

The New Northwest.

PORTLAND, OREGON, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1881

LOCAL EPITOME.

Mr. S. L. Marsh has returned from San Francisco. Sorensen's Pioneer Wood-yard is now at the foot of Morrison street.

St. Patrick's Day will be celebrated with the customary parade.

Hon. M. C. George arrived in Washington City on the 29th ultimo.

One day last week, four Chinamen were drowned in the Columbia River at Brooklyn.

Salinger & Co., No. 130 First street, are in the midst of their consolidation sale, and offer many rare bargains.

Owing to the superior finish and excellence of work, Abell stands prominent as a photographer. Give him a call.

The remains of Kenneth-Nielin Scott were interred last Friday in the family burying ground at Forest Grove.

The O. R. & N. Co. is prepared to sell through tickets to all the principal cities of the United States and Canada.

For good meals and excellent coffee at low prices, call at the Keystone Restaurant, corner of First and Salmon streets.

The iron collier for the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company has been launched from Roach's ship-yard at Chester, Penn.

Mr. E. F. Heroy is agent for the excellent New Domestic light-running sewing machines. He can be found at No. 225 Second street.

Capt. M. C. Wilkinson, in charge of the Indian school at Forest Grove, has been ordered to Washington on business connected with Indian affairs.

It is announced that Mr. J. F. Atkinson, of the late Bulletin, will soon commence the publication of another evening paper, to be called the Chronicle.

The present flood, though higher than the January freshet, has done little damage—probably because its predecessor made a clean sweep of everything.

The tender to Pier No. 1 of the Portland bridge has been carried away by the flood. Whether or not the pier is damaged, will not be known until the water recedes.

Miss MacConnell's lecture at the Unitarian chapel last evening on "Home and School Hygiene" was largely attended and highly entertaining and instructive.

The Portland Seamen's Friend Society returns thanks to the daily and weekly newspapers of this city for their continued visits to the reading-room of the Seamen's Bethel.

About the 29th instant, Mrs. A. E. West, the popular and successful Washington-street milliner, will depart for San Francisco to secure an elegant stock of Spring goods.

Everybody who wants neat and elegant first-class job printing of any description goes to Himes the Printer, No. 5 Washington street. His work is never marred by gross and inexcusable errors.

City Auditor Durban places the gross valuation of Portland's property at $13,512,955, the taxable portion being $9,512,460. The rate is 3 1/2 mills, so the tax for the current year will amount to over $32,300.

The San Francisco Board of Trade has adopted a resolution endorsing the memorial of the Portland Board of Trade for a Congressional appropriation to improve the navigation of the Columbia River and the bar.

Mr. A. J. Knott fell off the Stark-street ferry on Sunday last, and the boat passed over him, when Captain Robinson hooked his clothing with a pike pole and dragged him on the boat. He was pretty badly hurt and half-drowned. A narrow escape, indeed.

After a dangerous trip, the steamer Harvest Queen was on Tuesday brought from the Upper Columbia over the Tumwater Falls to take a place on the middle route. One of her engines became useless at the brink of the falls, and her hull and wheel were considerably damaged by striking submerged rocks.

The Portland Library has 9872 volumes, classified as follows: Fiction, 2882; History, 898; Travels, 616; Biography, 1034; Science, 962; Poetry, 557; Religion, 465; Miscellaneous, 1131; Jurisprudence and Government, 718; Bound Periodicals, 693. It also keeps on file 146 periodicals, ranging from the quarterly to the daily.

Mr. J. W. Bailey, of No. 47 Yamhill street, wishes it announced that on the 1st of January he adopted the rule of selling for cash only. Purchasers of fine staple and fancy groceries will receive the benefit of this change, as he will incur no losses by bad bills, and make his prices correspondingly low. Orders promptly attended to, and goods delivered in the city.

A cyclone passed over the town of Gervais on the 31 instant, prostrating houses and fences and killing much stock. It struck the school-house, and as the children rushed out they were lifted and whirled in the air among flying timbers, rails, planks, etc. None were killed, but thirty or forty were hurt, some seriously. The damage to property was about $5,000.

Few life insurance companies have withstood the pressure of the three most disastrous commercial panics which have ever visited this country; but the New York Life Insurance Company, whose card appears in another column, is thirty-five years old, and has not only weathered these storms, but by careful and economical management has accumulated the enormous surplus of $8,000,000. One of Portland's enterprising and energetic citizens, Benj. I. Cohen, Esq., has charge of its business, and our readers can depend upon receiving equitable treatment in their dealings with the company.

On the 30th ultimo, Miss Jane Smith, living on Eagle creek, Clackamas county, was the victim of a perilous ride. She was thrown from a horse, but her clothing caught the pommel of the saddle, holding her until the horse had run over half a mile. When rescued, she was senseless; but she soon recovered consciousness, and, strange to say, was not seriously hurt, though painfully bruised. The horse is a large one, and she was carried clear of the ground, and her bruises are supposed to have been caused from striking trees and brush while on her fearful ride. Her clothing was almost entirely torn from her.
