NO CURE, NO PAY!

DR. JAMES KECK, LATE OF AURORA, Ill., takes pleasure in making the following Announcement to the afflicted: He will give a FREE TRIAL of a SURE CURE FOR CATARRH. No cure, no pay. Consultation on all chronic and private diseases FREE and strictly confidential. Don't fail to see the doctor. Remember that procrastination in the least of time, money, and health. Medicine sent to all parts of the country, and all proper questions answered through the mails. Below are the authorized statements of a few cases recently treated for Catarrh.

TO THOSE SUFFERING FROM CATARRH: I would state that I have been afflicted with Nasal Catarrh for twenty-five years. I had continual aching pains over the eyes, and could stand no more of the aching, with soreness in the stomach and left side, and could stand no more of the aching. In the fall of 1877, Dr. Sages' Catarrh Remedy, Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh, and other remedies recommended by friends, besides remedies from local physicians, all of which failed to cure, and the best gave but slight relief. About six weeks ago I met Dr. James Keck. He told me the trouble in my stomach and side was caused by the Catarrh having extended down to those points. He also said that he had a Sure Cure for Catarrh, and he could cure me. About five weeks ago I began using the "Sure Cure." The pain over my eyes has disappeared; the soreness in my stomach and side is gradually disappearing; my sense of smell is returning, and I feel like a new man, and am convinced that I will soon be permanently cured. Any one doubting the above facts, can consult me in person by mail, and I will reply to them free of charge. I have here written for you, Engineer R. R. Ferry boat.

DEAR DR. KECK: I came to Oregon for I thought I must die with consumption. I had been in bed for some time, and I had had all my life, and which I inherited from my mother. There was a hole eaten through the cartilage of my nose, and my health, every way, was bad in the extreme, with pains in my head, and general debility. I had a radical change after using the first bottle. The pains ceased in my head, my cough ceased, and I felt like a new man. I had no more in my mouth on rising in the morning. I have used three bottles of the "Sure Cure." I never could have believed such a change possible. I advise all afflicted with Catarrh to attend to it at once. The "Sure Cure" is rightly named. All may rely upon its merits. Yours for success, ROSE HUBBELL.

A NEW ILLUSTRATED POEM.

DAVID AND ANNA MATSON.

By Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway, Editor "New Northwest," Portland, Oregon.

WITH BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS, AND ELEGANTLY BOUND

A new epic, from a vigorous and skillful pen, on a subject which occupies a large place in the social discussions of the day. The subject is taken from Mr. Whittier's short narrative of "David Matson," with which the reader is probably familiar. David Matson, a Merimee sailor, was captured by the Algerines (during one of his voyages) and sold into slavery. After many years he obtained release and was on his way to the home of his boyhood, when he fell in with his old employer, who informed him that his wife, believing him dead, had remarried, and, standing by his trouble, he surrendered all claim as husband and father to the man who had stepped into his place, and departed. Mrs. Duniway has found a theme in this story which her heart beats in warmest sympathy, and her lines flow on in the smooth cadence of the fullest accord. She pictures the gentle, tender, trustful Anna and the wild, covetous Pelatiah in vivid colors; and how years of poverty and longing, and the cries of the hungry boys, compelled poor Anna to yield to Pelatiah's importunity.

"In with you, man? Pel'tiah said, 'You'll better try to earn your bread Than like the birds to bill and coo! 'Twill do for them to sigh and woe, For they have nothing else to do.'"

A little further on he says: "My poor, unnam'd dove," said he, "And look beneath for love to me."

While, if she persists in declining his advances, he threatens to abandon her to starvation and death. And this Pelatiah was a "deacon."

The wanderings of David, his captivity, release, hapless interview with Pelatiah, discovery of Anna's second wifehood, and his sad going back to Algeria, are all told so pathetically that our feelings are deeply enlisted. No one, with any true sentiment, can read the poem without being thoroughly stirred. The illustrations are in admirable keeping with the passages they are designed to portray, and a fine engraving of the author is a fitting frontispiece. The subject spirit, fire and passion of the poem should give it an extensive reading, aside from the interest which the literary reputation of the author must awaken in it. As a specimen of book-making the volume is certainly beautiful, and would adorn any counterpane.

We know of no work so well adapted as a present. It is printed on heavy tinted paper, and most beautifully bound, price, $2; full gilt extra, $2.50. For sale by booksellers, or by mail, post-paid.
