THE HINMAN AFFAIR.

The Review commenting on what the Plaindealer said about Bob Hinman shooting Wm Higgins who was looking for him, says: "What is the use of telling a lie when the truth will do just as well. Neither Higgins nor Riley was a deputy sheriff. Technically speaking they were not, by written commissions signed by the sheriff and countersigned by the county clerk, but they were authorized by the sheriff to catch and bring Bob Hinman in and for which service the sheriff was to pay him or them 25 of the $50 reward offered. So practically, they were deputized by the sheriff to arrest Bob Hinman. So there is no use of quibbling about that. Had Deputy Stephens been in Higgins place, he could not have done more than to arrest Bob and fetch him to jail and that was what Higgins was trying to do.

The excuse of the sheriff that he was too busy preparing for the coming district court, cuts no reasonable figure in the case. He allowed Hinman to escape and it was his fault, and he should have had deputies in the field after Hinman. The meagre reward of $25, offered by the sheriff, was equalled by an outsider who was under no responsibility to the electors of the county.

As to the Sam Brown affair, Sheriff Cathcart offered many times $25 for Brown's arrest, and had it not been for the aid and comfort of some of the Review's friends in securing Brown, some of the "twenty deputy sheriffs" would have doubtless recaptured him and brought him to justice. But the Review raised such a howl of indignation and condemnation of the county judge for allowing so many deputies at that time that he, probably, feared another onslaught from that potent journal and thought it best not to do again, but let the sheriff catch his own escaped prisoners. We do not know what the judge's reason for refusing to allow deputy sheriffs to catch the sheriff's jail birds was. Whether he stood in awe of the Review or of the tax payer, or whom or what, we know not. When Sam Brown escaped, Cathcart and his deputies were day and night on his trail with an offer out of a respectable reward for his capture, while the Review was doing all it could to aid Brown's escape by publishing to the world the officers' movements as reported to it by Brown's friends who were on the lookout and giving Brown timely warning. When one of Brown's friends was arrested "for assisting the escape of a felon," the Review and its friends came promptly to his aid and succeeded in throwing the case out of court. He may have been innocent of the charge for ought we know, but his friends were determined he should not be tried on the indictment found against him by a grand jury of the county, and he wasn't.

The truth is, there were no twenty deputies on the county payroll, neither were there ten, nor even three, except when they went into Coos county after Brown. The judge said that Brown's escape was the result of the negligence of the sheriff and it was the sheriff's business to recapture him. So, now, the escape of Hinman was the negligence of the sheriff and he must recapture him at his own expense.

The Review readily condemned Sheriff Cathcart and his deputies for not catching Brown, and condemns the judge for allowing the appointment of "twenty deputies" to aid in catching a felon—a convicted murderer—who, aided by his friends, escaped jail in the night, and now the Review condemns the judge for not allowing the appointment of deputies to catch a burglar who dug out of the jail in broad daylight while the sheriff and his deputies were probably taking an after dinner siesta. Mr. Review, you had better not rake up the Sam Brown case till you are out of the woods. You played the Sam Brown and Sheriff Cathcart and his deputy racket, as a trump card and won the game, and now that the run of the cards has changed, you try to evade the loss of the game by crying out "a misdemeanor." But the cards are now in our hands, and we will play the game out. So come down with your three knaves—Fraud, Deception and Trickery, we hold three aces—Truth, Justice and Right.

Our populist friends never cease nagging us about confidence. One asked us the other day this question: "When will confidence come? It is about time he was here." Well, my friend, he is coming; but it is well known that confidence is not so swift a runner as despair. Had Bryan been elected despair would have been here weeks ago, reveling in delight upon our misery. It is a law of the conservation of forces that good effects from any cause come slowly, while the evil like the skunk on a boiling pot rises continually and needs to be removed occasionally or it will mingle with the food that is being cooked. We removed the skunk November 3, and soon the good meat will be done—McKinley in the White House.

Several would be trimmers of political maneuvers are trying to force Senator Mitchell to open his mouth that they may see whether or not he has any gold filled teeth. If they can find that the Senator has his dental cavity filled with silver instead of gold amalgam, they propose that he shall not chew any Senatorial gum. One Lydel Baker is thus engaged in trying to pickle the Senator till he laughs, for the purpose of making an inspection of the Senator's incisors, cusps and molars.

