What Will the Harvest Be?

The above is an important question, and one the solution of which involves the weal or woe of the Oregon farmer. Another question of equal importance is, where shall we go to lay in our supplies of clothing and dry goods? The answer to the latter question might be readily answered by saying, "Go to the Square Deal store of Wollenberg & Abraham, where are kept large supplies suitable for the wants of all, and which they will dispose of for greenbacks, gold or silver, at very reasonable rates."

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

Finger of Suspicion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Ever since Durrant was arrested there has been a still hunt for the first person who mentioned his name in connection with the murder of Minnie Williams. Immediately after the horror of the library closet became known his name echoed in every mention of it. In a few hours the papers had extra editions, naming Durrant. By Saturday evening most people believed that the murderer was known. Dr. Vogel was asked to give an account of himself; the pastor told of his coming and going on Friday evening. Elmer Wolfe had to put on his thinking cap, and Sademan, the janitor, refreshed his memory. The detectives sought to know why Durrant was accused, but they were not ever able to find exact information.

Now it comes out that Mrs. Noble, the aunt of Blanche Lamont, was the first to mention him in connection with the tragedy.

Mrs. Noble talked freely of the case today. When asked whether Durrant told her, that memorable Wednesday evening, that he had seen Blanche that morning, she said:

"Yes; when I went to prayer meeting that evening it was agreed between Maud and myself that nothing should be said of Blanche's absence. We did not wish to make any unecessary fuss about a thing that might be cleared up in an hour. I was so troubled that I would not have gone to the church had I not been obligated to hand in a notice for an entertainment. I do not remember whether I went in ahead of Durrant or not, but I do know that he always sat in the back of the room during prayer meeting, and his coming to where I was was unusual. He asked me, as I have testified, whether Blanche would be there. He said she wanted "The Newcomes," but he had forgotten it and would bring it Sunday. Then he stated that he had met her on the way to school that morning.

"We suffered silently all day Thursday and Friday. It was not until Saturday that the anguish became so unbearable that we began to tell our church friends. Friday morning, a little after 9 o'clock, Durrant called here, bring with him "The Newcomes." Maud answered the bell. He asked if Blanche were at home and expressed no surprise at seeing Maud who would ordinarily have been at school. When Maud told him that Blanche was not at home, he said: 'I thought I might see her.' Maud closed the door and said:

"'Auntie, I believe he knows that Blanche is missing. Why should he come to see her at this hour? It is past school time and he acted rather strangely.'

"We did not think he knew anything of her whereabouts; we were concerned only that the fact of her disappearance might become known. Even when the detectives commenced to work on the case and came to me for the names of her friends I mentioned Vogel's name first. Durrant was an after-thought.

As has appeared during the trial, he offered his services to assist in the search. The following week dragged wearily on. Saturday morning Mrs. Keeler, the wife of the undertaker, called here to tell me that a body had been found and that it was not Blanche's.

"Knowing my frightful anxiety, my friends at the church feared that I would hear that a body had been found and might think it was Blanche, so they had dispatched Mrs. Keeler to tell me that it was the body of some one else. In referring to Blanche's disappearance and to the fact that Theodore was the last one to see her, Mrs. Keeler remarked that he had gone out of town. Like a flash his conduct from that Wednesday night prayer meeting passed before me. I remembered it all, his seeking me at the prayer meeting, his strange call Friday morning, what Maud had said, and his dreadful interpretation of her absence. A sickening realization came to me, and I said to Mrs. Keller:

"'Durrant has killed that girl.'

"That was after noon Saturday, April 13."

When the detectives were seeking this information, Mrs. Noble said that she did not know who first mentioned Durrant's name. She did not know that she herself had set the machinery of the law in operation against him.

Mr. Nolte, who found the body of Minnie Williams, said today:

"Durrant's name was not mentioned while I was at the church. In fact, I asked Mr. Gibson if he found out who did it to let me know. He did not send me word, and the first mention I knew was in the papers."

