Portland, Oregon, Thursday, April 28, 1881.

The New Northwestern.

Local News.

Ladies' System to be extended across Tuner Count.

Dr. Paul M. Benson has returned from a short visit to the Eastern States.

Five States Charter arrived Monday evening.

Woods, 12th First Street, has the finest list of shooting supplies ever in this city.

The People's Transportation Company's new car arrived at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Oregonian's superior finish and excellence--Jackson, 350 Third Street.

Wells, A. D., has been appointed as a photographer.

The Beaudry has been added to the splendid list of Eastern and Western passenger trains.

The Branch Land League's meeting in Red Mary's Hall was attended by an unusually large crowd.

On Sunday, the successful railroad line of this city was the beginning of the East Portland.

The Oregonian has been the exclusive property of The Oregonian.

The young woman and her mother suffering from weakness and infection can now get regular doses of aviation gas.

The law was prepared by C. F. Mason, Esq., to be filed this week.

A fine list of the week's receipts from Oregon is now being handled.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On last Friday evening, a key boy was lost on the coming edition of the Oregon and Mrs. W. F. Jones, 306 Sixth Street. Neither father nor mother is known.

Last Sunday evening, the South Portland Mission was the scene of a very successful meeting, Rev. W. E. Ellin delivered an address.

An engagement for the next Sunday, the 29th, has been taken up with the ladies of the Continental Hotel, 111 First Street.

General Joseph Lane died on Tuesday evening at the age of 50 years. He left a large fortune.

The Oregonian is the largest daily paper on the Northwest.

The Supreme Court has decided in a recent case that the Oregon, Idaho and Nevada Coal Company is not a corporation.

Such a complete and varied stock of sporting and hunting supplies may now be found in the store of Woods, 110 and 112 Court, that the buyer will find it difficult to choose.

Mrs. Hiram D. Mcllwain, who has just completed a trip to the East, returned last week.

The lady is pleased to announce that Mr. J. C. Garfield, one of the most noted naturalists of the State, has joined the staff of the Oregonian.

The International Monetary Conference was held at Paris on Tuesday. The conference was well attended.

Mr. E. B. Burns, of the Portland Daily Journal, died on Thursday morning. He was 72 years old.

The Oregonian, has been the exclusive property of The Oregonian.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On Sunday, the successful railroad line of this city was the beginning of the East Portland.

The young woman and her mother suffering from weakness and infection can now get regular doses of aviation gas.

The law was prepared by C. F. Mason, Esq., to be filed this week.

A fine list of the week's receipts from Oregon is now being handled.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On last Friday evening, a key boy was lost on the coming edition of the Oregon and Mrs. W. F. Jones, 306 Sixth Street. Neither father nor mother is known.

Last Sunday evening, the South Portland Mission was the scene of a very successful meeting, Rev. W. E. Ellin delivered an address.

An engagement for the next Sunday, the 29th, has been taken up with the ladies of the Continental Hotel, 111 First Street.

General Joseph Lane died on Tuesday evening at the age of 50 years. He left a large fortune.

The Oregonian is the largest daily paper on the Northwest.

The Supreme Court has decided in a recent case that the Oregon, Idaho and Nevada Coal Company is not a corporation.

Such a complete and varied stock of sporting and hunting supplies may now be found in the store of Woods, 110 and 112 Court, that the buyer will find it difficult to choose.

Mrs. Hiram D. Mcllwain, who has just completed a trip to the East, returned last week.

The lady is pleased to announce that Mr. J. C. Garfield, one of the most noted naturalists of the State, has joined the staff of the Oregonian.

The International Monetary Conference was held at Paris on Tuesday. The conference was well attended.

Mr. E. B. Burns, of the Portland Daily Journal, died on Thursday morning. He was 72 years old.

The Oregonian, has been the exclusive property of The Oregonian.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On Sunday, the successful railroad line of this city was the beginning of the East Portland.

The young woman and her mother suffering from weakness and infection can now get regular doses of aviation gas.

The law was prepared by C. F. Mason, Esq., to be filed this week.

A fine list of the week's receipts from Oregon is now being handled.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On last Friday evening, a key boy was lost on the coming edition of the Oregon and Mrs. W. F. Jones, 306 Sixth Street. Neither father nor mother is known.

Last Sunday evening, the South Portland Mission was the scene of a very successful meeting, Rev. W. E. Ellin delivered an address.

An engagement for the next Sunday, the 29th, has been taken up with the ladies of the Continental Hotel, 111 First Street.

General Joseph Lane died on Tuesday evening at the age of 50 years. He left a large fortune.

The Oregonian is the largest daily paper on the Northwest.

The Supreme Court has decided in a recent case that the Oregon, Idaho and Nevada Coal Company is not a corporation.

Such a complete and varied stock of sporting and hunting supplies may now be found in the store of Woods, 110 and 112 Court, that the buyer will find it difficult to choose.

Mrs. Hiram D. Mcllwain, who has just completed a trip to the East, returned last week.

The lady is pleased to announce that Mr. J. C. Garfield, one of the most noted naturalists of the State, has joined the staff of the Oregonian.

The International Monetary Conference was held at Paris on Tuesday. The conference was well attended.

Mr. E. B. Burns, of the Portland Daily Journal, died on Thursday morning. He was 72 years old.

The Oregonian, has been the exclusive property of The Oregonian.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On Sunday, the successful railroad line of this city was the beginning of the East Portland.

The young woman and her mother suffering from weakness and infection can now get regular doses of aviation gas.

The law was prepared by C. F. Mason, Esq., to be filed this week.

A fine list of the week's receipts from Oregon is now being handled.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On last Friday evening, a key boy was lost on the coming edition of the Oregon and Mrs. W. F. Jones, 306 Sixth Street. Neither father nor mother is known.

Last Sunday evening, the South Portland Mission was the scene of a very successful meeting, Rev. W. E. Ellin delivered an address.

An engagement for the next Sunday, the 29th, has been taken up with the ladies of the Continental Hotel, 111 First Street.

General Joseph Lane died on Tuesday evening at the age of 50 years. He left a large fortune.

The Oregonian is the largest daily paper on the Northwest.

The Supreme Court has decided in a recent case that the Oregon, Idaho and Nevada Coal Company is not a corporation.

Such a complete and varied stock of sporting and hunting supplies may now be found in the store of Woods, 110 and 112 Court, that the buyer will find it difficult to choose.

Mrs. Hiram D. Mcllwain, who has just completed a trip to the East, returned last week.

The lady is pleased to announce that Mr. J. C. Garfield, one of the most noted naturalists of the State, has joined the staff of the Oregonian.

The International Monetary Conference was held at Paris on Tuesday. The conference was well attended.

Mr. E. B. Burns, of the Portland Daily Journal, died on Thursday morning. He was 72 years old.

The Oregonian, has been the exclusive property of The Oregonian.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.

On Sunday, the successful railroad line of this city was the beginning of the East Portland.

The young woman and her mother suffering from weakness and infection can now get regular doses of aviation gas.

The law was prepared by C. F. Mason, Esq., to be filed this week.

A fine list of the week's receipts from Oregon is now being handled.

The Oregonian, 101 First Street.