The New Northwest.

The New Northwest.

The New Year being at hand, it may be proper to say a few words about this journal's business at this time, in the hopes of its securing renewal subscriptions at the commence- ment of the future. The paper now enjoys a larger literary force than it has ever had in the past, and the result is that it is steadily growing; but there is corresponding expense, owing to unavoidable increases, and the net earning of the paper is more than enough to cover expenses, and by far a better margin than in former years. We should like to send our subscribers each week a box of very superior Christmas cigars, but no amount of sources will warrant it. However, we shall send the present year's gift at a larger rate than heretofore, and if any new subscribers are added to our present list, the number of boxes to be mailed will be increased. The general number of subscribers from the Dec. 24th will have had the box. We shall begin at once and endeavor to mail a specimen to each subscriber we have, and if any subscriber wishes to have a specimen mailed to him, he may write to us at once.

To the Editor of the New Northwest,

December 24, 1891.

Sirs: I wish to give notice of the time of the expiration of your subscription.

The New Year.

The old year is fading out, and the new is almost within sight. Right here and high we shall have a year, and a good year, and if the people and the world get along, it will be a year of more than usual importance to the world of women and the world. It is destined to record a step forward or backward in the movement of the women, for recognition as free and equal citizens before the law. In every part of the world women are struggling and hoping that the step will be a step forward, and advancing, with keen interest the historic Oregon stamp. We who are residents of Oregon have every cause to believe that the Legislature of '92 will be more fully the Legislature of women. Women names and faces, and will be assisting in forming for Oregon a constitution and state to do justice to women. Then let us hail with pleasure the new year that is just opening. We are trying everything in our power to aid in the best in our aid to the selection of good and true men for every office.

PROVOST CHASED.

This is what happens when women vote in Springfield, Mass., according to the Republican, which relates it as follows:

A sudden change came over the men of two community schools in Springfield this week, with the definite conclusion of the prophecies of Providence. Women have taken over. What is needed is an immediate profession. Then there will be no occasion to chronicle the occurrences of probability, for the men of the community schools, without a thought for their future, will be seized with the desire to be seized. In vain the men will protest, and furious expectation will not be permitted.

The men were called in, and the women cajoled on the good results attendant on their cooperation. It would be a difficult matter for the great mass of men to resist their invitations.

THE NEEDS THE BALLOT.

Certain trade unions have women members from membership, and are subject to the severest criticism. The trouble is that the women do not work at all well. The fact is, the women are not interested in the work in which they are employed, and if they had a ballot, they would not be satisfied with the work in which they are employed. The women are satisfied that they would be better off if they had a ballot, and the men are satisfied that they would be better off if they had a ballot.

The women feel that they are being deprived of the rights they have by the men, who have been accustomed to have these rights, and the women are not satisfied with these rights. There is no demand that the women should get the men's rights, but there is a demand that the women should get the right to vote.

In the Civil War trial during the past week, many doctors in charge of female soldiers have been called as witnesses, and it is said that the women soldiers are suffering more than the men soldiers, and that the women soldiers are suffering more than the men soldiers.

In the case of Miss当晚, at Independence, Postal Agent Simpson will publish an official statement of the condition of the journal against Proctor Hodges. The sale of the paper is going on, and it is believed that there will be a good sale of the paper. The paper is sold in all the public places.

The New Year is coming, and the New Northwest will publish a special number on New Year's Day. The number will be sent out to all subscribers, and it is believed that there will be a good sale of the paper. The paper is sold in all the public places.
