JUSTICE TRIUMPHANT.

Two of the most remarkable trials for murder of a blood-curdling nature have inst closed. That of Theodore Durrant of San Francisco, for the murder of Blanche Lamont ,a school girl, and that of H. H. Holmes in Philadelphia, for the murder of Benjamin F. Pitezel. Each of these men have been found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury of

These verdicts meet the popular approval of the localities where tried and the approbation of the lovers of justice throughout every enlightened community in the world. Such fiends in human shape are travesties upon civilization and foul blots upon the human character. The thoughtful may well ask, "What protection to innocence and virtue does modern civilization afford?"

These verdicts, however, give hopes that a better state of morals are in store for us in the future. And yet it is posible and even probable that the ingenuity of shrewd lawyers may devise ways to thwart justice and set these vile excresences of humanity free to again prey upon society. We will await developments in these cases with deep anxiety.

Roseburg's Need.

It is a fact patent to every one who has given any thought to the subject that the principal factor of the greater wealth of the eastern states, more especially of the new England states, is their manufacturing industries.

It is a fact susceptible of proof that no town, city, county or state can prosper and become wealthy that neglects manufactoring industries. Manufacturing towns enhance the wealth of the county adjacent to them, because the operatives of manufactories are consumers of the raw products of the county, both for those which enter into manufactured articles and of food products. There is a reciprocity of interest between each class. Suppose some enterprising man or company of men should establish a tannery in Roseburg, such an institution would necessarily employ several men to operate it. They and their families would have to be clothed and fed. These the country would furnish. The tannery would need hides and skins to work up. The county could furnish those. The tannery would need bark for tanning. That would give employment to laborers to prepare it-fell the trees, peel off the bark and cure it for use. Then teams would be required to haul it to the tannery. Thus this one manufactory would give employment to several laborers. Other manufactories would do a like business-furnish the people of the country articles of needed uses and they in turn furnish manufacturers with articles of food, fuel and other things they might need; and so by multiplying manufactures the hum of industry would charm the ears of thoueands now idle.

Obituary A. J. Chapman, the subject of this memoir, was born in Ohio in 1820. He moved to Illinois when s young man, where he resided several years. He was married to Miss Sarah J. Marks, March, 1844. To this union were born eleven children, five boys and six girls, six of whom survive him, namely, Mrs. L. C. Wheeler, Mrs. Dr. Kremer of Grants Pass, Mrs. J. C. Aiken, Mrs. Wilson, A. J. Chapman, Jr., of Garden Valley and J. I. Chapman, deputy county clerk. Mrs. Chapman, his life companion, passed over life's "turbid", stream last January. Mr. Chapman emigrated from Illinois and came to this coast in 1853. He stopped the first winter in Salem. In the spring of 1854 he moved to Mt. Scott, east of Roseburg. From thence he went to Canyonville where he lived two years, thence he moved to Wilbur in 1866. He was appointed the first railroad agent at that place. He remained a citizen of Wilbur up to the date of his

Mr. Chapman was at one time largely interested in stock raising and did much as a citizen to redeem the county from the wild condition in which he found it in 1853 and make it what it is today, one of the first counties in the state.

Mr. Chapman was an honored member of Oakland Lodge, No. 16 of the A. F. & A. M., which gave him the last sad rites, of sepulture at Wilbur, October 29,

Thus, one by one the old pioneers pass away as falls the autumn leaf, and the places that once knew them will know them no more except a kind rememberance of their many noble qualities o head and heart.

A Pleasact Party.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the season was the informal dance given by Mrs. I. J. Curry at her beautiful home at Riversdale Farm, Saturday evening last. Dancing was the principal amusement of the evening, fortified by an excellent collation. Those present were: Mrs. I. J. Curry, Mrs. George Haines, Mr. and Mrs, Chas Curry, Misses Belle, Birdie and Edith Curry, Misses Lizzie, Abbie and Rose Parrott, Regina Rast, Rose Bushey, Lucy Stanton, Lola and Belle Willis, Mollie Ruckels, Jon Givans, Herman Marks, F. M. and i. H. Zigler, Nat Curry, F. W. and George Haines, Cole Stanton, Bert Benjamin, E. L. and C. W. Parrott, Dr. B. L. Bradley and T. J. Wilson.
