Tom Sharkey, the pugilist, won the champion belt by a knee thrust just below his belt by Fitzsimmons in the late fight and the place is so sore Tom can't wear his wampum. The Glenbrook rabbit hunt on Thanksgiving day was a great success. Fifteen of the bunnies were killed in about an hour and all had a great deal of sport.—Riddle Mite. O. C. Goodnow of Cow Creek was in the city last week. His mine on Cow Creek is in first class shape for doing business this winter and he expects a good clean up of the yellow metal in the spring. The following gentlemen were selected this morning to serve as grand jurors: Mathew Behr, O. N. Benedict, W. H. Palmer, E. D. Riddle, W. W. Thompson, Edgar Rose and J. G. Samler, foreman. X. N. Steeves is now on trial as an accessory of the killing of old man Sears by "Bunco" Kelly. Kelly is "a lifer" in the Oregon pen, and an important witness for the state against Steeves, or at least supposed to be; this is Steeves' third trial.

The last three days of November were extremely cold for Douglas county, but from the first of December to date the weather has been as mild as spring time. We have had some frost but no snow in this valley yet. Maskers buy your masks at the Novelty Store. R. W. Benjamin, dentist, room 1 Marsters' block. It appears from dispatches that Bob Hioman has had another adventure with officials. At Angels Camp last Thursday he exchanged several shots with a California constable without effect. There evidently were no logs in that Camp for Bob to fire from and hence his failure to shoot any one. Boston Baked Beans at the Home Bakery. Try them. H. Easton's is headquarters for Christmas candies and nuts. Riddle is a great prune growing center. In this little valley 4 miles by 2 miles are at least 40,000 prune trees, which will yield a train load of evaporated prunes next year. Myrtle Creek and Canyonville will be up even with us on this, and if a good price is realized it will be better than a gold mine for us.—Riddle Mite. Solid silver novelties at Salzman's. Beautiful designs in gent's silk handkerchiefs at the Novelty Store. The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will meet Friday p. m., Dec. 11, at the home of Mrs. S. C. Flint. H. Wead, Sec. What's the matter with Hanna? Yes, and what is the matter with Allison's T. T.'s. Try them. All kinds of artificial teeth made reasonably at Dr. Fred Haynes' office. The greatest rainfall recorded in the month of November in Oregon was at McMinnville, 20.47 inches, November, 1896. The greatest annual precipitation for three consecutive years in the United States was at Glenora, a small town northwest of McMinnville in Yamhill county, Oregon; being 141 inches—nearly 12 feet. The average rain fall at Roseburg during November was 9.90 inches, 9.50 at Seattle and 8 at Yreka, Cal. For pickles, olives, chow chow, sauces, etc., call at Allison's. Christmas is coming and Allison has just received a new line of candies, nuts, oranges and lemons. Hamlin's Wizard Oil Company open a week's engagement in the Opera House next Monday night, December 14th. Their program consists of choice vocal and instrumental music, refined specialties, laughable comedies and Jerry Sullivan, the funny little man only 40 inches high, who is a whole show himself. Be sure and bring the ladies and children Monday night. The price of admission is only 15 cents to any part of the house. New goods at Caro Bros. Boss Store. J. L. Shambrook of Coles Valley is at the McClallen. The latest device for the promotion of education is the traveling library—that is, a library that steps at one place for six months and then is moved to another town or neighborhood. Two philanthropists in Michigan and Wisconsin have fitted out a number of such enterprises, and they are said to be very helpful and popular. The libraries consist mainly of standard works and first-class periodicals, and nothing is charged for the use of them. Hon. J. F. Caples, a prominent attorney of Portland, and one of the attorneys for Jas. Dixon, is now working on the case. James Overstreet of Canyonville is interviewing his friends in this city. Corinne and her diamonds with a fair assortment of female legs was on exhibition at the Opera House last Friday night in her great extravaganza, "Henrietta Hudson, Jr." Also Sherlock and Holmes, the detectives, and a musical Dutchman. These three furnished the fun, and lots of it, and all the large audience had to do was to laugh and enjoy themselves, which they did. It was a good show—the best since Katie Putnam was here—and, though the tickets were a trifle high, will long be remembered with pleasure by those who attended. I admire opposition. Would defy competition, And under no condition Will I budge from my position. Call at Allison's for your groceries. J. B. Ford, one of the excellent educators of Douglas county, made the PLAINDEALER a friendly call this week, as is his habit when he comes to the city. Mr. Ford has taught school in several districts of this county and has proven himself to be one of the very good teachers so plentiful in Douglas. He has just closed a successful term at Canyonville and will begin a subscription school there soon. Mr. Ford's specialty is American history which he teaches upon the inductive and deductive plan by associating incidents and facts with resulting events and the causes which gave rise to them, he presents history in such a manner, peculiarly his own, as to interest his pupils and fix their attention to the particular facts, eras and the men who figured conspicuously in them and show forth all the logical sequences. In mathematics his system is simple, analytic, clear, concise and demonstrative. Mr. Ford is one of Douglas county's No. 1 teachers, and any district will do well in securing his services. County claims and warrants bought by D. S. West. Butera's specialty at Allison's. None but first-class handled. Complete line of toys at Salzman's.