Dr. Vogel, who was called and identified the body of Minnie Williams, said:

"Durrant's name was not mentioned at the time the body was found. I heard it first early in the afternoon. I was, presumably, the first person to tell him that Blanche was missing That was the Sunday after the disappearance, when Detective Anthony called on me. I told Theodore on his way into church, going up the stairs. I cannot say n w how he acted when I told him. I had not connected him with her absence, and was not on the watch to see how he behaved."

The introduction of evidence on the part of the defense tending to show that Durrant had a good reputation previous to his arrest for the belfry horrors has given the prosecution an opportunity to present testimony in rebuttal which otherwise could never have reached the jury. It opens the way for the admission of some extremely damaging facts against the accused's character, and considerable surprise is expressed that Deuprey should have taken such risks.

Saturday evening, Oct. 19th. Co. A, 2nd Regt. O. N. G., will give their annual ball at the Armory. The grand march will begin at 9 o'clock. Music by the Roseburg Orchestra. A good time is promised.

CUBAN INSUURRECTION.

The latest dispatches indicate that the Spaniards under General Campos are making no headway toward putting down the rebellion. The insurgents are entrenched in their mountain fastnesses against whom the government is unable to gain any permanent advantage. The insurgents swoop down upon the Spanish troops, slaughter a large number of them, then retreat to the mountains again. Though they do not gain any battles, they succeed in decimating their ranks. These losses of the Spaniards and the depletion of their forces by disease is telling heavily upon their army, and until cooler weather returns Spain can illy afford to throw more into the island, as death by disease is more dreaded than the bullets of the insurgents.

Douglas County.

People from east of the Rockies who visit Oregon for the purpose of making a home here, should look over Douglas county before permanently locating. We have climate, soil and resources equal to any other section of the state. Good schools, numerous churches, benevolent and charitable associations, and an industrious law abiding, intelligent class of people. For scenic beauty Douglas county is unparrelled by any other locality in Oregon. Roseburg is the commercial center of Douglas county, and her citizens are a hospitable people, and give a cordial welcome to all strangers visiting the city. Come to Douglas county where fruit of every description is raised to perfection, and where a man and his family can enjoy all the comforts vouchsafed to man on this mundane sphere.

Chrysanthemum Show.

The W. R. C. of Roseburg will give a Chrysanthemum show, about the middle of November. It will be held for at least two days, at the Marks' store room. Ladies who are not members of the Relief Corps are cordially invited to join with us in making this the first show of the kind ever held in Roseburg—a grand success. Premiums will be offered. An admittance fee of 10 cents will be charged, the proceeds to go to the relief fund of the W. R. C. Full particulars will be given next week. By order of general committee.

The editor of the Review in his usual bragadocio style, boasts that he is "ready to furnish proof" that his circulation "is the largest of any paper in Douglas county." That is pretty good as a bluff. The editor has been bragging for years and probably now belives his paper is the best and of the widest circulation. But as his readers do not believe it he has taken a new twist on his kangaroo tail and says he is willing to furnish proof of it. If the editor's boast is not good we opine his proof might not be any better. The PLAINDEALER cares nothing about the Review's willingness to furnish proof of its circulation. It will fall as still-born as his boast.

Lord Sackville who figured conspicuously, and to his disgrace, in American politics in 1888, has not a very high opinion of politics on this side the waters, and has written a book entitled, "My Mission to the United States, '81, '89. For private circulation only." He is trying to get even on this government for the summary demand on England to call him home as an obnoxious person in this government, and to whom President Cleveland sent him his passport because of his pragmatic meddling in politics while a British minister here.

An Eastern man has hit upon a plan that keeps subscriptions paid up. Every time a delinquent subscriber is mentioned in his paper his name is inverted. For example, "William Grohau and family are spending the week in Chicago." Every subscriber knows what it means and immediately there is a grand rush to get right side up again.—Ex.

Gov. Evans of South Carolina is responsible for the novel information that "God Almighty never intended that the blackbird or the crow should ever soar up to the mountain top, where the white eagle alone builds her nest." It was never intended either to have the tail feathers of the American eagle pulled out by South Carolina jays.—Globe Democrat.
