Salem is soon to have a new steam ferry. Dallas is going to have a Temperance Saloon.

Another school-house will be erected in Albany in a short time. There is a case of small-pox in Oregon City; also one near Salem.

Lewis & Strauss, at the "White House," 87 First street, have received a fine stock of goods.

Woodcock & Intermela have removed from the City Market to the corner of First and Yamhill streets. They have a fine stock of groceries.

The County School Fund of Lane county is about $1,000 larger this year than last. The apportionment of the State has not yet been made.

Contributions of money are pouring in upon the Misses Smith, of Gladstone, in recognition of their brave and consistent conduct in resisting taxation.

Sympathizers can be counted everywhere by the thousands, and more converts have been brought over to the Woman Suffrage ranks on account of this palpable outrage, riveting the attention to the wrongs suffered by women.

Human nature naturally cries out against injustice, and when a wrong is shown up to be prominent and palpable, all the better humanity of all the world rises in protest against it.

The measure of humanity still sneaks in the wake of any successful oppression. We have a few cowardly extracts from cowardly papers that our attention has been called to by friends, making a bravado over the defeat of these ladies.

But all the better portion of the newspapers are disposed to take the just and right view of the case. -Vulcan Journal.

LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4, 1874. To the Editor of the New Northwest: I cannot forego the temptation to send an hour or so from my studies to congratulate our good friends of Salem and other parts of Oregon in their late work in the good cause.

All honor to those noble men and brave women who were not ashamed to step upon the platform of equal rights, and allow their names to go forth to the world as opposers of wrong and injustice. This is a step in the right direction, which will form a bright place in Oregon's best history.

The people of Oregon are becoming thoroughly awakened to the necessity of this issue. They are being convinced that there must be a breaking up of political parties. Farmers, Craftsmen, Mechanics, Good Templars, and women particularly are thoroughly disgusted with rings and partyism.

They cry out as with one voice: "Give us men with principle, honor, brains, and broad views, and we will support them. Let rings, stealings, whisky and political schemers go by the board!" The people all over the State are being roused up to the fact that they must make a stand for right. Thank God it is, to use a medical term, a "contagion," which will spread and purify some of Oregon's filthy political pools.

I thought when I came to Philadelphia to study medicine that I should have abundant time to write you once a week; but I find that time is a very scarce article with me. Attending lectures all day, taking notes, reading up, preparing for the quizzes and attending clinic patients, you will readily see, must require much time. I consider clinic practice one of the greatest advantages medical students have.

One hour each day is set apart for the purpose of examining clinic patients, who are brought before the class and treated free of cost by the college for the benefit of the students. They are then turned over to the young Doctors (students) who visit and prescribe for them at their homes. This practice embraces every form of treatment, surgery included. Many poor, deformed, mangled, crippled or diseased subjects are laid upon the table, and after anesthetics are administered, the knife in the hands of the surgeon is busy at work, cutting away a tumor, an ulcer, or perhaps a cancer; perhaps it is a caries of bone; if so, he makes an opening with his history, and with the handle of his knife and fingers, he tears away the flesh to prevent cutting arteries and veins.

When the diseased bone is reached, it is thoroughly scraped and cleaned, after which the parts are drawn together with sutures and nature is left to finish the work. Seeing that this article is sufficiently long for your crowded space, I will abruptly close for the present.

B. A. OWENS. Mrs. Betsey Dodge, of McConellsville, O., has supplemented her liberal donations to Buchtel College, by a recent gift of $1,000 for the benefit of the Woman's Professorship.

Eighteen women have signed an agreement to hold prayer meetings in the Hyatt shops of Portland, Me., and twenty men have promised to help them. Uncle-"Now, how did the mother of Moses hide him?" Nice-"with a stick."

WOODCOCK & INTERMELA, Dealers in FOREIGN, FANCY AND STAPLE GROCERIES. Choice Dairy Butter a Specialty! PORTLAND, OREGON, Southwest corner of First and Yamhill streets. Cash paid for country produce.