B. P. O. ELKS. First Annual Memorial Service of Roseburg Lodge No. 326. PROGRAMME. Piano Voluntary, "Nearer My God To Thee," by T. P. Rider. Opening Ceremonies. Prayer, "Abide With Me," by Shelley. Miss M. A. CHITTENDEN. Rev. J. L. JONES. Quartette, "Come Holy Spirit," by G. R. Warren. Mrs. ESTES, CATHART, CONKLING and Miss LUCY STANTON, Messrs. PARK, JOHNSON, COFFMAN and ZOLLER. Solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," by R. S. Andrews. Closing Exercises. Quartette, "On Jordan's Stormy Banks," by C. E. Latta. Benediction. Yesterday, the first Sunday in December, the day set apart for memorial services by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, was duly observed by Roseburg Lodge No. 326, at their hall in Odd Fellow's Temple. An interesting programme, prepared for the occasion, was carried out with credit to the Elks and to the other participants in the solemn and impressive ceremonies, in the presence of the families of Elks and a large number of citizens. When the audience had assembled the members of the order and officers in full regalia filed into the lodge room by twos and took their respective stations, and after a piano voluntary, "Nearer My God to Thee," the opening ceremonies, ritualistic, were impressively rendered by the officers of the lodge. The programme as printed above then followed and was attentively listened to, with every evidence of appreciation by the congregation, especially the eloquent address by Rev. J. L. Jones, and the eulogy to the departed brethren by Brother Geo. M. Brown. Below we give the address of Rev. Jones in full, but defer the publication of Mr. Brown's remarks until Thursday, for lack of space today. Mr. Jones said: From time immemorial it has been a custom among nations and communities to do honor to their beloved dead, by perpetuating their names on historic page and their deeds in poetry and song. Far back in the mystic, buried past, when the light of civilization and learning had but begun to diffuse itself over ancient Greece, Homer, in his blind old age, went from village to village singing the exploits of Grecian heroes and Grecian gods. Gentlemen of the Brotherhood of Elks, you meet today in memory of one, dead; who a few months ago faced with you the question so often asked: "Is life worth living?" If those who have gone into the grave land of grim realities were permitted, no doubt they would answer, "It depends upon what kind of life you live?" The good suffer with the bad, the innocent grieve with the guilty, the strong are dependent upon the weak and all alike fall before the great great death, which leaves man's life as a tale that is told. In reviewing the past we are persuaded that the life of conquest is a failure, because it is strewn with wreckage, lost in the mad waves of ambition, such as Napoleon and Hannibal; and Fame is a phantom that allures into the quicksands of despair where those deceived thereby weep with an Alexander, and like Caesar, are slain by those of his own bosom. Wisdom sought the secret of the four winds of the earth and hailed the mighty deep, requiring it to yield the secret; but the wise man, old and tottering on the verge of the grave, despairingly cried, "All is vanity of vanities!" The rich seed footman and postilioned equipage, accompanied by princely eorts to conduct happiness and peace through arched gateways of triumph to banquet from golden plate and revel with boon companions. But, no, of all men the money getter sees less of real happiness and peace, and debauchery has darkened some of the brightest lights among men, hurling them into ignominious graves of failure. All that the world can give can never satisfy that longing in man's breast for approbation. That is more than man's to give, and without which life is a failure. All these are but tributaries to happiness and success, when properly directed, but if misguided become the torrent that devastates. There is a life that is worth living, and it we are taught by the Nazarene, Christ the Lord, an echo of which comes back from the portals of heaven in the little deed of the "Good Samaritan" done by the wayside. These occasions of unveiling the heart and unconsciously letting our fellowmen see the real divine impulse and holy association of the same dispels their gloom and blesses their lives. This life has formed a compact of conquest, fame, wisdom, and wealth, cemented together by charity, to raise the fallen, heal the wounded and build eleemosynary institutions. The life that does not make the world better is worse than a failure, and "better for that man had he not been born." On the other hand that life that is a continuation of charity and goodness accumulates treasures "where moth and rust doth not corrupt," and gains a conquer more brilliant than Caesar, Alexander, Napoleon or Washington. His companion's good thoughts and deeds, bring about him angelic associations as well as to him the love of all men. Who is it that does not love the very name of Florence Nightingale or Clara Barton for the good they have done? This law we see stamped upon humanity, "and their works do follow them." While the bones of the illustrious warriors of the past have bleached for centuries, yet today they live, not only in the dusty pages of history but in the heart of the school boy, preparing him to defend his country and serve her honor. The labors of Solon, Socrates, Newton and others come trooping down the ages as the foundation of learning. The

