Dillard, who has been sick several weeks with typhoid fever, is reported slowly improving. Born, Sept., 6, 1896, to the wife of Harvey Jones, a son, and all goes well in Garden Valley. Mr. H. Parry, who was seriously hurt at the bicycle grounds, August 24th, is again upon the streets. Ginger ale, Aristas Water, soda, and other soft drinks at Slow Jerry's drink emporium, now on draft. Sam Turner has passed the seventeenth mile stone and is a well to do bachelor. Job Hatfield, (84), George Bowers, (72), and several other veterans here have never married but there is not a crusty bachelor in the lot. This is a hint to the leap year girls of '96. Scottsburg has the oldest tannery in Oregon. It was built in 1853 by Levy Kent, now a prominent and active business man in Drain. The tannery has twelve liquor vats, two leaches and horse power, and makes skirting leather for San Francisco. A. E. Ozon ran it in years away back. He lives in a beautiful cottage in Scottsburg and loans money and takes solid comfort. The tannery is now owned by State Senator Reed of Gardiner and is managed and worked by T. W. Andrews, who has been connected with it since 1880. That is one little enterprise that never failed to make men money. P. P. Palmer, extensive farmer, hotel-keeper and all a round business man, came to Oregon in '51, and he looks and acts as in the prime of life, and it would take columns of the PLAINDEALER to mention the grandpas and grandmas in the beautiful Umpqua valley. Scottsburg is recognized as the richest little town of its population in the state, and up the Long Prairie valley, which extends from Scottsburg to Elkton, has farms about all the way. Mortgages are few if any. The Scottsburg store carries a stock approximating $9,000 in value and handles lots of produce and ships schooner loads of grain. Its trade extends twenty miles up the valley and twenty-three miles up the river, but with all its varied business, John Hedden manages all. For fourteen years he has been the efficient postmaster. The gentleman was born in Scottsburg, and when school days were over took to steamboating, from which he retired in favor of merchandising twenty years ago. His father, Cyrus Hedden, now seventy-six, is a hale and wide awake gentleman who attends to his live stock and sees after things with the vim of forty. The Hedden ranches, four in number, encompass 1500 acres with 500 acres in cultivation, and rented out for the raising of grain and cattle, for which this region is noted. They then own buildings and lots and an enviable reputation for commercial principle and every good quality. It is conceded that Long Prairie valley raises the best mill oats in the state and has a congregation of as good people as ever pioneered the golden west. The valley is now very beautiful with alternate fields of green, brown and gold, between is the mirror like river, winding and towering above are the timber clad mountains in varied hues. Sloping fields, orchards and gardens adorn substantial homes, a splendid roadway leads along, and fields as level as a table stretch to the river. From the mountains, springs and cascades descend, and gurgle beneath bridges which will bear any load. In the river fishermen are busy and the sound of the murred's rattle reverberates from craig to craig. JAMES CARSWELL.

SCOTTSBURG.

The most prominent structure in the place is the commodious, handsome and proportionate State Normal Institute, which opens for the session on the 7th of September. With the normal and public school combined, 300 pupils are enrolled. These educational institutions occupy a thoughtful eminence and add greatly to the attractiveness of the town. At the other end of Railway avenue, is the lovely home of J. W. Krewson. It is a charming cottage at the base of the mountain, and with lawn, shrubbery and playing fountain is an ideal picture of rest and comfort snug. J. W. Krewson came here in 1896, before Drain was dreamt of. He became its first merchant, first postmaster, first railway and first express agent. He began business when the railway came, with a small stock of merchandise, now he carries from $3,000 to $4,000 worth of merchandise and has a wide trade. His home farm encompasses seventy-two acres, and has three other ranches, aggregating 400 acres, and is a substantial citizen in every way. He was born in Ohio, served with the gallant 10th Iowa infantry in the war, and officially here is Notary Public, and was many years Justice of the Peace. He has never had a reversal of judgment, and it is worthy of note that he has married many a happy couple, and is proud especially of one couple as he married their children nearly twenty years ago. Squire Krewson is a man of excellent business capacity and method, and a thoroughly progressive citizen and social gentleman. He and the late Charles Drain built the Drain flouring mills which are now running night and day, and in many ways he has aided materially in developing the country and the public weal. The saw mill at Hudson which has been closed down will again resume operation this week under the control of Perkins & Bridges and will give employment directly and indirectly to forty men. The mill is a double circular with a capacity of 30,000 feet a day, and will get out