 OWED TO THE REVIEW.

The Plaindealer has said but little in reply to the continuous snoring of the Review at our heels, like a many cur at a mastiff. These newspaper quarrels are not relished by men of good taste and we would avoid it. But these continual abuses by false charges and base innuendoes thrust at the Plaindealer by the Review have become intolerable, and further forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. The animus of all that paper's scurrilous attacks is to build up the Review by tearing down the Plaindealer. That it is doing neither the one nor the other is not its fault, but its misfortune.

From two to a half dozen paragraphs in every issue of the twice-a-week Review, for the past four or five years, have been devoted to the pleasant task of informing its readers how enterprising were its proprietors, and what great, big-headed, brainy, journalist were they; and what a magnificent paper they were turning out; and how their efforts were appreciated by the people, who flocked in by hundreds to subscribe for "America's greatest country newspaper," and what a rushing business they were doing, and how they were prospering; and how business was constantly increasing and booming; and how business men were breaking their necks in their haste to get in their advertisements before the rapidly increasing circulation caused a rise in prices; and altogether, to hear the Review tell it, they were having a monopoly of the newspaper business, and a happy, high old time generally.

At the same time the Review liar-in-chief was telling the dear people what an unpopular paper the Plaindealer was, and what poor business it was doing, and that it was daily expected to go into bankruptcy, etc., etc., being unable to compete with "America's greatest," because, owing to its "patented outsiders," probably, its daily edition could not furnish the local happenings and telegraphic news more than from one to three days ahead of the Review.

Just what degree of prosperity has overtaken the bag of stale wind that edits the Review we do not know. Neither do we care. But it is only fair to presume that the story he tells about his general prosperity is fully as great as the lies he tells concerning his paper's circulation.

The "circulation liar" is the most contemptible liar in the universe, because, generally, he never so well, it profiteth him nothing. He can deceive none but the credulous. The circulation liar of the Review for years has kept standing at the head of his paper the following false legend, intended to deceive its patrons:

"The semi-weekly Review, with its bona-fide circulation of 2,300 copies each issue, invites comparison with any other country newspaper in the United States. It is the Advertiser's Mascot."

We assert, and defy the Review to prove to the contrary, that it has not now, nor for the past two years or more, if it ever had, a circulation of 2,300. We are morally certain, in spite of the constant repetition of the circulation liar, that

"The twice-a-week Review is having a genuine advertising and subscription boom. It commenced five years ago, and is growing in proportion as time rolls on," that it falls short of that number by several hundred, and that in all probability its published lie can be discounted about 40 per cent. Truly the circulation liar is the chief of all liars. Ananias in his day, couldn't hold a candle to him. But if he had only lived till now and were associated with the Review man, what a pair they'd be to draw to!

And what has all this lying profited the Review? Does it bring it in more subscribers? If so, then why does it not have more than 2,300 subscribers now, instead of less?

Does this continuous, unblushing lying bring it in more advertisement or make them bring a higher price? Well, hardly that, even, for the Review's rates are lower than ever before, and its columns are not overburdened with ads. Then why all this lying? The only conclusion is that the liar-in-chief of that paper lies purely for the lust of lying so far as his own business is concerned, and with that we have no particular concern. It is his own affair. But as to his lies concerning the Plaindealer, they emanate from the rutenness of a heart, spurred to action by envy, jealousy, and general counselness.

TELEGRAPH NEWS

Bond Bill Pass.
 WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The house today passed the bond bill by a vote of 170 to 136: and the house, having discharged the task for which it has been sitting during the recess, effected an agreement by which it should adjourn next week, three days at a time, in order to give members an opportunity to pass New Year's day at their homes.

The closing hours of the debate today were lacking in spirit, and there was practically no excitement until the vote was taken. The margin of 34 by which the republican opponents of the measure massed their opposition, was passed showed that the friends of the measure had marshaled every vote in its favor available. As it was, 47 republicans refused to act with the majority of their party. The populists and democrats, with the exception of Hutchinson, who voted for the bill, presented an unbroken front against the bill.

