POPULIST CONVENTION SATURDAY

During the forenoon the populist delegate convention went through the usual formula of organizing and raising a committee...

After dinner, about 1:30, the chairman called the convention to order and then politely announced that "any one not a populist will please retire..."

Though no action was taken by the convention as to that, it was the general consensus of opinion that James F. Gaskie, the Cicero of Douglas county populism, will be the candidate for state senator...

The time for holding the primary conventions of the republican party is near at hand, and the question might be asked, are republicans prepared and willing to do their duty...

primary, all well know, lies the foundation of the action of the county convention, and it depends upon the complexion of the delegates sent to that convention...
