

HOME NEWS.

The Good Templars are to give one of their attractive societies at Multnomah Hall this evening. Let there be a large attendance.

The Bulletin establishment has received a new power press of colossal dimensions, which, after much trouble and delay, has been put in fine running order, and our neighbors are jubilant over their "luck."

The Methodist Sociable, given on Wednesday evening at the Taylor street church, was a grand success. These reunions at the various churches have been very attractive and profitable during the winter.

Baker and Canby Past, G. A. R., will give a grand ball at Ankeny's Hall on the evening of March 4th. Extensive preparations are making and no pains are spared to make this the most successful party of the season.

Go to Fabre's if you want a square meal, cooked a la mode. Women have no business cooking when men can do the work with so much more ease. Besides, it is man, and not woman, who is commanded to eat bread in the sweat of his face. We don't know any man who appears to fill the "sphere" usually accorded to women, to better advantage than our friend Fabre.

We are informed that Sam Clarke, the puny specimen of spurious "purity," who regularly preaches of his "independence" through the Daily Statesman, one day, recently, attacked us in a most scurrilous manner through that journal, using epithets, comparisons, etc., which no gentleman could be induced to cast at anybody. We are not, however, bereft of all hope for the reformation of this fellow, for he had been decency enough to withhold a copy of that issue of the Statesman from our wall, so we have had no opportunity of seeing it.

HEALTHFUL PIES.—I do not see why pies might not be a part of our daily food, and why children might not eat them as safely as bread and butter, and plain fruit sauce. The chief objection would be the labor of making them, but that need not be very great. The hygienists would not agree with me, but I think it is the safest way to use a little baking powder in the pie crust; then with ordinary care in baking you will never have heavy crust. The crust will be sufficiently tender if you use only a tablespoonful of butter to shorten each pie—not a heaping one either. Rub this thoroughly into the flour, having previously mixed the baking powder with the flour. A small teaspoonful of flour sufficient for a two-crust pie; a pint of flour is a liberal allowance for two pies. Use very little cold water to wet the dough, having it quite firm as you roll it out. Roll it very thin, as the powder is sure to make it rise a little. Bake pies upon the bottom of the oven. Now, what is there about the crust that gives it the dyspeptic? I like to make Graham pie-crusts because they require even less shortening than fine flour crusts in order to make them tender. I often mix them with just a little sour milk (usually a little cream sugar in) and a little soda. Very tender crust may be made with cream for mixing, sweet cream and a little baking powder, or sour cream with a bit of soda. If you do not like the looks of those pie-crusts after they are done you can sift powdered sugar over them while warm. The particular general warning for the use of spices, and use care that they be neither too sour nor too sweet. Plain fruit pies are very good articles of diet.—Fruit Cooker.

ESSAY.

READ BEFORE THE O. S. W. S. A. FEB. 11, 1874, BY MRS. E. A. DUFFE.

Volumes of words have been used in portraying to the world the evils of intemperance, but the subject is not yet exhausted, and methinks never will be, until the word becomes obsolete. Intemperance does not consist wholly in the use of ardent spirits, but in every thing pertaining to life—our passions, food, dress, and, I might say, generosity, for that too sometimes does evil where it would produce good. But the human heart is a strange piece of mechanism, ever vibrating to kind, consoling words, or a touch of congeniality. It is then the wheel of emotion brings back to life all the noble impulses of the soul. We often form resolutions, vowing to assist all true efforts of reform, and the suppression of King Alcohol. And such has been the purpose of our Good Templars' association, which has long waged war against this terrible, devastating evil, but their exertions are not strong enough. There is needed another spoke in the wheel, and that is—Woman's Emancipation. Many smile in their egotism and flippantly remark, "Ah! a poor spoke that!" But see say no, for it shall become as iron, and shall gather strength from all opposition, and become a potential power of the land. "Taxation without representation is tyranny." With this our banners, we'll march boldly on, struggling and toiling till the victory is won.

Pardon my digression to tell you my idea of the present true meaning of the "Goddess of Liberty," whom we see represented in our Fourth of July celebrations, where she sits blind-fold, with scales well balanced, indicating that rich and poor shall be weighed alike. Bah! what a farce! Tear aside the veil, and show to the world the true significance that rings, monopolies and combinations have made—changed is the so-called Goddess of Liberty and Justice that she would wish to recognize herself in her present false position. To me this would be the true picture: The Goddess sitting calmly erect, with ear on the alert, eye on the watch, to use every item for self-interest; and in her hand the scales in which at the bottom is the laboring man and woman; at the top the rich man and his monopolies. Call you this justice? Ah, no! a thousand times no! And until woman shall be recognized as a free agent, like man, shall these things continue to be the oppression of the poor by the rich.

God speed the time that shall witness the inauguration of Woman Suffrage, Menusville.

Let us with a cheerful spirit Press on and on and bravely bear The many sneers that come to greet us In this world-day world of care.

Press onward, all, and do not falter, Though dark and dreary be the way; Remember there are thousands, waiting For our light to turn to Day.

All will then rush to our standard, Wave our banner in the air, And with songs of joyous welcome Shout for suffrage everywhere.

Our dear friend, Mrs. Mary E. James, of this city, who has for many years been afflicted with heart disease, passed suddenly into the better life from her residence, on Thursday evening, February 13, aged twenty-nine years and eight months. She leaves two baby daughters, aged respectively fifteen months and one month, to the care of her widowed and sorrowing mother, Mrs. M. J. Bird.

The sweet, womanly, Christian example of this sister in the ranks of Human Rights has made many converts to our cause within the range of her acquaintance, during the past few years. Possessed with an abundant store of exuberant spirits and an inexhaustible supply of wit, sarcasm and logic, her arguments were sometimes rapiers and sometimes soothing balm, but whether of one nature or the other, they were always effective in the service of freedom.

