ETERY YEAR."

The spring has less of brightness Every year. And the show a ghastiler whiteness Every year? Nor do summer's flewers quicken. Nor do summer's feature thicken As they cales dut, for we sloken Every year.

It is growing darker, colder.
Every year.
As the local and mulgrow older
Every year.
Leave us now for dancing.
Or for eyes with passion glancing;
Love is ten and less entimining
Every year.

Of the lower and sorrow blended Every year; Of the jots of friendship ended Every year; Of the ties that still might bend me Until Time to beath resigned me, My infirmites remind me Every year.

Oh! how and to look before me Every year. While the clouds grow darker o'et toe Every year! Where we see the blossoms fided That to bloom we might have sided, And immortal garlands braided. Every year.

To the past go more dead faces.
Every year.
Come no new ones in their places.
Everywhere the sad eyes most us.
In the evening dusk they greet us.
And in come to them entrent us.
Every year.

"You are growing old," they tell us,
"Every year,"
"You are more since," they tell us,
"Every year,"
"You can win no new affection,
You have only recallection,
Leeper sorrae and dejection
Every year,"

Thank fied, no clouds are shifting Every year.
Our the fined so which we re-drifting Every year.
No lesses there will grieve us.
Nor leads or friends before us.
Nor death or friends before us.
Every year.

Had it been otherwise, however, these sketches, I am persuaded would never have been written. The sites of no less than one hundred lodges were visible, and, as Indians live as much in defiance of "cubic-air ordinances" as the Culnese of Portland, there must have been a population of from five to eight hundred here but a few days prior to the inception of our foolhardy expedition. For, in the light of subsequent events, it became plain that "Ned, the depraved," had countingly decoyed our tou-credulous commander, with the insignificant force, away from the main body, in expectation of witnessing their utter extermination. But we took up our line of march took toward the wagons, and about su -ed reached a fork of Willow Creek, where hungry and exhausted, we lay down upon the grass to pass the night. Next morning we were aroused by the musiof ten thousand crows, and daylight dis closed the fact that we had innocently invaded a breeding-place of these inter esting creatures, for the cottonwoo grove at hand literally swarmed with newly-fledged birds.
