Deferring the choice of ways and methods until the time for action arrives, we should make them depend upon the precise conditions then existing; and they should not be determined upon without giving careful heed to every consideration involving our honor and interest, or the international duty we owe to Spain. Until we face the contingencies suggested, or the situation is by other incidents imperatively changed, we should continue in the line of conduct heretofore pursued, thus in all circumstances exhibiting our obedience to the requirements of public law and our regard for the duty enjoined upon us by the position we occupy in the galaxy of pations.

A contemplation of emergencies that may arise should plainly lead us to avoid their creation, either through a careless disregard of present duty or eyen an undue stimulation and ill-timed expression of feeling. But I have deemed it not amies to remind the congress that a time may arrive when a correct policy and care for our interests, as well as regard for the interests of other nations and their citizens, joined by considerations of humanity and a desire to see a rich and fertile country, intimately related to us, saved from complete devastation, will constrain our government to such action; will subserve the interests involved and at the same time promise to Cuba and its inhabitants an opportunity to enjoy the blessings of up an elderly gentleman, who was leaning against a building. He was supported by two canes, which so attracted the attention of the bootblack that he sought to know why they were necessary. The gentleman explained that he had an injured knee and was thinking of having his leg taken off, but he added as an inducement to get it to that it would cost a thousand dollars.

"My!" exclaimed the lad; "that's an eral offer: Call and I will to awful pile of money!" and then, after a moment's hesitation, he added, "and it might kill you."

"But if it kills me," the gentlemen posite, and when the responded, "the doctors will give my card is used up you may family $5,000."

The bootblack polished away for some time, and then looked up and remarked: "Well, I'd have the darned thing cut "