But the cares of life and her bodily sufferings pressed heavily upon her. The Father had work for her in the land where pain cannot enter, and He sent his messenger to pluck the fair flower from its earth-tenement and transplant it in the Eden of immortality.

"Let her own works praise her in the gates." "Her children will arise and call her blessed."

The Law of Newspapers.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If any subscribers order the discontinuance of their newspapers, the publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their newspapers from the office to which they are directed, the law holds them responsible until they have settled the bills, and ordered them discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the newspapers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers from the office, or removing and leaving them uncollected, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
6. The postmaster who neglects to give the legal notice of the neglect of a person to take from the office the newspapers addressed to him, is liable to the publisher for the subscription price.

SMALL-POX REMEDY.
SURE CURE OR PREVENTIVE
For that disease.
SAMUEL CORWIN, Proprietor.

The history of this medicine cannot be better explained than by inserting the following letter:
My Dear Old Friend, Samuel Corwin— I have no doubt but you will be much surprised on receiving this letter, but perhaps not more so, if you know how long I have been from you. The manner in which I heard you were, I supposed to be looking over an Oregon paper and noticed your name as representative elect, from Tillamook county. The first of pleasure which I experienced on reading is indescribable. The many years kindness you had never forgotten, notwithstanding our correspondence has been broken for seventeen years. Well, Sam, I won't attempt to give you more than the outline of my life since we parted since we last corresponded. So many incidents of the past, in which you and I were connected, crowd upon my mind that I cannot think or write of myself. Does your mind ever occur to the past, when we first met—how you look me up as a partner, when those who should have been my best friends threw me off me—how you stood in and had to see me potatoes straight for six weeks—how good that grizzly man was to me—what a dinner I had made from our poor innocent Jack, when I thought we were looking for a grizzly bear. Well, Sam, those events of 1852 frequently furnish subject matter for my thoughts, and as I am writing to you now, I will give you a little of that which will, perhaps, be of greater interest to you.

I pocketed eleven thousand dollars out of the "Deep" claim in the morning of March 1st, 1852, and started for home in June, 1855. I invested four thousand dollars in real estate in Oregon, and left the care of Melane, Oregon claim, to my property here has yielded me a handsome income. I have been in the city of New York, in which I was very successful in my business. I have been in the city of New York, in which I was very successful in my business. I have been in the city of New York, in which I was very successful in my business.

The following testimonials are from reliable persons:
Portland, Sept. 1, 1873.
Statement—My son Henry, now six years of age, had a severe attack of the malignant form of scarlet fever about four years ago. My family physician, Dr. Hamlin, of Marysville, California, told me that the child had died, and he would be afflicted all his life with some of a scrofulous nature, which he considered incurable. The condition of the child up to last April seemed to confirm the Doctor's opinion, as his mother was so near to despair. A number of our best physicians had endeavored in vain to cure him. At the time I commenced using him Dr. Borzeau's Small-Pox Remedy the child was unable to open his eyes, and had an incomplete mass of inflammation and corruption upon the forehead and sides of the face. In less than six weeks all traces of the old disease had disappeared. My son is now a healthy and robust man.
The following names are referred to as having a knowledge of the above statement:
Mr. A. Blanchard, the scrofulous child for six years, Dr. G. H. Freeman, J. Murray, contractor, City of Portland, John Sherman, and many others of Portland, Oregon.
JOHN M. FRONK.

Albany, Oregon, June 1, 1873.
Mr. Corwin—I had used a bottle of your small-pox remedy for scarlet fever. Both of my children had it, and all the medicine they used was your small-pox remedy. Their recovery was speedy and complete.
CHAS. H. STANLEY.

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 15, 1873.
My elder W. Caviness, was taken sick with measles, last March. I administered Dr. Borzeau's small-pox remedy several times, and in all my experience I never saw a case of measles recover so completely and so rapidly.

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 16, 1873.
For the benefit of my friends and the public, I state the following facts: On the 15th day of September, I felt quite unwell, having headache, pains in my neck and joints, with occasional chills; a fever set in, and the first scarlet rash was plain to be seen on my skin. I had been vaccinated for the disease, but the cause, and it proved a success in my case, no further developments appeared. I took but 15 cents worth of your medicine, and have since felt all my usual vigor. I hesitated in recommending it to my friends who may feel any symptoms of measles, more complete and speedy recovery.

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 16, 1873.
I have taken your Small-Pox Remedy, and being exposed to the disease at the same time, escaped all symptoms, which is the only proof that it is a preventative.
City Commissioner, at Ward, Portland, Or.

I have been using Corwin's Small-Pox Remedy, and though exposed to the disease every day of my life, I have not contracted it. I have no symptoms. I believe it to be a preventative as well as a cure.
A. M. DENNIE, Portland, Or.

I being exposed to the small-pox, contracted the disease. I used for it Corwin's preparation and no other, and was cured in the first day. The pox never returned. Let no marks. My friends were not at all surprised. I have since been vaccinated, but I have not contracted the disease, and I have since felt all my usual vigor. I hesitated in recommending it to my friends who may feel any symptoms of measles, more complete and speedy recovery.

Portland, Oregon, August 27, 1873.
I was taken with small-pox about the 25th of July. I had purchased a bottle of Dr. Borzeau's Small-Pox Remedy some time previous, and commenced taking it as soon as I was taken with the disease, which was on the second day of my illness. My recovery was rapid, and I commenced using the medicine. The vaccination was not contracted. I took only 15 cents worth of your medicine, and have since felt all my usual vigor. I hesitated in recommending it to my friends who may feel any symptoms of measles, more complete and speedy recovery.
