full of good hits at the politicians by contrasting what they had said of the woman movement formerly with their utterances to-day.

Altogether, we feel very proud of our success. Many gentlemen who were present said that there was more enthusiasm in the audience than at any meeting which had been held heretofore.

Women of cultivated taste sometimes set themselves up for models in dress, and every other woman who fails to conform to their standard is condemned as having horrid taste.

Sometimes a woman will sacrifice her eyes to a "blue of promise" which she wears in the kindness of his hair, buys his saffron-faced wife a bright blue, lilac, or green dress...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

Ladies should be independent enough to wear colors most becoming to themselves, regardless of comments, and if any one chooses to wear all the hues of the rainbow at once, while she is attracting the attention of that large class of people who have nothing else to do but look at her...

A Sad Family History.

Capt. Williams, of the New York Police, recently learned that Ernestina Loewenheim, a Jewish, fifty-four years of age, of 41 Fourth street, had committed suicide by cutting her throat.

Previous to this the same incurable and ravaging type of insanity had taken her two of her daughters. The wife of Mr. Kahan, an artist in this city, died, leaving only Ida, the youngest, who was a beautiful girl of seventeen, possessed of all the refinement and accomplishment that could be lavished upon her by a loving mother.

Yesterday a letter was received by the family from the in-law in San Francisco, which, it is said, contained the sorrowful information that Christina had also fallen a victim to hopeless insanity. This sad intelligence was locally so-called by the sister Ida, and in two hours after the despairing mother saw her only remaining child a raving maniac. There were no preliminary symptoms of Ida's madness, which in an incredibly short time became so violent that aid had to be summoned to control her.

Her medical attendant was called, and at once suggested the necessity of her removal to an insane asylum. A coach was engaged and preparations hastily made for her departure. On realizing that her daughter must be taken away, Mrs. Loewenheim became frantic with grief, declaring that she could not survive the event.

When her friend was about to leave, she arose from her seat and entered the parlour, looking peculiar in her look, and with an undefined fear, she followed. She had barely opened the door when she saw Mrs. Loewenheim fall to the floor, her hands raised, and her face distorted. A physician was called, and the wound was pronounced mortal. She died in ten minutes. The cut was inflicted with a carving knife, which was found on the floor by the door, and which Mrs. Loewenheim must have concealed about her.

The daughter was taken to the Bloomington Asylum for the insane, where she remains in ignorance of the fate of her mother.

The accounts received on all hands from Berlin point to a terrible state of disorganization in the capital of Germany. Riots have doubled, and whenever a family is excited the police take sides with it, attack the police, and very often with the battle.

Crime, too, is rapidly on the increase. Berlin is now a city of thieves and pickpockets who get into willful quarrels with the police, and the sanitary condition of the city is the worst in Europe.

The Republic of the Pacific Coast, in Convention assembled, on the 21st inst., adopted the following platform of principles:

1. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

2. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

3. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

4. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

5. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

6. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

7. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

8. We demand the ratification of the Pacific Coast Convention, and the full support of those Amendments, and we will labor for the revision and modification of the Constitution and laws of our respective States.

National Republican Platform.

For President, CLYDE S. GRANT. For Vice President, HENRY WILSON. Presidential Electors, A. B. Meacham, of Umatilla County, W. D. Hare, of Washington County, Jas. F. Gaxley, of Douglas County.

The Republican Party of the United States assembled in National Convention in the city of Philadelphia on the 21st inst., and after a session of several days, adopted the following platform of principles:

1. During the eleven years of its ascendancy in the Federal Government, the Republican Party has secured the equal citizenship of all and established universal suffrage. Exhibiting respect for the individual rights of every citizen, no man for political offenses and has warmly welcomed every man who has shown his respect for the law and dealing justly with their neighbors.

2. We hold in undying honor the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the Union. Their names are on the tablets of our country, and the widows and orphans of those who died for the country are our sacred trust. We favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

3. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

4. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

5. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

6. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

7. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

8. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

9. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

10. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

11. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

12. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

13. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

14. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.

15. We are opposed to the National Constitution, and we favor such legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to the widows and orphans of those who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of their service were disabled through length of service or the cause of such discharge.