"Good Samaritan" lives by actuating many a life to similar deeds. Florence Nightingale lives repeatedly while Clara Barton's memory is perpetuated by the Red Cross Society. Yes, "it is not all of life to live," for while peace hovers over the ashes of the good, their characters will reproduce themselves, and although the good they do while they live may not be appreciated at the time, yet like as Napoleons' bones after twenty years bleaching on the cold, bleak isle of St. Helena were brought back on a golden barge, and amidst shouts and tears were buried on the banks of the Seine among the people he loved so much. And like as when Mark Antony pleaded the cause of murdered Caesar before the Roman senate, exposing his wounds so cruelly inflicted, the people wept for vengeance, for then they saw it was he that led them to victory. So with the good who are misunderstood, "Truth crushed to earth will rise again." And while the marble or bronze over their ashes crumbles and corrodes into the forgotten, yet not their lives. For an civilization with its even step in succeeding generation comes on, their faults and failures become unknown, but their good deeds stand as indices. Those that have lived to the greatest purpose and blessed the world most have led lives of humility, sobriety and charity in close communion with God. "He that humbly himself shall be exalted." All true greatness and goodness is derived from God and the God-thought and purpose running through the passive lives of men have moulded and brought forth from obscurity a Luther, McLanghton, Cary, Bunyan and others—in short every good man or woman that has graced the stage of action, and if we permit it to enter, permeate and possess our lives, will finally bring us from the obscurity of mortality to the effulgent glory of the redeemed, eternal in heaven. Tell It Out. Don't sit down and wait for trade. Taint the way. Get a hustle, make her show, Push your business—make her go, Don't sit down and wait for trade, Taint the way. Taint the way. If you've got something to sell, Tell it about, Let your neighbors see you're 'fry,' Get up 'bargains,' don't say die, If you've anything to sell, Tell it out, Tell it out. Folks don't know you if you don't Advertise, Keep things movin' every day, Talk about it; that's the way, Folks won't know you if you don't Advertise, Advertise. Where Was I At? The Riddle Mite of December 3d asks his patrons to read "A Suggestion" on its last page and give their ideas on the question. So we tackled it expecting to find a literary treat, and so we did. It is as follows: "Away back in the year 1846, some emigrant's cattle chanced to stray into our valley and finding the cattle, which were feeding upon the luxuriant grass, he at once pronounced it a cow heaven." Here we got so tangled up with "A Suggestion" that we did not know where the author was at, and concluded that the Mite's devil had been monkeying with the manuscript or type, or perhaps with both. The state board of equalization is now in session at the capitol up to this time the assessment rolls from only about half of the counties of the state have been received. Among the missing rolls is that of Marion county and there is a probability that this record cannot be completed and a copy delivered to the secretary of state before some time in January—after the board shall have adjourned. Its session is for thirty days and as yet Marion county's assessment blanks have been copied only as far down as "H." The entire alphabet is to be gone over before one book is completed. From this book copies are then to be made for the secretary of state and sheriff, etc. Of course this delay will seriously interfere with the work and usefulness of the state board of equalization—granting that its labors are fruitful of beneficial results. How many counties are in the same condition as Marion is not known. But without complete rolls from all of the counties the board can do nothing.—Statesman. John M. Palmer was not elected president, but it would appear that he has been chosen surveyor of Sangamon county, Illinois. The emoluments of the office are nominal, which probably accounts for the fact that none of the politicians thought about it. The duties of the post are not irksome and some people think they are of no importance, but the office exists, and its incumbent may at any time be called upon to exercise its functions. The space was left blank on the ticket, and a number of voters wrote in the name of "John M. Palmer." No one else was voted for, and hence General Palmer is elected. At a London Salvation Army meeting recently, a fervent Salvationist prayed, with all the intensity of his faith, that God would "break the Sultan's heart," with a view of course to the conversion of the barbarous Abdul. The prayer, was interrupted by an additional petition from one of the devout company, and it ran thus: "Oh, God, break his neck!"—Ex. The Senate. During court week, Ad Harmon will set a fine lunch daily to his friends, and the public are invited. Don't forget the number, 400 Jackson street. Post-office corner.