While the president as head executive of the nation has observed treaty stipulation with Spain and has done what he could to maintain a strict neutrality in the Cuban affair, he cannot prevent or choke down the sympathy of our people for the Cubans. The spirit of liberty in American citizens is so deep seated they cannot and will not withhold their sympathy for a people struggling for freedom.

Last Words to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President Cleveland has been devoting a great deal of time to his annual message during the last week, and now has it well in hand so that it can be finished in a couple of days.

The message is expected to be one of the ablest documents Mr. Cleveland has written during his two terms. It will be in a sense his farewell to the American people as their chief executive, and there is little doubt that he will embrace the opportunity to mark out the course he believes ought to be followed by the national government for the maintenance and development of the honor and prosperity of the country.

Foreign affairs will naturally claim considerable attention, and the president will have an opportunity to congratulate congress and the country upon the solution of the Venezuelan-boundary controversy in an honorable and satisfactory manner, alike to the United States and to Great Britain and Venezuela. The condition of affairs in Turkey will be discussed in detail and the president will be able to show that the ordinary diplomatic agencies have sufficed for the protection of American life and property in the Turkish empire. The last paragraphs of the message to be written will be those dealing with the situation in Cuba. He will avail himself of the latest possible information as to the military situation in the island, and the prospect for early settlement or failure of the insurgents may have much to do with shaping his policy. The present indications are that he will make no radical recommendations on this subject. Other foreign complications in which the United States is interested will be touched upon briefly.

Secretary Carlisle is preparing data looking to an increase of revenue by imposing revenue duties on tea and coffee, and by increasing the internal revenue tax on beer, and the president will doubtless express his approval of these recommendations.

The financial reform recommendations of the message will be along the line of Mr. Cleveland's former recommendations, and will have as their basis the advocacy of the single gold standard as the foundation of the monetary system of the country.

The retirement of the greenbacks and the Sherman notes will be recommended, so as to take the government entirely out of the business of issuing promissory notes. Banking reform will be recommended at the same time, to enable the banks of the country to issue circulating notes which will be safe, and which can be expanded or contracted in volume to meet the needs of the business of the country.

Mr. Cleveland is alive to the necessity of continuing the expansion of the navy, and of constructing coast defenses to put the country in a condition to resist foreign aggressions, and the recommendations on these lines made by Secretaries Lamont and Herbert in their annual reports will be seconded in his message.

Weyler's Heavy Loss.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The Tribune's special from Jacksonville, Fla., says: Colonel Jose Reyes, aid-de-camp of General Maceo, wounded and en route to New York for medical treatment, and with dispatches to the junta, passed through here yesterday. He says the fighting in the Rabi hills of Pinar del Rio was the most sanguinary battle of the war. He claims 2000 of Weyler's men were killed in two days, and twice as many wounded.

Weyler went to the field with 35,000 men in three columns, one of 15,000 under himself; one of 15,000 under General Echague, and a third of 5000 under General Munoz. They found Maceo entrenched in a crescent-shaped range of hills. When at the foot of the hills the Spaniards were met with a withering fire that cut gaps in their ranks. Maceo's men shot from behind rocks and trees, and gradually gave way before the Spaniards, who, encouraged by what they thought to be a victory, pursued them.

Suddenly a deafening explosion rent the air, and a scene followed somewhat like the mine horror at Petersburg during the civil war. Horses and men were blown high in the air and fell to the earth dead and mangled. The dynamite mine was touched off by John Lino, formerly of this city, who is Maceo's electrician. Maceo then loosened his dynamite guns, prepared by Lino, and more havoc was wrought.

In the mine explosion, Colonel Reyes says, Weyler lost 700 men killed and 500 more in charging, besides 1500 wounded. Next day, Maceo, knowing of the reserve force under Weyler, retreated to a stronger position. Then he was attacked by the columns under Echague, who was roundly thrashed and driven from the field, losing 800 men killed, besides 1300 wounded.

Next day Maceo retreated again, maneuvering all the while to entrap Weyler into a field that had been honeycombed with dynamite. Meanwhile, however, General Weyler, hearing that there was danger of an uprising in Havana, because of his failure to crush Maceo, hastened back to that city.

Hinman fled from.