material for the Rio Grande Railway, and whatever contracts may turn up, the product consisting of fir and spruce. Perkins and Bridges own about 750 acres of splendid timber, and the former gentleman owns individual tracts and they will contract with others for log supply. With the saw mill are two planers and a lathe mill and every department will be utilized, and the little Hudson village with its twenty-one cottages will resume its beehive activity. Hon. W. A. Perkins is the senior member of the firm of Perkins & Company, general merchants, with a $7000 stock. The company being L. M. Perkins, son of the aforesaid, who became a partner last month. The latter gentleman owns a 350 acre ranch with 200 cultivated acres at Hudson and has the attributes of the successful business man. W. A. Perkins was born in Tennessee near the North Carolina line. He came to Oregon in 1875, locating at Oakland till '78, when he made Drain his permanent home. From 1882 till 1878 he followed teaching as a profession and became noted as to ability and the manner of instruction most happy in results. He has been a member of the legislature and was an active member of the building committee having charge of the State Normal institute and is the same live go-ahead gentleman. Hon. J. T. Bridges is member elect of the legislature and is only 26 years of age. He is a quiet conservative business man but gets there all the same. The Drain flouring mills are running twenty-four hours a day, and at the same time receiving internal improvements to elevators and bins. Propulsion to machinery is given by the aid of a turbine wheel with eleven feet fall from Pass creek, and a new 25-horse power engine just put in place. With three double stands of patent rolls and other modern auxiliaries the output is thirty barrels of flour per miller's day, and the custom trade is very extensive. William Russell & Son bought the flour mills seven years ago and by present prosperity it is evident they have a bonanza. William Russell is a pioneer, he having arrived in Oregon from Ohio in 1848. He received $5 a month drying oxen across the plains and has stayed by the state ever since. He owns a ranch in Lane county and Drain property and is an indefatigable worker. The Drain hotel under the ordinary dictate of Mrs. Russell is doing good business and is open day and night, and the genial general manager, John Woods, has held the part of Boniface for four years and is universally popular. The postoffice may also be said to be a night and day institution, as it receives eight and forwards eight mails every twenty-four hours. The postmaster, has resided nine years in Drain and has been postoffice chief for nearly that time. He is also the owner of a first-class pharmacy which externally resembles a bank, and he owns a ranch of 636 acres near Oakland, and interest in a 323 acre farm, six miles west of Drain and his residence in town and land at South Drain which is not developing very rapidly. The deputy postmaster, Roy Applegate, has been with him for nearly five years and is a young gentleman of bright promise. The youngest merchant in Drain is J. A. Black, who deals in everything and is the undertaker, being the first undertaker in this healthy region. Mr. Black is a native son, having been born in Marshfield. In 1884 he went to Gardiner and was connected with Senator Reed's extensive interests and he has been here for four years, two of which he was a member of the firm of Bridges & Black and is now doing good business on his own account and is in every regard worthy of untended patronage and esteem. The veteran, Levy Kent now past seventy five, is lively and keen and retains his position daily as the senior of Kent & Son, (hardware merchants with all pertaining thereto. He is a native of New Jersey, but raised in Ohio. He came to California in '49, mined with varied fortune, hopped paid trains and did the pioneer act all through. He built the Scottsburg tannery in '53 and afterward bought land and engaged in sheep farming near Elkton and now has 1500 acres near there and on the Oakland road, there three of his sons, John, Frank and Albert Kent, have about a thousand sheep and a herd of cattle. He has been county commissioner, justice of the peace and postmaster. His son and partner in the hardware business, Walter W. Kent is one of the most deservedly popular young men in the county. He was born at Elkton and studied at the State Normal and is an able business man. He has been county clerk and town treasurer and is worthy of any position of responsibility. He owns buildings and lots and contemplates building a commodious hardware store by spring. Joel Kirtley, the builder, is kept busy all the time. He is a pioneer and ex-Indian fighter. He came to Oregon in '50. Was twenty years in Portland and came to Drain in '73, one year after its birth. G. M. Bassett, the railway agent at Drain, is a native son, born in Linn county. He began railroading as freight clerk at Salem and his rise has been rapid. For nearly two years he has been at this station and is appreciated by all classes as to ability, promptitude and gentlemanhood. Drain has a normal population of 300 which is frequently increased to over 600 by the State Normal College. JAMES CARSWELL.

