

NEW SERIAL STORY.

The publishers of the NEW NORTHWEST are happy to announce that, on Thursday, November 20th, 1879, the first chapter of Mrs. A. S. Dunitz's new serial, "Mrs. Hardine's Will," will appear in this journal.

TEMPERANCE TEXT-BOOKS.

In several of the Eastern States, efforts are being made to encourage temperance by the introduction in the public schools of text-books which will teach the wholesome principles for which the noble advocates of the cause have so long and earnestly labored.

We honor the earnestness of the ladies, and recognize that considerable good may result; but no such efforts will be reached as they anticipate. The plan, however, will be more successful than that of the crusaders of a few years since.

Our best men are not marrying, because so many of our girls are saying, "You must take me for better, for worse, to feed me, to clothe me, to house me, to warm me, to keep me in the fashion, to give me a home proportionate to my style, to keep me in the money, and to will me the property of my husband, and to take my money, and do nothing to earn more, and to lament; if things go wrong, that I did not marry better, and you must regard it as a great favor on my part."

It is difficult to create such an abhorrence of liquor that it will not be used. Every man of brilliant intellect, fully cognizant of the results which will surely follow the continued indulgence in intoxicating liquor, will drink it year in and year out.

Among the opponents of woman's equality, the whisky interest is most demeritorious and most bitter. They fear every "bit" of the "benefit of woman," and consequently make the greatest cry about it that is heard among women.

Although the text-book movement will accomplish what is hoped for, it will convince the few advocates of temperance who agree with woman suffrage that their efforts to combat the evil will never be crowned with success.

"CAN'T AFFORD TO MARRY."

The New York Graphic recently treated its readers to a breezy little article in regard to the incapacity of wives, and bewailed the fact that many good men are saying, "Can't afford to marry!"

We positively answer that wives cannot only be made "self-supporting, or partly so," but that they do their share in the marriage copartnership in a majority of cases more faithfully than men.

The bill introduced into the Washington Territory Legislature provides that a letter-box shall be kept in each asylum, into which inmates personally drop their letters, and no one but an authorized post office agent can collect them.

The recent remarkable article by Francis Parkman in the North American Review in opposition to Woman Suffrage, which we noticed two weeks since, will be productive of much good to the cause, and show the author that he is a much better success in chronicle history than in predicting and helping make it.

A SKELETON DISCLOSED.

The way Brother Rock, of the Oregon City Enterprise, arraigned the Almighty some two weeks ago for having made women, must have set him to thinking, "Shallow-pated, senseless, idiotic, brainless fools!"

Wm. J. Bowditch, in commenting on the law allowing women to vote for members of school committees in Massachusetts, clearly reasons that, if election is right for them vote at all others, "Women may be members of the committee, and under this law can vote for other people to be members."

The State elections held on Tuesday morning in electioneering spirit, the people will not surrender the Government into the hands of those who are contented to take it.

THE "PACKARD" BILL.

The Legislative Assembly of Washington Territory, by a vote of 24 to 6, passed the "Packard" bill, for the better protection and relief of the insane of the Territory.

The bill introduced into the Washington Territory Legislature provides that a letter-box shall be kept in each asylum, into which inmates personally drop their letters, and no one but an authorized post office agent can collect them.

When the bill went to the Council, Mrs. Packard repeated her argument in favor of the measure, but without the effect that it produced in the Assembly.

MR. PARKMAN'S ARTICLE.

A dispatch from Key West, Florida, on the 6th, stated that the British brig George A. Berry, Captain Howard, loaded with lumber, from Pensacola to Montevideo, had arrived with the crew in custody. The captain was badly cut and injured. His life was saved and the vessel captured by the Spanish.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR READERS OF THE NEW NORTHWEST: The more the observing tourist sees of this magnificent "Upper Northwest," the more he sees that excites his admiration and astonishment.

On the morning of the 26th ult., after a comfortable night in the Dalles at the elegant new Unatilla House, of which we'll give a full description when time and opportunity shall offer, behold the undersigned, seated upon a buck-board, arrayed in every old wrap that we had been able to unearth before leaving home, beside us E. B. Ramsey, the gentlemanly driver, before us a pair of well-kempt horses, and behind, on the forehead, a ducking apron, under which were gunny sacks, coils of rope, and our own ubiquitous traveling basket, popularly known as "The Piggin'."

Seven A. M., and off again, this time with a hot rock in a box at our feet, and a new supply of blankets. Our stay was so short at the Agency that we were obliged to postpone further investigations till the return trip, when we hope to have a season of daylight for observations.

Thirty miles further, and Prineville. This letter is already too long for further particulars of our journey through the country. Next week's description will do as well. Suffice it to say that Prineville is a pretty and prosperous little town on the banks of the Ochoee River, where we have found refuge in a first-class pioneer hotel, kept by our Albany friends, Oliver Jackson and wife, whom we are pleased to see so prosperous and happy.

Major-General Joseph Hooker died at Garden City, Long Island, on the 31st ultimo. An immense funeral was held at Garden City, the body from New York to the train waiting to convey it to Cincinnati. Minute guns were fired and bells tolled during the funeral.

The legal condition of women who have the misfortune to have insane husbands has been illustrated by one or two cases which have lately been reported in the London Times. A few months since, there was a trial which the validity of the will of Mrs. Clagett, a married lady, was successfully disputed on the ground that her husband was an idiot, and therefore could not give his consent to his wife's making a will at all.
