Good Samaritan Hospital in this city receives a very complimentary notice in the Oregon City Enterprise. We quote: "The same privileges and ad-vantages are offered to all, high or low, rich or poor. Persons going from the country to the city for treatment could nowhere obtain it more satisfactorily or economically than at this place. For one dollar per day they will receive medical care, proper diet, kind nursing, quiet, and pure, sweet air, in a well-ventilated apartment. To the poor and un-fortunate this hospital opens its doors, and bids them come, 'without money and without price.' Here their temporal wants will be all supplied, and the last hours of life soothed by Christian care and spiritual ministrations.'

DR. BRENAN CAN TELL THE PATIENTS If disease the moment he comes in contact with them, no matter how complicated the case may be. This accounts in part for his wonderful success in the treatment of chronic and difficult diseases. His perfect knowledge of Physiology and Phrenology and human character, which he reads at a glance, enables him to understand the wants of each individual with whom he comes in contact, and his perfect medical knowledge enables him to prescribe the proper remedy with unerring certainty.

Above all price of wealth,
The body's jewel not for minds profane,
Or hands to tamper with in practice vain,

DAVID AND ANNA MATSON,

By Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway?

Editor "New Northwest," Portland, Oregon, WITH BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS, AND ELEGANTLY BOUND.

A new epic, from a vigorous and skillful pen, on a subject which occupies a large place in the social discussions of the day. The subject is taken from Mr. Whittier's short narrative of "David Matson," with which the reader is probably familiar. David Matson, a Merrimae sallor, was captured by the Algerines (during one of his voyages) and sold into slavery. After many years he obtained release and was on his way to the home of his boyhood, when he fell in with his old employer, who informed him that his wife, believing him dead, had remarried, and, stunned by his trouble, he surrendered all claim as husband and father to the man who had stepped into his place, and departed. Mrs. Duniway has found a theme in this story with which her heart beats in warmest sympathy, and her lines flow on in the smooth cadence indicative of the fullest accord. She pictures the gentle, tender, trustful Anna and the wily, covetous Pelatiah in vivid colors; and how years of poverty and longing, and the cries of the hun gry boys, compelled poor Anna to xield to Pelatiah's importunity,

"Rise, rejoice, My poor, unmated dove," said he, " And look henceforth for love to me," A little further on he says:

" Become my wife and you shall be Made happy through prosperity,"

While, if she persists in declining his advances, wolf-like, he threatens to abandon her to starvation and cold. And this Pelatiah was a "deacon,"

" In exhortations deep and loud," The wanderings of David, his captivity, release, hapless interview with Pelatiah, discovery of Anna's second wifehood, and his sad going back to Algeria, are all told so pathetically that our feelings are deeply enlisted. No one, with any true sentiment, can read the poem without being thoroughly stirred. The fliustrations are in admirable keeping with the passages they are signed to portray, and a fine engraving of the author is a fitting frontispiece. The subject spirit, fire and passion of the poem should give it an extensive reading, aside from the interest which the literary reputation of the author must awaken in it. As a specimen of book-making the volume is certainly beautiful, and would adorn any center-table. We know of no work so well adapted as a present. It is printed on heavy tinted paper and most beautifully bound, price, $2.00; full gilt extra, $2.50. For sale by book-sellers, or by mall, post-paid, by S. R. WELLS & Co., Publishers, 737 Broadway, New York.
