CLEVELAND'S SUPREMACY.

The fact of most importance in the matter of the talk about a third term is that there would be nothing of the kind if the democratic party had a man big enough to command serious attention as really has more republican than demoneeded in a president. The list of leading democratic statesman does not contain the name of one whose record, ability and character can be said to signalize resposibilities of that great office. They are all wanting in some of the essential elements of fitness for the highest politithem who is identified with any important and successful measure or policy, and not one who would arouse any en-Stevenson, Bayard, Carlisle, Campbell, Morrison and the others who have been mentioned as possibilities fall far below the standard of first-class statesmanship, ter of the situation, will make some effort and would not be thought of for a moment if their party was provided with sea convention next week. the kind of leaders that it had in its better days.
