If only from the fretting cares of Time,
To truth eternal I at once may elimb,
No longer to count the graves whereon I tread
But in one moment be all comforted—
If such could be, what loy in upward flight,
To sing my tired good-night,

This flooding tide of yearnings will not cease I cannot reach to touch the lips of Peace; Nor can I gather to my sobbling heart The white-winged angels God has set apart, Yet haply I may find them all in sight After some tired good-night.

What wonder, then, that I should long to rest, Crossing my weary hands upon my breast, To shut my troubled eyes without a tear, Knowing that they would never open here; To say to earth, with heaven alone in sight, My rapturous good-night.

Mrs. Pope and the Bear.

Mrs. Pope and strain. To his utter astonishment, Mr. Pope found the dead bear behind the barn, with the pitchfork sticking in its side.

The one absorbing thought of saving the sheep banished all sense of personal danger. Instead of shutting AGENTS FOR THE N herself up in the house, she darted out and closed the door after her, lest anything should molest the baby. Ther running into the log barn, she snatched up the pitchfork, ran around the barn, and planted herself directly in the bear's path. Brandishing her pitchfork and screaming at him, she attempted to scare him back to the woods. But the bear was ravenous with hunger, and he came straight down the hill at her, showing his teeth and growling flercely. As he approached and sprang toward her, Mrs. Pope dodged and dealt him a blow, the iron rung of the fork striking him exactly on the end of the nose. The shock stunned the bear for an instant, and during that one instant, with almost superhuman strength, Mrs. Pope plunged both times of the fork into the to be. Either good fortune, or the hand of Providence, directed the weapon, for one of the times passed clear through the bear's heart, and he rolled over dead, leaving her not only victorious, but un-harmed. After the excitement of the contest was over, Mrs. Pope went back to the house, shuddering at the extrem-ity of peril she had been in. But after a time her nervousness passed off, and she went on with her work again, and so the afternoon wore away.

At length, when the sun was about an
