TO A CHILD.

If by any device or knowledge The rosebud its beauty could know, It would stay a rosebud forever, Nor into its fullness grow.

ROUGH AND SMOOTH.

Old Farmer Rough was grim and gruff, And drove his men about With "here!" or "there!" and oft would swear.

A pleasant word was seldom heard From him. "It is enough From day to day their hire to pay,"

'Twas thus he wrought and thus he brought Rich treasures from the soil, Believing still men worked with will

When ill-luck came, with frost and flame, And swept his goods away— When loss of health and loss of wealth Brought on an evil day—

But Farmer Smooth, who in his youth The benefits had learned Of tools well oiled, from those who toiled

And when the floods swept all his goods Away, and he was left In sorry plight—all in one night—

"THE MOTHER'S HANDS."

Fold them tenderly over her breast— Weary hands! Their tolling is over; at last there is rest.

See! they are hard and worn with care— Tolling hands! But who shall say, as you fold them there,

Then fold them tenderly over her breast— Weary hands! Their owner has gone to her heavenly rest—

BEFORE THE RAIN.

We knew it would rain, for all the morn A spirit on slender ropes of mist Was lowering its golden buckets down

Of marshes and swamps and dismal fens— Scooping the dew that lay in the flowers, Dipping the jewels out of the sea,

We knew it would rain, for the poplars showed The white of their leaves, the amber grain Shrank in the wind—and the lightning now

A BABY'S MISSION.

What can you do, you dearest of babies? You sweet, lazy baby, say what can you do? Mother and father and brother are working—

Crooning and tuning myself to the lessons, That seem very strange to me, fresh from the skies; Learning your language and learning to love you,

WHAT IT IS TO LOVE.

Love? I will tell thee what it is to love! It is to build with human thoughts a shrine, Where hope sits brooding like a beautiful dove;
