Honesty of Women Clerks.—General Burr, the Postmaster of Boston, has in his employ about a dozen women, and having watched these and the male employees during the term he has been in office he says. dice, he says:
"I find the women most honest, and, dle of this valve a piece of fried pork or start, and found the people changing in political sentiment, in favor of equal human rights. We sincerely hope our sister is correct in her judgment and conjectures in this matter, but from the actions of the last Legislature, we are forced to the conclusion that the change, if any, in favor of equal rights regardless of sex, is very, very slow.

A Republican Legislature refused to allow women, even mothers who are never known one woman in my employ quietly swimming around; but the pro-to steal the smallest amount, while vision of the little island saves the there have been several instances of trouble of killing them, because their stealing among the men.
