Wolves, Panthers and Bears Sensitive County Hunter Tells Some Experiences Illustrating This Queer Fact.

"A bear or a panther can't stand the night of a wolfskin or a coonskin over tion of 1878 on which a portrait of the coat," raid an aged hunter of Sullivan king of Holland was scratched. county, "and both also dislike the looks of an overcoat made of buffalo skin. They become enraged when they see a hunter striding through the woods with a fur coat on. They will start for him the instant they get sight of him, and nnless he stops them with a rifle ball or a charge of buckshot they will invariaof them will always turn tail and run away from a hunter that wears a wolfskin coat, but they will chase a man is engraved. who wears a coat of any other kind of killing a deer once in awhile for a small hale is pieced at each angle change. When the weather was bitter cold, I were a coenskin overcost until a panther ruined it, and here is what is left of it.

"I killed an even dozen of panthers and a score of wolves while wearing that coat. It was in January, 1844, that I had to stop wearing it. One very and started for the head of Kitchen's creek to hunt panthers and walves. The snow was three feet deep in the woods, and the wolves and panthers were slaughtering the deer at a frightful rate. In a spruce ravine to the right of the creek I saw a movement in an evergreen tree and raised my rifle for what I thought might be a panther.

"I hadn't been standing a minute when I heard a twig snap back of me, and before I could turn half way round something struck my back and drove me forward on my hands and knees. Of course I instantly realized that a panther had landed on my bac's. It stuck its claws into my shoulders and began to kick with its bind feet, snarling and tearing at the coonskin with its teeth. I knew in a second that the only thing for me to do was to throw myself backward, and this I did at once, burying the panther in the snow beneath ma. The panther then started to scream, but the snow and my weight kept it from making much noise. It continued to claw great rents in the coonskin cost until I stabbed it three times in the side, when it stopped kicking and began to gasp. I knew that the point of the knife had touched a vital spot, so I lay still till the panther stretched out dead. Then I got up and pulled the heast out of the snow by the tail. I'd hardly dropped it on the surface than there was another movement in the evergreen tree.

"This time I spied a pair of eyes on a limb about 15 feet above the snow and blazed away at them. A panther tumbled out, began to pitch and dive in the snow, soon turning up its took. Then that the panther had ruined it. The claws hadn't touched my flesh, though for I wore three thicknesses of deerskin and two of wool under the overcost. On that trip of three days I got five panthers and four wolves.

"The same winter I surprised a pack of wolves that had cornered three deer in a pen up in the Mehoopany country. I had on a wolfskin coat, and the welves legged it out of the pen the moment they got sight of me. I pulled off the coat and put it behind a tree, and the welves, when they stopped to look back, acted as if they had been scared by a false alarm. When they saw that the overcoat wasn't in sight, they didn't care any more for me than for a sapling. They immediately returned to the deer pen as bold as you please, and I shot the whole five as fast as I could load and

"One winter Joel Wright, who used to hunt and trap all the way from the Loyalsock to the Mehoopany, rolled up his coonskin overcoat and placed it on a log in the woods till he could go over a knoll and look at one of his traps. When he got to the top of the knoll on his way back, he heard a bear bellowing down in the hollow, as if it was challenging another bear to fight with him. In a minute Joel caught sight of the noisy bear, but couldn't make out where the other one was. The challenger was slouching toward the log on which the coonskin overcoat lay in a bunch, and Joel made up his mind that the bear had got scent of the coat and was about to tackle it.

"Joel had a better fur coat at home, and he didn't care much what the bear did with the one on the log. Anyhow be was going to watch the bear, and, if he got the better of the coat, all right. He could see that the fellow was angry before he got within ten rods of the log. squeeze and shake it as if it was a thing of life that he held an old grudge against. Joel tramped down the knoll then to see all the fun at short range, and pretty soon the bear gave the coat a dreadful hug, let out a yell, fell over backward and went to sprawling and rolling in the snow. Jeel knew what the trouble was, but he didn't say a word. The bear'd had his own way, and he was as dead as a flint when Joel got to him. Joel's hunting knife was in a pocket of the overcost, and the point of it had pierced the heart of the angry animal when he hugged the coat to his breast in a fit of rage."-Scranton Letter in New York Sun.