The bill, as passed, amends the redemption act so as to permit the issue of 3 per cent coin bonds, redeemable after five years, at the pleasure of the government, and payable in 15 years, with the specific provision that nothing in the bill shall be construed to repeal the act of 1878 for the issue of the greenbacks, and that the bonds shall first be offered for subscription at the subtreasuries and depositories of the United States.

The second section of the bill provides for the issue of three-years 3 per cent debt certificate of denominations of $20 and multiples thereof, in amounts not exceeding $50,000,000, to meet temporary deficiencies.

When the house convened today, only three hours remained for debate on the bond bill. The vote, by the terms of the rule under which the house was operating, was to be taken at 3 o'clock.

The vote on the first section of the bill was as follows:
 Ayes—170; Nays—136.

Carlisle to Dingley.
 WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Chairman Dingley, of the ways and means committee, has received a letter from Secretary Carlisle, which is private, but which furnishes some information concerning the condition of the treasury. Dingley says the secretary offers to furnish the house all the data that may be needed. The condition of the treasury is represented as very serious, and Carlisle urges legislation for gold bonds.

Dingley has informed the secretary that gold bonds are out of the question, and could not be considered. Secretary Carlisle did not say to Dingley that 3 per cent bonds cannot be floated, and did not discuss this feature of the case. This denial is made because a report to this effect concerning the secretary's letter is in circulation.

More Favorable to the United States.
 BERLIN, Dec. 28.—German feeling in the Venezuela difficulty seems to be veering around. Although the government studiously refrains from an expression of opinion, from an official of the foreign office it has been learned that several diplomatic attempts have been made by Great Britain during the past week to induce Germany to join in the movement looking to a combined European diplomatic action opposed to the latest application of the Monroe doctrine. These efforts have thus far met with non-withdrawals, and unless things assume a more serious aspect, Germany will keep officially aloof from the question.

Popular feeling is certainly more favorable to the United States, as the course of the trouble is coming to be understood.

Wiped Off the Map.
 LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 28.—Although he is 86 years old, Cassius M. Clay, the hero of many hard-fought battles for abolition in Kentucky, and Lincoln's war minister to Russia, in an interview declares congress should issue $1,000,000,000 of 100-year bonds, put a tremendous army in the field and take a possession of Canada, saying to the Canadians that they could come into the United States peacefully if they would, but come they must. He would ask all the South American republics to join to put down European tyranny, would offer amnesty to all ex-Confederate soldiers and sailors, would fortify the seacoast cities as rapidly as possible, and should a British fleet overpower any one of them he thinks such a city, like Moscow, should be fired so that the British, upon landing, would be greeted with only brick and mortar.

He thinks Russia would jump at the opportunity of war between this country and England to annihilate the Turks, and that between the absolutism of Russia and the democracy of America, Great Britain, the "old robber of the sea," would be wiped off the map.

Train Ditched.
 Yesterday evening the local, south-bound, struck a cow south of Comstock, causing the engine to tilt over on one side and the baggage car and mail car to be derailed, tearing up the track for about 40 feet. The engineer, William Sully was the only person hurt, having his face cut and bruised, but not dangerously so. The train was consequently delayed till 6:10 this morning.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN
 Has come not a little knowledge as to cookery—what to do, as well as what not to do. Thus we have learned to use COTTOLENE, the most pure and perfect and popular cooking material for all frying and shortening purposes. PROGRESSIVE COOKING is the natural outcome of the age, and it teaches us not to use lard, but rather the new shortening, COTTOLENE, which is far cleaner, and more digestible than any lard can be.
 The success of Cottolene has called out worthless imitations under similar names. Look out for these! Ask your Grocer for COTTOLENE, and be sure that you get it.
 Made only by M. K. FAIRBANK & CO., ST. LOUIS and CHICAGO, NEW YORK, BOSTON.