A PIONEER PASSES AWAY. General Elisha L. Applegate, who died suddenly at Ashland Tuesday evening at the age of 65, was one of the most widely known of Oregon's pioneers, having figured very prominently in the state's history for half a century. He was one of the committee that called the first republican convention in Oregon in 1858, and was the nominee for territorial treasurer, receiving also votes at that time for the nomination of governor and secretary of state, although he was then less than 26 years of age. For many years afterward General Applegate was prominent in the public councils of the state, serving eight years as surveyor-general. He came within one vote at one time of being elected United States senator from Oregon, and was later republican presidential elector. Under Harrison he was appointed Indian agent at Klamath, which position he held only a short time, owing to a disagreement with the department officials. Since that time he has not acted with the republican party, but has been more or less in the councils of the people's party, although his health and other causes during the last few years resulted in his taking a less active part in politics. General Applegate went to the polls last election day to vote, but with this exception had seldom of late been seen on Ashland's streets, where he was once such a familiar figure. He left a wife and several children. The children are all married. Two daughters, Mrs. Butler Helman and Mrs. Grant Helman, live in Ashland. Afloat on the Ice. Captain Jensen, of the ferry-boat, had a thrilling experience on the river yesterday forenoon, says The Dalles Times-Mountaineer. Early in the morning he went across on the ice to the Washington side to arrange for lowering the cable on which the ferry runs. He started back about 10 o'clock, when the ice was apparently solid, but when he had reached the middle of the river the ice began moving. There was no alternative for him but to keep straight ahead. He had on long snowshoes and with their aid he was able to keep on top the moving body, though it was a most dangerous undertaking. Every step had to be guarded with the greatest precaution, for the least slip would have let him down through the moving mass. For half an hour the captain wended his perilous journey, while hundreds of spectators watched him from the shore, expecting every minute to see him go down. He reached the ferry on this side safely, and it was indeed a relief to those who had been watching him, as well as to the captain. Nicaraguan Canal. The construction of the Nicaraguan Canal will be one of the greatest sources of wealth to this coast that could possibly be effected within the next ten years. This measure the republican party has promised to see pressed forward by the incoming administration. Its early completion will be the grand achievement of the age. This Is Your Opportunity. On receipt of ten cents, cash or stamps, a generous sample will be mailed of the most popular Caser's and Hay Fever Cure (Ely's Cream Balm) sufficient to demonstrate the great merits of the remedy. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York City. Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement. "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for catarrh and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, 50 cents. E c c t Bitters. Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c. and $1.00 per bottles at A. C. Marsters' Drug Store. Xmas Offerings. New goods and new prices. A handsome doll will be given with every package of baking powder bought of Mrs. G. W. Rapp at the People's Grocery. Many of the dolls are worth twice the price of a can of baking powder. Every can guaranteed to be as good as any powder in the market. Business Confidence Restored. Now is a good time to invest in agricultural lands while at bedrock prices. Have a large list of choice property to select from. Money to loan, five years time on well improved agricultural lands. D. S. K. BUCK, Roseburg, Or. The Central House. W. H. Gordon is now the proprietor of this popular house. The table will be supplied with the best in the market good beds and courteous treatment. Meals 15 cent, and beds the same rate. Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair. Gold Medal, Midwinter Fair. DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER Most Perfect Made. 40 Years the Standard.
