The clouds may wear their saddest robes, The sum refuse to smile,
And sorrow, with her troop of Ilis,
May threaten us the while;
But still the cheerful heart has power
A sunbeam to provide;
And only those whose souls are dark,
Dwell on like's shady side.

The Tin Savings Bank.

Charles Lynford was a young mechanic in good business. At the age of twenty-six he had taken to himself a wife, Caroline Eustis, the daughter of a neighbor, who had nothing to bring but her own personal merits, which were many, and habits of thrift, learned in an economical household under the stern teachings of necessity.

It was well, perhaps, that Charles Lynford should obtain a wife of this character, since he himself found it hard to save anything from his income. It was not long before Caroline became acquainted with her husband's fallings. She could not feel quite easy agement. in the knowledge that they were living fully up to their income, foreseeing a time would come when their family would grow more expensive and per-haps her husband's business, now flourishing, might become less so.

Accordingly, one day she purchased of a peddler, who came to the door, a little tin safe, such as children frequently use for a savings bank. This she placed trouble myself about it any longer."

"To be sure," added her husband. "Well, I guess it'll be all right—I'll not trouble myself about it any longer."

'And what will a dime a day amount to?" he inquired.

menced his wife, seriously—

'Oh, never mind—spare me the calculation! It sounds so much like business, and I am a round of the said Mrs. Lynford. "You seem to forget our little savings bank."

"But you do not object to my plan?"
"Not in the least. I have no doubt it is very commendable: but you know, Carrie, I never was gifted with much produces."

"Wait a minute, and I will a minute, and I will a minute, and I will a minute."

The plan inaugurated by the young was deposited to her credit.

"Are you quite sure you haven't had a legacy?" demanded Charles, in amazement.

"Surely a dime a day has not produced this."

Her husband had early arranged to make ample allowance for dress—I say ample, though I dare say some of my city readers might note say sider it so; but Caroline, who was in the habit of making her own dresses, pro-vided herself with a good wardrobe at a much less expense than some not so well versed in the science of making could have done.

After considerable calculation, she came to the conclusion, that out of her daily allowance she should be able to make a daily saving equal to that which she exacted from her husband. Of this, however, she thought it best, on the whole, not to inform Charles; enjoying in anticipation the prospect of being able, at some future time, to surprise him with the unexpected amount of her

"I really think, after all you have said, that it wouldn't be so hard to live on half our usual income—for the present at least. But," and his countenance again changed—"suppose my work should entirely fail, I suppose my work should entirely fail, I suppose my work should entirely fail, I suppose you couldn't reduce our expenses to nothing at all, could you?"
"That certainly surpasses my power," said his wife, smiling; "but even in that case, there is no ground for discouragement. You have not forgetten our

The Open Polar Sea.

The open Power amust be discovered soon, if at all. At the bedien porting a writer in Nature (an English pering a cal,) who believes the sea will soon cal,) who believes the sea will soon cease to exist. Land is said to be rising everywhere between the pole and the fifty-seventh parallel, and the greatest movement is at the pole itself. Some interesting facts are quoted in support of the theory. Pliny said the Scandinavia was an archipelago, and spoke of the bold seamen who had circumnavigated the group of Islands. Ptolemy confirmed the statement. Celesius said, in the seventeenth century, that Norway confirmed the statement. Celesius said, in the seventeenth century, that Norway was rising at the rate of forty inches a a year. Sir Charles Lyell inderses the theory. The water level in the Gulf of Bothnia falls one foot every fifteeen years, where interest was allowed. When the sums deposited there became large enough, Mrs. Lynford, who had considerable business capacity, with drew them, and deposited in bank and other stocks which would yield a larger per cent. Of her mode of management ther husband remained in complete ignerates and did he ever express any there is a bed of sand which contains there is a bed of sand which contains some wrecked boats and an old anchor. In the interior of Spitzbergen, skeletons of whales have been unearthed above careless fellow, spending as he went—of whales have been unearthed above sea level. The fishermen say that land has risen so much that the shallowness any particular concern about the fuwhale, which, once abundant, is now rarely seen. On the Pacific the shores around Behring Straits are low and flat, but a mile or two back there are ranges of bluffs parallel with coast, and con-taining incomerable shells of the litto-ral species. If the theory is true, it offers us a curious case of compensation. While the ocean is washing away Great Britain, France, Holland, and New England, away to the north, the continents are encroaching on the sea. The "How much do you think!" asked only thing to regret is that the process cannot be reversed, and Neptune en-riched at the expense of the frozen north, and to the gain of the more habitable south.

The widow of the late rear Admiral So things went on, till at length came the panic of 1857—a panic so recent, that it will be remembered by many readers of this sketch. It will be remembered how universally business and trade of every kind were depressed at this period; among others, the trade which occupied Charles Lynford suffered.

One evening he came home looking quite serious—an expression which seldom came over his cheerful face.

Caroline, who had watched the signs of the times, was not unprepared to see the condensing and putting into publishing shape the very scopious diaries and memoirs left by her husband. The parts covering the years of the war and the subsequent re-construction period are said to be condensing and putting into publishing shape the very scopious diaries and memoirs left by her husband. "I think I have," said his wife, quietly. "I have read the papers carefully, and have been looking out for something of this kind. I think we shall be able to live. Both of us are well supplied with clothing, and shall not need any more for a year, at least. I shead of what he already knows.

Nilsson's wedding-cake was a splendid affair, profusely ornamented with musical trophies, and having on the summit a harp of real and costly pearls, which the prudent bride, with an eye to busine's, promptly turned into cash.

The following notice of death in the columns of a contemporary is quite capable of two meanings: "Maria B., wife heary B., Esq., aged 80 years. She lived with her husband fifty years, and

MISCELLANEOUS.

DR. VAN DEN BERGH'S Sovereign Worm Syrup. THE UNK WEED REMEDY,

THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE is warranted to expel all worms from the Bowels and Stomach, except Tape and Chain Oregon Rheumatic Cure. The proprietor has taken much pains to text the comparative merits of the principal Worm Medicines of the day, which, numerous as the Entozoa themselves, have overspread the hand, each claiming for itself the name of specific; and, while we trankly acknowledge that many of them are often successful, and do great good, were we not assured that this combines advantages possessed by no other worm medicine, its introduction at this late day would not have been attempted.

The pleasant taste and exceedingly small quantity of this medicine required to test the existence of worms, or to remove every one from the system—lisoperating in a few hours, unaided by any other purps, together with its certainty of effect, constitute it one of the most brilliant discoveries of the age.

Had we space here, scores of certificates might be addinced to show its progressive and rapidly increasing reputation for the last few years; but to promulgate its fame and establish its character, we only ask for a trial.

Its speedy operation in all sadden attacks, as convulsions, colic, fits or spasms, gives it an inrivated superfority. Sent by express on recept of price.