OKLAHOMA.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Bailey came over from Roseburg Saturday. Miss Julia Raymond returned from Salem last week where she has been for several months. Creed Chenoweth and Geo. Stearns left Saturday to inspect the Bohemia wagon road. Miss Kittie Clarke of Millwood, and Miss Lena Thompson of Coles Valley were visiting friends here last week. Will Underwood sold his interest in the furniture store recently to B. J. Bvingdon who will carry on the business at the old stand, and also his harness shop which he has moved into the back part of the furniture store. E. G. Young & Co shipped a large quantity of ducks and chickens to Portland last week. Mrs. G. H. Shambrook and son, Ben, of Umpqua Ferry were visiting in town a few days last week. Mr. F. W. McKechnie's parents left on Thursday morning's local for their home in Manitoba, Canada. A Coffey of Yoncalla passed through here Saturday on his way home from Bandon, where he has been enjoying the sea breeze. Mrs. Hamlin of Portland is visiting friends in town. Messrs. Marks, Zigler and Parrott of Roseburg came over Sunday on their bicycles. E. O. Parker commenced his fall term of school at Nonpareil last week. He reports the school in good condition and attendance large for so early a commencement. The ladies of the Baptist congregation gave the church a general cleaning and renovating last Friday, which adds much to the appearance of the church. The Junior Endeavor Society that meets at the Presbyterian church on Sunday's at 2:30 p. m. under the leadership of Mrs. C. N. Courtwright, is progressing nicely. The officers' reports were read Sunday, showing a gain of twenty-six members in the last month making some fifty members enrolled now. The several reports show an interest taken by the members in the work assigned them. Deputy Sheriff Stephens moves his family to Roseburg this week to live. Rev. C. N. Courtwright and family will move into Mr. Stephens' house for their future residence. Page & Dimmick received last week a large supply of school books, slates, ink and various other articles that scholars use in the school room, which can be had at reasonable prices. Mr. J. W. Garrison of whom we have recently spoken, employed Drs. Page and Gilmore to amputate his limb that has given him much trouble for years, caused by a gunshot wound received during the war. The doctors found the bone badly diseased which compelled them to amputate the limb to carry out their agreement with Mr. G. while under the influence of chloroform. He revived from the effects of the chloroform nicely and the stump was in good shape but the system had taken up so much of the poisonous matter that death came to his relief a few days after the operation. Had this been done at an earlier period no doubt but he would have survived the operation. His body was interred in the I. O. O. F. cemetery Thursday evening. Cured. Last Saturday evening the members of the Roseburg fire department, in special meeting assembled, presented to Past Chief L. A. Sanctuary, a handsome gold headed cane, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his services in drilling the hose team which proved victorious in the recent field sports. Mr. W. Haines of Eugene, who is engaged in tanning and dressing leather, was in the city Friday. Mr. Haines has been engaged in his present occupation at Eugene for over fifteen years, and finds it a profitable business, even these hard times. He devotes his time and attention to his business and lets speculations in other business alone. Shasta Water at Slow Jerry's cigar and drink emporium.

A Whirlpool of Danger.
To grapple with what is called the "social evil" would be a hopeless task, but we may do something to prevent our girls from being swallowed up in the deadly whirlpool. The current sets in small, and with but a little ripple at first, then is the time for parents to act before it becomes a mighty force and the child is engulfed. Encourage the little lisping infant to tell mother everything, to foster that habit as time moves on. Be present as far as possible when the children play together, and note the character of the little friends. If sure that they are impure minded refuse them further hospitality. As your girl grows older, take her into your confidence, and warn her against the lower world that forms part of this. Set your foot firmly down against evening walks with boy friends, as well as the isolated evening calls. If she has to go to any evening entertainment without either parent, insist that it be with the crowd going the same way, and not with the one friend. In numbers, often, there is safety. If your own hand is not firm enough to draw her from these tiny currents, which are but the outer ruin of destruction, enlist her father's help, and any friend of your own who may have influence over her, for, with God's help your child. And if, for our unworthiness
Toil, watching, prayers are vain
In disappointment He can bless,
So love at heart prevail. L.