Bob Hinman, who escaped from Douglas county jail October 14th, has been dodging his pursuers ever since. He has been seen and efforts made to arrest him but up to date he has managed to evade being taken. He was tracked up in the mountains near Riddle not long since by Wm. Higgins and Ed. Riley, where Hinman shot Higgins in the hip from his hiding place. Later one James Dunnavan came upon him and "having the drop on him" held him up, but for a minute only, for when Dunnavan essayed to tie him he showed fight, and in the tussle Hinman got the better of Dunnavan broke away and escaped. Hinman has been heard from since at Medford, where the constable and marshal undertook to arrest him but he showed fight and scared them off and again escaped. Hinman is well armed and equipped for a contest with whoever attempts to arrest him. He is wary as a fox and, it appears, is fool enough to shoot who ever tries to take him. The only show is to get "the drop on him" and shoot him down if he attempts to resist.

Two Sinners Saved.

Sunday morning two young men of this city, so the story runs, concluded to go up the South Umpqua ducking—and they got it. They took the southbound train with an outfit—a canvas boat and the usual paraphernalia for a down the river duck hunt by drifting with the current—and launched upon the raging Umpqua river. About noon a report came to town that the boat was seen drifting down the stream with no one on board, and a hat also was seen floating on the stream below Dillard's station.

It was at once surmised that these young men had been capized and had gone fishing instead of ducking. But later on it was learned that though they had capized the boat and lost their guns and taken an impromptu bath, they were saved by swimming three or four hundred yards to terra firma, one on an opposite side of the river. Whether William Carroll, Jr., and Stanley Kidder are Baptists or Campbellites now it is not known, but it is certain they were immersed and are saved at a cost, by their loss, of about $40 each.

Demorest Prize Medal.

At the opera house Saturday night a contest was had for the Demorest prize for the best educational effort. The contestants were Miss Lizzie Givins, Wm. Armata and Neal McCall and Jessie Givins of Eden Bower and Amata Smith, Clara McCoy and Clyde Falkner of Roseburg. The contest was spirited and hotly contested, all doing nobly and well, but the awarding committee gave the prize to Miss Jessie Givins of Eden Bower.

Strayed.

Light bay mare, weight 1050 pounds, has no brand and no saddle marks, no spots of any kind except the hind feet white. The mare is about six years old. The animal came to my place in the early part of last winter. I have inquired but to one knows the animal. She is in my enclosure, one mile north of Canyonville.

To the Public.

On and after this date, I wish it understood that my terms for all undertaker's goods are cash with the order. I find it impossible to do business on a credit basis, and believe that I can do better by my patrons and myself by selling strictly for cash. P. BENEDICT, Undertaker.

Made and Merit maintains the confidence of the people in Hood's Sarsaparilla. If a medicine cures you when sick; if it makes wonderful cures everywhere, then beyond all question that medicine possesses merit.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersen, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at River Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at A. C. Marsters' Drug Store. Regular size 50 c. and $1.00.

WOMEN'S FACES like flowers, fade and wither with time; the bloom of the rose is only known to the healthy woman's cheeks. The nervous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to the sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the shallow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need; it aids nature in preparing the system for the change. It is a medicine prescribed by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure the chronic inflammation of the lining membranes which cause such exhausting drains upon the system. It cures nervous prostration, sleeplessness, faintness, nervous debility and all disorders arising from derangement of the female organs and functions.

Mrs. JENNIE WILLIAMS, of Mohawk, Lane Co., Oregon, writes: "I was sick for over three years with biliousness, spells, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back and head, and at times would have such a weak tired feeling when I first got up in the morning, and at times nervous chills. The physicians differed as to what my disease was, but none of them did me any good. As soon as I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I began to get better; could sleep well nights and that nervous feeling and the pain in my back soon left me. I can walk several miles without getting tired. I took in all three bottles of 'Prescription' and two of 'Discovery'."

Catarrh Means Danger.

Because if unchecked it may lead directly to consumption. Catarrh is caused by impure blood. This fact is fully established. Therefore, it is useless to try to cure catarrh by outward applications or inhalants. The true way to cure catarrh is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, cures catarrh by its power to drive out all impurities from the blood. Thousands of people testify that they have been perfectly and permanently cured of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla.
